CHILDREN PAY TRIBUTE TO VETERANS

Enthusiastic Gathering Is Held at the Central High School.

Veterans of Civil and Spanish-American Wars Speak.

Boys Who Take Part in Parade Sing Patriotic Songs.

Young America of Duluth paid enthusiastic tribute to the nation's soldier dead this morning in the assembly room of the Central high school, when several hundred lads who had taken part in the Memorial day parade marched into the building and cheered and sang and listened to patriotic speeches.

Lieut. Commander W. S. Williamson of the naval reserves presided. All standing, the audience sang "America" after Lieut. Commander Williamson had called the meeting to order. Then Gen. M. W. Bates was introduced and he told an interesting story of Civil war times.

The veteran's narrative was a touching one that interested the children very much. It was about a little negro boy who attached himself to Mr. Bates' command and met a tragic death at the battle of Lookout mountain.

Ex-R. Cobb, the next speaker, took as his subject "Young Patriots," and made a stirring appeal to the boys to live up to the traditions of the nation and be patriots in times of peace and of war.

"An experience in the Spanish-American War" was the topic of a talk by J. E. McGregor, and H. S. Clapp told of "What We Owe the Old Soldiers."

COWBOY LASSOES BEAR FROM AUTO

Holds Wheel With One Hand and Hurls Lariat With the Other.

Cody, Wyo., May 30.—When a big brown bear paused to look at an automobile near the ranch of G. C. Rudeson at the foot of the Big Horn mountains today, Rudolph Revigno, the cowboy chauffeur, holding the steering wheel with one hand, lassoed bruin as the car swept past. The captive was dragged to the Rudeson ranch and the bear is on exhibition there.

BAR JEWS FROM HEALTH RESORTS

Authorities in the Caucasus Are Complained of By Hebrews.

St. Petersburg, May 30.—M. Friedman, the Jewish member of the duma who has championed the cause of the Jews whom the government has ordered banished from Russian cities and towns outside "the pale"—that restricted section of the Polish provinces and the ukraine, where they may legally reside—received today complaints that members of his race arriving at the health resorts in the Caucasus to take the baths and receive medical treatment were immediately expelled by the local authorities.

The law forbids the residence of Jews in the Caucasus, but the government authorized visits by them to the baths during the season of 1909. A petition from the viceroy of the Caucasus for similar privileges to the Jews during the present season is awaiting the action of the imperial cabinet.

KAISER'S WRIST IS DOING WELL

Surgeons Say No Complications Are to Be Feared From Abscess.

Potsdam, May 30.—Emperor William remains at the palace, where the healing progress of the abscess on his right wrist is being closely watched by the physicians. This morning Dr. Frederick W. Kilberg, physician to his majesty, and Prof. Bier, the surgeon, changed the bandages. Subsequently they issued a statement to the effect that they had found the trouble taking its normal course and that no complications were to be feared.

Dr. Niedner, second physician to the emperor, is charged with the continuous observation of the case.

MISSING CHILD VICTIM OF FIENDISH MURDER

ALMA KELLNER.

LOST CHILD'S BODY FOUND

Mutilated Corpse Believed to Be That of Little Alma Kellner.

Body, Wrapped in Carpet, Discovered Under School Near Her Home.

Louisville, Ky., May 30.—The body has been positively identified as that of Alma Kellner by her uncle, Frank Fehr, a millionaire brewer of Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., May 30.—A body which is fully believed to be that of Alma Kellner, the 8-year-old daughter of Fred L. Kellner, and who disappeared from her home on East Broadway and Jackson street last December, was found in a sub-basement of St. John's Catholic school at Clay and Walnut streets, five blocks away, this morning.

The condition of the corpse indicated that it had been in its damp hiding place for several months. The discovery was made shortly before 10 o'clock this morning and Chief of Police Lindsey, who hurried to the scene in an automobile, said he had no doubt it was the body of the missing child.

The decaying torso, for a leg is missing, is wrapped in a piece of carpet. The missing limb was found in another part of the cellar, the foot bearing the shoe. This latter feature is puzzling the police.

Attempt at Burial.

A further investigation developed the fact a rude attempt to bury the body had been made, indicating that the child had been murdered and that the slayer or slayers had sought to hide their crime in the darkness of the cellar.

Alma Kellner disappeared Dec. 8 and from that time until the body was found this morning not a word was heard concerning her. She left her home to attend a service at St. John's church, and the last her parents saw of her was when she waved goodbye to her mother in front of the residence. The search for the missing girl extended all over the United States.

BURROWS WANTS TO BE RETURNED

Michigan Senator Announces Candidacy for Re-election.

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 30.—United States Senator Julius C. Burrows, through the Burrows club of this city and county, today announced his candidacy for re-election and his desire to be indorsed by popular vote at the primaries next fall. His announcement commends the "conservative, yet progressive tendencies of President Taft." It also indorses the Republican platform of 1908, and declares for a tariff on imports, a strong navy, international arbitration, a merchant marine, an adequate currency and banking system and regulation of interstate commerce to protect shippers, carriers and the people alike.

RAISE SMOKELESS POWDER OUTPUT

Washington, May 30.—The output of the government's smokeless powder factory at Picatinny, N. J., arsenal is to be trebled, and soon after the new machinery now ordered has been installed, the factory will be turning out 3,000 pounds daily of this powerful explosive if needed, though the ordinary requirement will be only 1,250 pounds per day.

PINCHOT IS BACK HOME

Former Chief Forester Talks Briefly About Seeing Roosevelt.

Declines to Discuss Ballinger Matter Except to Laugh at Vertrees.

New York, May 30.—Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester of the United States, was ready as ever to discuss forest conservation problems when the liner Arabic, on which he was a passenger, got to her pier today from Europe, where Mr. Pinchot met Col. Roosevelt shortly after the latter returned to the European continent from Africa.

Mr. Pinchot, however, was uncommunicative when politics was brought up, and he would not discuss the pending controversy in which he, with Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, plays so prominent a part.

Mr. Pinchot alluded briefly to his meeting with the former president.

Met Col. Roosevelt.

"I met Col. Roosevelt at Porto Maurizio, near Genoa," said the former chief forester, "and he appeared in splendid physical trim. I never saw him looking much better. I was delighted at learning that he will address a congress of the conservation association to be held the first week in September."

The good humor of the conservation worker appeared sufficient to embolden a questioner to mention the name of

SAY DOG THRIVED ON POISON DIET

Mrs. Doxey's Attorneys Claim Cacodylate of Sodium Is Harmless.

St. Louis, Mo., May 30.—The trial of Mrs. Dora E. Doxey, accused of the murder of William J. Erder while she was his bigamous wife, was resumed in Judge Grimm's court this morning.

The announcement of the woman's attorneys that cacodylate of sodium, with which she is alleged to have poisoned Erder, had been fed to a dog for three weeks without deleterious effect, brought out the largest crowd that has attended the trial since it began.

The defendant's attorneys say experts, who conducted the experiment with cacodylate of sodium, will testify that the dog, far from being dead, is fat, healthy and very much alive.

The animal is said to have eaten 400 grains of the drug. Mrs. Doxey during her trial is wearing two wedding rings, those of Dr. Doxey and Erder.

TAFT SEES BIG PARADE IN NEW YORK

Reviews Line of Regulars and Veterans of Two Wars.

Ideal Weather and Enormous Crowds for Memorial Day.

Chicago's Old Soldiers Are Taken Over Route in Automobiles.

New York, May 30.—New York today observed Memorial day not merely with traditional ceremony, but with the unusual honor of the presence in the city of the president of the United States to review the parade of the veterans. Ideal weather conditions prevailed. Enormous crowds were drawn to the streets and avenues through which marched to ranks of blue, and a great host was massed about the stand at the soldiers' and sailors' monument, where President Taft watched the Grand Army men and kindred organizations pass in review. The president arrived early from Washington, and was driven to the home of his brother, Henry W. Taf .

On Reviewing Stand.

The party invited to surround Mr. Taft on the reviewing stand included Maj.-Gen. Daniel E. Sickles and Maj.-Gen. Julius H. Stahl, Brig. Generals Anson G. McCook, Horace Porter, Nicholas W. Day, Walter Howe, John T. Lockman and Thomas H. Hubbard.

A detachment of regular army men headed the marchers. Sailors and marines from the battleships Connecticut and Rhode Island followed, then state troops, the younger men of the Spanish war and civic societies.

Numbers of other ceremonies of a patriotic nature featured the day in the city. These included services at Grant's tomb on Riverside drive and decoration of graves of veterans in the cemeteries, while Grand Army exer-

PRIEST AND WOMAN SLAIN

South St. Paul Man Is Arrested and Admits Murders.

P. J. Gibbons, Former Police Chief, Claims His Act Was Justified.

St. Paul, Minn., May 30—(Special to The Herald.)—Showing great nervousness, but evidently not in the least remorseful over his acts, P. J. Gibbons, a former chief of police and for the last ten years a livestock commission man of South St. Paul, is in jail here for the murder yesterday of his wife and Rev. E. J. Walsh, a young priest in charge of St. Augustine's Roman Catholic church at South St. Paul.

Gibbons was brought to the Ramsey county jail in St. Paul, as there was talk of lynching him at South St. Paul.

Inmate of Drink Cure.

For three days Gibbons has been an inmate of a drinking cure sanitarium at Minneapolis. Sunday morning his wife called at the sanitarium and Gibbons insisted on accompanying her to South St. Paul to attend to some business affairs. The sanitarium physician protested, but it was finally agreed to allow an attendant to accompany Gibbons and his wife. Gibbons attended to some business matters at his office, and requested the attendant to wait at a nearby hotel "until he procured a rig at his house to take the party back to Minneapolis."

The shooting of the woman followed

BRODERICK NOT RUNNING AWAY

Attorney Assures Sheriff's Office That Indicted Man Will Surrender.

Chicago, May 30.—State Senator John Broderick, who was indicted on charges of bribery in the election of William Lorimer by the Springfield grand jury Saturday, is still missing. He spent last night away from his home in this city and successfully evaded the efforts of the Springfield and local detectives to find him. It was reported that he went to Springfield last night to arrange for bail.

During the forenoon P. H. O'Donnell, attorney for Broderick, called Deputy Sheriff Long on the telephone and assured him that the indicted legislator was still in the city.

"Senator Broderick is not running away," said Mr. O'Donnell. "We are making arrangements for this bond and he will surrender as soon as this is done—not later than Wednesday."

DEWEY SUNK BY PLOTTERS

Examination of Big Dry Dock Gives Color to Conspiracy Theory.

Experts Believe Big Hole Was Cut in the Side or Bottom.

Manila, May 30.—Further examination of the drydock Dewey, which is partly submerged at Olongapo in Subig bay, has strengthened the belief of those of the navy who have held that the damage was done deliberately by a band of conspirators against the government.

However, it is now learned that the valves had not been opened, as first declared, though they were found to have been leaking a little. This leakage would not have caused the trouble and the dock sank more readily than would have been the case had all the valves been opened and no other opening made.

Expect to Find Hole.

Accordingly the experts believe that a large hole will be found in the port side or bottom of the dock.

It is probable that the mystery will not be cleared until the dock has been raised. How long this will take cannot be said, but it is likely it will be four or five weeks.

The position of the dock was unchanged today except that the port side, containing the machinery was farther settled, being now imbedded in the mud to a depth of twelve feet, making its present examination impossible.

The engineers will employ compressed air when the wrecking equipment is brought here from Cavite on Wednesday.

BUILD CHURCH IN TEN HOURS

Peoria Men Mark Memorial Day By Unusual Feature of Industry.

Peoria, Ill., May 30.—To start the construction of a church and finish it in ten hours is one of the features of Memorial day here today. The work began at 7 o'clock this morning and was in charge of Earl Stout, of the Carpenters' Union, who has seventy-five men under his direction.

There will be no troubles, because 125 members of the Men's brotherhood of the Central Christian church will work shoulder to shoulder with the union carpenters. Rev. W. F. Turner, pastor of the mission, took off his coat and marched the men's brotherhood to the scene of the day's work, under the slogan.

"A Man's Work in a Man's Way. We'll build a church in a single day."

The climax will come at 6 o'clock this evening, when a praise meeting will be held because the church will be clear of all indebtedness.

St. Louis, May May 30.—Bernard Dierkes, city auditor from 1901 to 1909, shot and killed himself today. Saturday morning he was found unconscious asphyxiation.

BARE HEADS AS VETERANS MARCH PAST

Citizens Reverently View Parade of the Heroes of '61.

Principal Meeting Is Held at the First Methodist Church.

Civil War America's Greatest Conflict, Says Rev. Alexander Milne.

Today, sacred to the memory of the men and women who yielded their lives that this country might live, was celebrated in Duluth in fitting fashion by members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Women's Relief Corps, Sons of Veterans, military and civic organizations, citizens and children.

The principal exercises were held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Third avenue west and Third street. Mayor M. B. Cullum presided and the memorial address was delivered by Rev. Alexander Milne, paster of the Pilgrim Congregational church.

Through streets lined with silent crowds the veterans of the great war passed with measured tread and solemn mien. The spectacle of children with buoyant bearing and eager steps, the natty soldiers of the National Guard and the sailors of the naval militia and the silver-haired veterans who, through eyes that saw the rending of a nation that it might unite in closer cleavage, gazed upon a thousand flags borne by care-free youths who may some day be summoned to battlefields to defend their country's honor—such a sight could not be viewed emotionless. Something swelled within and welled into one's throat. There was a stirring in one's breast, an indefinable emotion that bred the impulse which caused hundreds to bare their heads as the heroes of a fateful epoch in a dead century passed silently by.

The parade formed at the Armory, Third avenue east and First street,

When the terms were rejected President Madriz ordered Chavarria to continue operations until the town fell.

SOLDIERS' CLUBS TO REPLACE CANTEEN

Places Will Be Established Outside the Government Reservations.

Washington, May 30.—Discouraged by the apathy of congress and its indifference to their appeals to change the laws which destroyed the army canteen, friends of the enlisted men have hit upon a device which they think will in a measure meet the case. At several military posts the soldiers are being induced to establish soldiers' clubs outside of the reservation and beyond the government control, where, in addition to the usual facilities of the garrison hall within the post, they may obtain their light wines and other beverages under such regulations as will prevent intoxication or excess.

NO MARKETS ON HOLIDAY

All Grain and Stock Exchanges in Country Are Closed.

Fair Outlook for Copper Market During the Coming Week.

All stock markets and grain exchanges were closed today.

The outlook for the market this week is moderately good. The market has been listless, and such features as are of interest to the financial world are found entirely outside of the stock market. Events which are transpiring in the business world are far from spectacular, but an understanding of their import is important to those who desire to obtain a correct view of the market.

The market has forged well ahead of the industries, and has completed its urgent liquidation. As there is no counteracting tendency, the market is now merely marking time, pending a discounting of the next forward movement, industrially. While it is in this position, liquidation is going on quietly but thoroughly in other lines. Steel men say that some forms of structural steel can be purchased at $4 a ton below the price levels of last January, the price of cereals is coming down to an export basis. The decline must continue before the stock market can discount another period of advancing prices. The principal factor that now remains to be liquidated is the high cost of living.

While the reconstruction process is proceeding satisfactorily along several lines, there are other features somewhat disconcerting; for example, the railroad situation. It is conceded that there can be no general prosperity unless the railroads are prosperous. In the last year the expenses of railroads have leaped forward, especially their payrolls, yet any proposal to offset this by an advance in rates is met with stubborn and widespread opposition; consequently while their gross earnings are showing satisfactory gains this new business, in most cases, is costing them more than 100 per cent in increased expenses. In other words, their net earnings are showing no gain. This is unsatisfactory, not only as limiting the railroads' purchasing power, but because when the tide turns and gross earnings begin to decline a rapid falling off in net earnings is inevitable. At least that is the argument of the railroads.

The money situation is not only unsatisfactory; it is threatening. The apparent cheapness of money is deceiving. It is due not to a plentiful supply but to a lack of demand. The West has been speculating in land and has returned very little money to the East. It is probable that crops next fall will be unusually large and there will be very little money in the West and less than usual in the East to finance their harvest and movement. Good crops, of course, are conducive to prosperity in the long run but there have been times when, temporarily, the demand for funds to move them has created a decided pinch in the money market and has depressed stocks severely. Surface indications point to a situation of this sort next fall unless there is a material change in the trend of events in the near future.

The copper market is at a dead center. People are becoming accustomed to large visible supplies and this is not such a bearish factor as formerly; consequently the tone of the metal is a trifle firmer and there is no likelihood of a decided advance until it becomes more evident that consumption is overtaking production. In general, the market seems to have resolved itself into a trading affair and it may maintain that condition for some time. There appears to be little inducement to take on large commitments.

Available statistics point strongly to a more favorable statement from the Copper Producers' association this month than in the month previous. This will be due, in a large measure, to increased exports which probably will amount to about 42,000,000 pounds. It is not improbable that domestic deliveries will aggregat 68,000,000 pounds, making the total deliveries about 113,000,000 pounds compared with an estimated production of 118,000,000 pounds.

Weather—Fair tonight and Tuesday; probably light frost tonight in low places; westerly winds.

MANY TRUTHS TAUGHT IN "ANTI-MATRIMONY."

Young people about to enter the bonds of matrimony, those who have just assumed the domestic yoke and those who have been trotting in "double harness" for years must not fail to see Henrietta Crosman when she appears at the Lyceum theater for one performance, next Thursday evening, in her biggest comedy success, 'Anti-Matrimony." It will teach them a great many wholesome truths through the medium of hearty laughter. The fact that this play is from the pen of Percy MacKaye is a guarantee of its unusual quality, and the fact that it is presented by Henrietta Crosman makes it a foregone conclusion that it will prove a delightful offering. Maurice Campbell has surrounded this popular star with a splendid company and the production is a worthy one in every way.

SIXTY GRAVES ARE DECORATED

Superior Veterans Pay Annual Tribute to Soldier Dead.

Memorial day is being generally observed today at Superior.

This morning the graves of sixty soldiers who forty-nine years ago, fought for the cause of the Union, were decorated with flowers by living comrades. The custom of casting flowers on the waters in memory of the sailor dead, was also observed.

The old soldiers met at the post hall at 8 o'clock and headed by the drum corps marched to the union station, where trains took them to Greenwood cemetery. At the cemetery, the services consisted of singing national anthems and the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg speech by Col. A. E. Eaton.

A squad of soldiers from Company I fired a salute and the ceremony of decorating the graves was performed by twenty-four little girls. The memorial address was delivered by Rev. P. W. Court. At noon a special train brought the old soldiers back to the city.

This afternoon a Memorial day program will be held at the Sacred Heart auditorium, beginning promptly at 2 o'clock. Attorney S. L. Perrin will make the address of the day. A good program has been arranged for the occasion.

Rev. William B. O'Neill, pastor of Hope Congregational church yesterday morning, preached to thirty veterans of the Civil war and others, who packed the small church to the doors.

The authorities are investigating the cause of the fires.

Economic Systems Course.

Four new paragraphs were added to the plank relating to production as follows: "The inability of the present economic system to keep all willing workers employed at all times, is its greatest curse.

"This fact condemns it as unfit to meet the demands of a modern civilization. That this fear of a recurring industrial crisis hangs like a cloud over the industrial world is evident.

"Co nstantly it is threatening the business interests of the nation as well as the workers with destruction.

"Thus we witness the cruel and grotesque spectacle of millions of men, women and children suffering for the necessaries of life—in a country with boundless resources."

Among the new things requested of the state legislature and congress is "to abolish the written constitutions of the states and the nation—except as stating certain fundemental rights; the laws of the congress and the legislature to stand supreme, unless reversed by a referendum of the people."

The plank demanding that the government prevent importation of Asiatic coolie labor was readopted after a lengthy discussion.

The plank relating to the liquor problems was amended to read in part as follows:

"Until the profit system is abolished and a more harmonious economic order has been established, the attempts of all well-meaning people to introduce the temporate habits by law will prove only an evasion of the real issue."

SNOW FLURRIES ARE REPORTED

Duluth Did Not Get as Much of "Beautiful" as Range Towns.

Down in little old New York, folks dropped to the streets yesterday because of the heat. In Duluth, that far-famed summer resort, which the railroads and steamship lines are going to advertise heavily this year by distributing thousands of copies of the Commercial club's descriptive folder for summer consumption—in Duluth, where one is never burdened by the heat and where the cold is dry cold and is invigorating and pleasant; in Duluth yesterday it snowed.

A few flakes fell in scattered portions of this town between 8 and 9 o'clock yesterday morning. They melted as fast as they arrived. At Eveleth and other parts of the Mesaba range the snowfall was heavier, but the effects were not visible as the snow melted as soon as the flakes struck the ground. Fishermen who were out along the Alger-Smith line report quite noticeable snow flurries.

ON THE IRON RANGES

NEW CHURCH IS BLESSED

Bishop Trobec of St. Cloud Presides at Notable Event in Eveleth.

Throngs of People Witness Impressive Ceremonies and Other Events.

Eveleth, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most notable of Northern Minnesota church events took place here yesterday, when the new Holy Family church was dedicated by most impressive ceremonies before a vast congregation. Bishop Trobec conducting the services of blessing the structure.

The visitors commenced to arrive here very early and at 10:45 a. m. a special with extra coaches from Ely, on the Iron Range road, with many passengers from Gilbert, Biwabik, Aurora, McKinley, Pettit, Ely, Tower Soudan, and Embarrass arrived. The 10:32 Missabe train from Duluth also bore many visitors and many Zenith city residents were among those present. Vehicles and other means of transit also carried many people and hundreds arrived from the surrounding towns and locations. Many visitors from Michigan and Southern Minnesota points were amongst those present, while the entire congregation of local members assisted in the dedicatory activities.

Long Parade Through Streets.

About 9:30 a. m. the Holy Name of Christ, Catholic Foresters, Arbarossa, Holy Family, Cyril Method societies, and lodges from the surrounding towns, headed by the Gilbert, Chisholm, Hibbing, Eveleth city bands and the Ely Finnish and Italian brass bands, assembled at the church and there formed a large procession, which proceeded to parade about the local thoroughfares. The procession occupied over seventeen blocks, and about 1,500 took part. The line of march extended from the Holy Family church, corner Adams avenue and Pierce street, to Hayes street and Adams avenue, thence down to Hayes and Grant avenues, and along Grant avenue to Pierce street, then to the church. Following the morning dedicatory services, from 10:30 to noon, the parade participants reassembled and marched over the initial line of parade.

Following the initial parade the morning services were commenced and continued from 10:30 to noon, at which Rev. Father J. A. Seliskar, St. Paul seminary, addressed the audience over 1,000, on "The Church and Education." Father Bilban also addressed the large audience.

After the noon parade which followed the morning services, the gathering dispersed to the Vail, Elk and Stipetch halls, which were engaged for the occasion by the local lodges, and at each hall refreshments were served. At the Bijou theater, the Slavonia Dramatic Society of Chisholm, presented many amusing sketches rendered in the Austrian language, and also cleverly sang some native melodies.

The Evening Service.

At the evening services Bishop Trobec of St. Cloud gave a very interesting sermon, and his remarks were carefully listened to by the large audience present. Among those present at the services of the visiting clergymen who aided materially in the success of the affair were Father Shiffierer, Gilbert; Father Power, Father Singer, Virginia; Father Buh, Ely; Father Pirnat, Aurora; Father Tscholl, Chisholm; Father Gomache, Hibbing; Father Floyd, Eveleth; Rev. Seliskar, St. Paul.

The evening services were rather short and following the close the large gathering present assembled on the local street corners, and along the business and residence streets, much music was dispensed by the local and visiting brass bands. The orchestras were also busy and an unusual large amount of sweet melody was left in this city.

The local streets were well crowded by the unusual large gathering, and it is conservatively estimated that over 4,000 people gathered here despite the very inclement weather, it raining and snowing throughout the morning, and the air was very cold and raw. The local streets, halls and the church were all appropriately decorated, and the scenes at the dedication were among the most beautiful ever witnessed in this city, and the gathering was the largest ever assembled here.

GREAT HILL MINE NOW SHIPPING ORE

Bonanza Marble Property Expected to Be in Mahoning and Rust Class.

Marble, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver Iron Mining company will begin the first shipment of iron ore from the Hill mine today. The Hill mine was cleared of its timber only two years ago this spring and stripping has been rushed and so successfully carried on that ore was reached early in the spring and found to be very near the surface and of much higher grade than at either the Walker pit at Coleraine or Holman at Taconite. It is said it is to be closely compared with the Mahoning and Rust mines at Hibbing. The Hill mine ore will not need to be sent to the Coleraine concentrating plant on account of its high grade and therefore it will be sent straight through to Duluth by the Missabe road. The Great Northern will have its sidetracks built into the mine where it will handle all its ore as per their contract with Mr. Hill.

At first it was estimated that about 250,000 tons would be shipped this season, but recently it has been raised to 500,000 and on account of its grade and easy mining and shipping it is rumored that even 1,000,000 tons may be sent before the end of the shipping season. Shipping from the underground shaft has been going on for about three weeks with about three or four carloads a week but from the open pit the quantity will be a surprisingly higher figure. Mining and railway officials have visited the district here all week and show great interest in the present outlook for Hill mine and Marble.

BOYS CULTIVATE LAND.

High School Students Working on Forty Near Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—In order to furnish high school students interested in agricultural work a practical illustration, Supt. Lafayette Bliss has secured about forty acres from State Auditor Iverson, west of the North Side addition.

No lease has been secured, but the assurance is given that the property may be used indefinitely, and Saturday about twenty boys cleared away stumps, rocks and brush, preparing the land for cultivation.

This is an innovation in connection with school work, but the knowledge that will be gained in practical work of this character will be invaluable, not only to the boys, but to the local farmers, who will profit by the experimental work that will be conducted under the superintendency of Mr. Bliss.

Next winter efforts will be made to establish a permanent experimental station here, a branch of the one located at Crookston. Many of the students in the local schools never saw a field of corn or wheat, and know nothing of farm life or practical gardening.

Little Affected By Long Being Underground at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three more bodies were exhumed from the old cemetery by the Winston-Dear company, who are conducting the strippings of the Buffalo Susquehanna mine. One of the bodies was that of an old woman with pure white hair. The hair was still plaited in the fashion as when she was buried, and a beautiful shroud in which she was buried had not suffered any appreciable wear from the long confinement. One other casket was taken up but no body was found within. This makes nine bodies found in all.

TO INSPECT ISLANDS.

Hibbing Parties May Purchase Them From Canadian Government.

Hibbing, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mike Somers, Frank Ansley, J. L. Stewart and about ten others left Saturday evening for Virginia en route to the Rainy lake country to inspect some acreage on a number of islands which are being put on sale by the Canadian government.

It is the intention of most of the men making the trip, if the land is desirable, to erect small cottages on their purchases to be used as summer homes. The government will not sell a greater number of acres than twenty-five to any one person. This country is stated by a great number of people who have cruised through it to rival in beauty that of the Thousand Islands.

MARINE NEWS

WORKING TO RELEASE BOATS

Two Tugs and Diver Sent to Aid of Stranded Vessels.

The tugs B. B. Inman and America, with a diver, a lighter and two steam pumps are working today on the steamer City of Berlin and barge Aurora, which are aground at Split Rock, on the north shore about forty miles from Duluth.

The boats went aground between 10 and 11 o'clock Saturday night. The mate of the Berlin walked to Two Harbors and telephoned G. A. Tomlinson, the Duluth agent of the owners.

The Inman, with a lighter and a steam pump, went to the scene of the accident yesterday and the America followed this morning with a diver and another pump. The steamer is understood to be lightly aground, but the barge will have to be lightered.

The boats are wooden carriers owned by Henry Wineman, Jr., of Detroit. They are loaded with soft coal for the Pittsburg Coal company. They will probably be released today or tonight. Neither boat is seriously damaged.

LIFE BOATS MAY BE CARRIED UNLASHED.

It is probable that as a result of the sinking of the steamer Goodyear and the loss of life in that disaster, radical measures will be taken so that access to life boats and rafts may be more readily secured on big steamers.

Suggestions have been advanced that the boats be unlashed except in very rough weather or that in foggy weather they be made ready for instant use. The difficulty in unlashing life boats is often responsible for the appalling loss of life in marine disasters, for if the boats were ready for instant use, men would often have time to get away before a boat sinks and to get beyond the zone of suction which so often draws them down.

HAND-DYED SCARFS.

The abalone shell, or pearl blister, which looks like a captive bit of a silvery, opal-tinted sunset, has a rival in the form of a scarf in which one soft shade drifts into another with a gradation of color no cruder than the blending of tones on a rose leaf.

This scarf is not to be found in the shops in its highest perfection, says Town and Country, for it is dyed by hand with the utmost care and artistic consciousness by a woman who has lived long enough in the midst of beautiful things to become imbued with the necessity to give expression to their teachings in one fashion or another.

The woman who has purchased a gown in which several delicate tints have been used after the true Parisian fashion may let Mrs. Peixotto have a glimpse at the colors and straightway her imagination and her fingers will be at work, harmonizing them into a bit of chiffon cloth, marquisette, liberty or radium.

Smaller squares of chiffon cloth or marquisette are used for motoring veils, and it was Mrs. Peixotto who was entrusted to dye those used by Lillian Russell in "Wildfire" last season.

One scarf was suggested to the artist by the accidental placing of a sea green vase with a dulled glaze near a fabric of a dusty raisin shade. This impression will now be found in a glorious shimmering scarf of liberty silk, the dim purplish shade at the edge of the silk changing to varying lavenders, dying away almost to white and slowly enlivening to green in the center. One of chiffon cloth is of cantaloupe pink changing to shading yellows.

Others combine purples and bronze with an iridescent result; or all the spectrum colors are used with a wonderfully soft yet brilliant effect. The flower-like appearance of the colorings is borne out by the rolled hem, which is manipulated so that it forms uneven petal-like scallops.

Red Wing played a morning holiday game today at Athletic park before a fair crowd. Widdell started to pitch for Red Wing, but Duluth scored four runs in the first and two in the second, and he was yanked after the fourth inning, being replaced by Fautch. Al Cummings went in the box for Duluth.

First Inning—For Red Wing, Malloy, Kelley and Black went down, one, two, three. Anderson opened the proceedings for Duluth with a single and Neelon and Taylor did likewise, filling the bases. The squeeze play worked with O'Brien at the bat, Anderson scoring and Darby going out at first. Altermott hit one for two bases, scoring Neelon and Taylor. Sweeny hit safely, going to second on an unsuccessful attempt to get Altermott at the plate. Woods went out on an infield hit and Sweeny tried to score, but was caught at the plate. Four runs.

Second Inning—Demmer was out on a fly and Gritz went down, catcher to first. Swanson drew a base on balls but was caught trying to steal second. For Duluth, Gillis was safe on Gritz's error. Cummings went down on a fly to Widdell. Anderson hit for three bases, scoring Gillis, and Anderson scored a minute later on Neelon's sacrifice fly. O'Brien went out on a fly. Two runs.

Third Inning—Malloy, Kelley and Black went down in order, as did Altermott, Sweeney and Woods for Duluth.

Fourth inning—For Red Wing, Demar went out. Gritz hit safely, but Swanson and Taylor went out on flies. For Duluth, Gillis drew a pass. Cummings went down on a foul near first base. Anderson singled. Neelon went out on an infield fly. Gillis was caught between second and third bases.

Fifth inning—Schreiber went down, short to first. Fautch, who was substituted for Widell, went out on a fly. Malloy died, pitcher to first base. For Duluth, Taylor, O'Brien and Altermott went down in order.

Sixth inning—Kelley went out on a grounder and Black was thrown out at first, the catcher dropping the ball on the third strike. Demmer hit safely and Gritz went out on a fly. For Duluth, Greeney singled and was sacrificed to second by Woods. Gills singled, sending Sweeney to third. Gillis stole second. Cummings hit one to first baseman and Swanson threw it away trying to catch Sweeney at home. Anderson struck out and Neelon died on a grounder in the infield.

Seventh inning—Swanson went down on a fly. Gregor died on a foul and Schreiber was thrown out at first base. In Duluth's half, Taylor went down on an infield fly. O'Brien singled, but was doubled at second on Altermott's grounder to short. Altermott being thrown out at first.

Eighth inning—Red Wing bunched hits and errors for five runs. Duluth was unable to get a man across the plate.

Ninth inning—Three Red Wing men went down in order in the ninth inning and the game was over.

HAND-DYED SCARFS.

The abalone shell, or pearl blister, which looks like a captive bit of a silvery, opal-tinted sunset, has a rival in the form of a scarf in which one soft shade drifts into another with a gradation of color no cruder than the blending of tones on a rose leaf.

This scarf is not to be found in the shops in its highest perfection, says Town and Country, for it is dyed by hand with the utmost care and artistic consciousness by a woman who has lived long enough in the midst of beautiful things to become imbued with the necessity to give expression to their teachings in one fashion or another.

The woman who has purchased a gown in which several delicate tints have been used after the true Parisian fashion may let Mrs. Peixotto have a glimpse at the colors and straightway her imagination and her fingers will be at work, harmonizing them into a bit of chiffon cloth, marquisette, liberty or radium.

Smaller squares of chiffon cloth or marquisette are used for motoring vells, and it was Mrs. Peixotto who was entrusted to dye those used by Lillian Russell in "Wildfire" last season.

One scarf was suggested to the artist by the accidental placing of a sea green vase with a dulled glaze near a fabric of a dusty raisin shade. This impression will now be found in a glorious shimmering scarf of liberty silk, the dim purplish shade at the edge of the silk changing to varying lavenders, dying away almost to white and slowly enlivening to green in the center. One of chiffon cloth is of cantaloupe pink changing to shading yellows.

Others combine purples and bronze with an iridescent result; or all the spectrum colors are used with a wonderfully soft yet brilliant effect. The flower-like appearance of the colorings is borne out by the rolled hem, which is manipulated so that it forms uneven petal-like scallops.

UTAH HAS REMARKABLE LAW

State Where Condemned Man May Choose Method of Death Penalty.

UTAH is the only state in the union where a man may be shot instead of hanged for the crime of murder under civil law, says the Boston Globe.

An adherence to the old scriptural idea of blood atonement on the part of the Mormons in Utah has given this state a unique law by which a man condemned to die for taking the life of another may choose between being shot or being hanged.

The provision of the Utah statutes regarding election as to a criminal's manner of death is as follows:

"The punishment of death must be inflicted by hanging the defendant by the neck until he is dead, or by shooting him, at his election. If the defendant neglect or refuse to make the election the court at the time of rendering the sentence must declare the mode and enter the same as a part of this judgment."

Eleven legal executions have taken place in Utah since it was admitted as a territory in 1850. All of these have been by shooting except one, since the condemned men on being given their choice naturally prefer shooting.

One of the most notable executions in this state was that of Peter Mortensen, who was shot November 20, 1903, for the murder of John Hay. The murder was a brutal one for the sake of robbery and the body of the victim was concealed in a neglected pasture. The death penalty was inflicted on Mortensen in the yard of the state prison of Utah, in Salt Lake city.

Description of Execution.

A description of an execution by an eye-witness will give a good idea of the method of carrying out the death sentence in Utah:

"The death chair was placed against the east wall of the prison inclosure, facing a driveway. It was a common office chair with arms. It was set upon a platform about four feet square, constructed of new boards. Behind the platform was a box-like structure, five feet high and two feet thick. This was filled with dirt, its purpose being to catch the bullets after they had passed through the prisoner's body, to prevent their glancing from the wall and endangering the lives of spectators.

"Just opposite the death chair, across the driveway, which, is fifty feet wide, is a low brick building, about 100 feet long north and south, used as the prison blacksmith shop. Double doors opened on the driveway. These were pushed aside on the day of the execution and a curtain of denim hung over their place. At the height of a man's shoulder five round holes had been cut at regular intervals, and a foot or so higher other holes of irregular shape appeared. Behind this curtain were stationed the executioners. Their identity was known only to the warden of the penitentiary, the sheriff and a few trusted deputies.

"A wire at the north end of the blacksmith shop, extending to the opposite wall, shut off the spectators. Just outside of the wire were tables and chairs for newspaper reporters.

"Before the arms of the prisoner were strapped to the chair with new leather straps he shook hands all around with the guards, but he could not see those hand he was shaking. His ankles were then strapped to the lower rounds of the chair.

"The time of the strapping seemed interminable. After a final test of the straps to see that they were securely fastened, the officials retreated to the south, leaving an open space between the chair and the blacksmith shop, with its suggestive row of black holes.

"Mortensen's head alone was free. It was slightly inclined forward. He could not see the curtained ambush with its threatening black apertures. Perhaps his sharpened hearing may have caught the sound as the black-nosed rifles—five of them—were pushed through the openings and leveled at the white piece of paper pinned over the doomed man's heart. The rifles had been loaded by the sheriff, four of them with fatal bullets and the fifth with a blank cartridge. The executioners did not know which gun carried the blank load, so that none would know whether or not he had helped carry the death sentence into effect.

"Blinded and helpless, the prisoner must have awaited in awful suspense the winged death. No one moved or spoke. The sheriff gave the firing signal. A sudden crash came, accompanied by jets of flame from the rifle muzzles. No smoke appeared, as smokeless powder was used. A physician hastening to the prisoner's side found that his pulse had ceased."

A Spectacular Execution.

The second execution in Utah history was, indeed, spectacular. It was that of John D. Lee, who was connected with the famous Mountain Meadow massacre, which is one of the greatest blots on Utah's history. One hundred emigrants on their way from the East to California, in 1857, were murdered by Lee and his band in Iron county, Utah. Only a few children of the party were spared. Lee's band was composed of Indians, and they were helped by Higbee's battalion of the Nauvee legion.

It was twenty years after the deed was committed before Lee suffered the penalty for it. Then he was executed by shooting on the scene of the massacre, seated on his coffin. The doomed man was taken from the Beaver county jail, where he had been closely guarded, placed in a closed carriage and driven rapidly to the place of execution, several miles distant. A company of soldiers from Fort Cameron, a local army post, formed an escort for the officials who had Lee in charge. Mob violence was feared, so intense was the resentment of the fiendish crime.

Seated on his coffin, with his eyes bound, five rifles were aimed at his heart. The aim was true, and as the five shots rang out on the still air Lee fell back in his coffin dead.

In his dying speech he said that he was not afraid to die. His only regret was in leaving his wife and children. He said that he believed that Brigham Young was leading the people astray, but thought that the doctrines of the Mormon church led to salvation.

His body was sent to one of his numerous wives, Rachel of Panguitch. His photograph was sent to each of his wives. He was about 60 years of age at the time of his execution.

Only one hanging is recorded in the entire history of Utah. Charles Thiede, a German saloon keeper of Murray, Utah, who murdered his wife, was executed for the crime on an old-fashioned clumsy gallows and died from strangulation.

BIG ISHPEMING FIRE.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire starting in the rear of F. J. Mudge's furniture store Saturday about 11 a. m., destroyed that and an adjoining furniture store and an adjoining furniture store and badly damaged Peter Kosekki's general grocery, dry goods and clothing store near by.

A high wind was prevailing and the firemen had trouble in preventing the fire spreading to buildings on the north side of the street. The Negaunee department was called for and aided materially in confining the fires to the building named. The loss is heavy, and partially covered by insurance.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

BIG THRONG LOOKED FOR

Crookston Ready for Northern Minnesota Development Association Meet.

Memorial Day Decorations Will Be Maintained During the Gathering.

Crookston, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Beginning with a smoker at the Commercial clubrooms Wednesday night with J. E. O'Brien, president of the Commercial club, presiding, the two days' session of the Northern Minnesota Development association, Thursday and Friday, will be given a good start.

The preparations for the entertainment of the city's legion of guests this week are complete. The city looks beautiful today with the flags and bunting.

Thousands of electric lights have been placed in the business section festooned from one side of the street to another and the donning of holiday attire in the residence portions of the city has practically been completed.

The florists and greenhouses have never done such a business as during the past week. They have shipped in thousands of plants, the convention coming right after Memorial day having induced many who are not in the habit of making special preparation to do so. Ceaseless war has been waged on dandelions, and visitors will see few of the pests upon their arrival in Crookston.

Plenty of Accommodations.

To avoid any trouble feared from lack of sleeping room, hundreds of spare rooms have been listed with Secretary Brown of the Commercial club and all visitors to the city can be certain of a good place to sleep even if the hotels and regular rooming houses are all packed.

Some time ago talk of 1,000 visitors during the convention was looked upon as exaggerated, but reports received within the past two days from commercial clubs, county officials and others, coupled with a careful size up of the situation by traveling men who have reported from all directions, indicate that 1,000 is a very conservative estimate and if weather conditions are at all favorable the delegations from points in the eight of ten adjacent counties will swell the number to greatly in excess of that number. Special arrangements have been made for the convenience of the newspaper men who will be here. The editors of all the weekly papers throughout this section will be here, with special representatives from some of the city dailies, and an unlimited supply of typewriters have been secured for their use and the directors' room in the Commercial clubrooms will be set aside for their exclusive use with any make of machine desired available.

DENNIS HANNIFIN FOR U. S. SENATOR

"Squatter Governor" of North Dakota Among Those Who Filed.

Bismarck, N. D., May 30.—Saturday was the last day for the filing of petitions for nomination at the office of the secretary of state and a number of new petitions were filed. Among them was that of Hon. Dennis Hannifin, "Squatter Governor of the State of North Dakota," for the six-year term in he United States senate. The petitions for the nomination of Governor Hannifin were liberally signed by the people of the western part of the state, and his name will go on the ballot for the June election. Governor Hannifin is confident of the final outcome of the election.

Under Non-Partisan Law.

The judicial nominations have been filed and received by the secretary of state under the new non-partisan judiciary act. None of the candidates raised any question as to the law, but merely made tenders of petition under the old law, in order that his rights might be protected in case the new law is attacked in the courts and held unconstitutional.

In the Democratic ranks there was no candidate in opposition to Governor Burke for renomination as the Democratic candidate. George Duis of Grand Forks and John Bruegger of Williston with W. E. Purcell of Wahpeton are candidates for the Democratic senatorial nominations. Duis and Bruegger are opposing candidates for the long term and Purcell wants the short term.

In addition there are also the commencement exercises in the Grand Forks high school. About thirty graduates make up this year's class. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered yesterday morning by Father E. J. Conaty, while the class exercises are tonaty, while the class exercises are tonight. The regular commencement takes place Friday at 10 o'clock.

NORTH DAKOTA HEALTH.

Scarlet Fever and Measles Most Prevalent Disease Last Month.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to the statement of the state board of health for the month of April, just made public by Secretary J. Grassick of this place, there were 809 births as against 291 deaths. Scarlet fever and measles were the most prevalent diseases, there being 284 of each, with three deaths from fever and none from measles. Sixty-three cases of whooping cough were cared for without a single death, while eighteen cases of smallpox and nine of typhoid fever were also cared for successfully. Eighteen cases of tuberculosis with two deaths were reported.

TO REPLY TO STOKES.

Milwaukee Socialist Leader to Answer New Yorker in Home Town.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 30.—Alderman Victor L. Berger has left for New York and on Wednesday he will tell New York Socialists from the platform in Carnegie hall all they may care to know about the Milwaukee victory.

Mr. Berger may even go a little further.

Milwaukee Socialists are piqued by the aspersions cast upon the Milwaukee election by the Eastern Socialists. J. Phelps-Stokes has made caustic comment upon the local Socialist achievement. Mr. Berger declined before leaving to discuss Mr. Stokes' remarks, saying there would be time to reply next Wednesday when he could speak directly at Mr. Stokes. Mayor Seidel declined absolutely to discuss the millionaire's remarks.

"If Mr. Stokes wants to abolish the small business man why doesn't he begin on himself and decline the money given him by his father on which money he is living at the present time," was the retort of Alderman Berger.

In addition to his New York address, Mr. Berger will speak at Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Newark.

NO INTENT IS SHOWN.

Governor Declines to Remove Red Lake County Officials.

St. Paul, Minn., May 30.—A. A. Latendresse and C. A. Lindquist, members of the county board of Red Lake county, will not be required to answer charges of malfeasance in office.

This was the decision made by Governor Eberhart after considering the complaint filed by Anton Shaefer, public examiner. This was made about a year ago following an examination of the county books by the public examiner. Governor Eberhart has decided that to ask for a hearing would be a useless formality.

The charges alleged that money belonging to the ditch fund had been used in constructing county buildings contrary to law. As soon as the matter was called to the attention of the board members the funds were transferred back to the ditch fund. A site for a courthouse was bought on auditors' warrants on legal advice. The governor finds that there was no intention to violate the law.

"I am advised that officers elected by the people should not be removed for errors of judgment, but only for wilfull intention to violate or ignore the law," said the governor.

IS SUCCESSFUL FARMER.

John Roseen of Jadis, Roseau County, Certainly Knows Business.

Roseau, Minn., May 30.—John Roseen of Jadis is one among the many prosperous farmers in Roseau county. Mr. Roseen came here twenty-three years ago and took a homestead. He afterwards secured the Larson farm, and at the land sale last week bought forty acres in section 33, 163-40. He has 300 acres under cultivation and in tame grass. Last year he put up 500 tons of hay, fed over fifty head of stock and sold 150 tons at prices ranging from $3.50 to $8 per ton. From the 1907 season's crop he sold grain at Greenbush to the amount of $2,300. From the produce of the farm last year Mr. Roseen realized about $2,000. Mr. Roseen, owing to ill health, has not been able to do any work himself for several years and has had considerable sickness in the family. Notwithstanding all drawbacks, he has managed to make additional improvements each succeeding year.

RAILS AGAINST CONDITIONS.

Milwaukee's Mayor Comments on Necessity of Rescue Mission.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 30.—Present conditions, which he said, necessitated the erection of rescue missions and houses of refuge, were severely arraigned by Mayor Emil Seidel at the dedication exercises of the new rescue mission building last night.

In responding to the opening words of praise by the Rev. C. H. Beale, Mayor Seidel said: "I do not wish to strike a note that is not in tune with the other addresses. I wish to say that as I entered this building I took notice of all those present and did not see any one that looked as though he was in need of rescue. I also took notice that the singing by those present was not of a joyful character. There was an expression in your voices as if something was lacking in your lives.

"Let me tell you that while this building is a monument to the great generosity of the people of Milwaukee, it is also a monument of misery, crime and injustice.

"It is a monument to all the evil days that have left their stain upon the social life of this city.

"I hope that the time will come when this building will be the most desolate spot in the city of Milwaukee. At present this institution is a necessity, but the time is coming, and at a rapid rate, when the opening of a rescue mission will be a disgrace to a city."

IS REMARKABLE FAMILY REUNION

Six Brothers and Sisters of Great Age Gather in Reunion.

Minot, N. D., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Six brothers and sisters, the eldest 87 years and the youngest 74 years, and having a combined age of 478 years, are holding one of the most remarkable of family reunions ever reported in this state. The members making up this remarkable group are: Cyrus Francis, Minot, N. D., aged 87 years; Isaac Francis, Owatonna, Minn., aged 83 years; Mrs. C. Jones, Sawyer, N. D., aged 80 years; Mrs. Mary Partridge, Minneapolis, Minn., aged 78 years; Mrs. E. Thornton, Minot, aged 76 years; Mrs. H. Johnson, Minot, aged 74 years.

The family circle of six children has never been broken by death, which is most remarkable considering the ages that they have attained. Several of the members have interesting personal histories, as, for instance, Cyrus Francis, the eldest, is a veteran of both the Mexican and Civil wars.

Isaac Francis of Owatonna, Minn., was a pioneer of the Northwest, and made a trip into this section of North Dakota long before the railroads were sent up here. Burlington was then the county seat of Ward county while the present site of Minot then only boasted one building, that occupied by Erick Ramstad and his mother.

Mrs. Partridge of Minneapolis is the father of George Partridge of the firm of Wyman, Partridge & Co.

PROBING TUMA'S DEATH.

Cause of Killing of Dickinson Tinner Is Problem.

Dickinson, N. D., May 30.—To secure evidence that will fix the cause of the death of Albert Tuma, the Dickinson tinner, whose body was discovered in a pond south of the city where it had evidently been thrown after he had met death in some other manner, is a poser which the coroner's jury seems unable to solve. With Henry Brown held as a suspect, the officials are doing everything possible but so far they have been unsuccessful in discovering anything that will directly connect Brown with the affair. Murder for the purpose of robbery is the theory being worked on. Tuma's stomach has been sent to the state chemist for analysis, and until that is received no definite action will be taken.

MUSICIAN, ARTIST, SOCIETY BELLE, ACTRESS, AUTHORESS AND DRAMATIST

MISS VIOLETT HOUK.

Miss Violett Houk was well known some years ago in Washington as a child violinist. She was Elsie Houk then, daughter of the late L. C. Houk, who represented the Second district of Tennessee in the house for fourteen years. She and her mother went to Paris a few years later, where Elsie was to study music, but when she returned the violin was replaced by the easel and brushes and paint. She had finished with the violin for good and it now lies upon her bookcase like a little black coffin and Miss Houk calls it one of her "dead dreams." For a short time she studied art at studios in Washington and London and devoted herself to black and white drawings and etchings, but soon social life claimed her and for a time she was a well known belle and famous as a beauty. Then she tired of social life and went on the stage. She appeared with Eleanor Robson and later played the leading role in "The Crossing." It was then that she announced that she was writing a book. The book was soon issued under a fine violet cover, with a fetching title, "The Girl in Question." Now the young authoress announces that she is writing a play in which she expects to star.

TRY THIS DINNER

Codfish Soup.

Boil a pound of fresh cod free from skin and bones and chop it fine. Return to the water in which it was boiled. Blend one tablespoonful of butter and one of flour, and add a cup of cold milk. Mix with the fish and stock. Just before serving add two hard-boiled eggs finely chopped.

Vegetables—Macaroni au Gratieu.

Cook half a pound of macaroni, broken in pieces, in boiling salted water till tender, adding one teaspoonful of butter. When done drain and let cool. Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, put in the cooked macaroni, add salt, pepper, a good dash of paprika, grate of nutmeg and moisten with one gill of good white sauce. Mix carefully so as not to break the macaroni and add one heaping tablespoonful of grated cheese. Pile this neatly in a buttered dish, pour over a little more white sauce, then sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese and fine bread crumbs. Pour over two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and bake in a hot oven for 10 minutes. Serve hot.

Meat—Roast Lamb a la Bretagne.

Remove the bone from a leg of lamb and stuff the cavity with bread crumbs, seasoning with minced parsley, marjoram, chopped onion and the beaten yolks of an egg. Cook it for an hour and a half, having first pricked the skin and rubbed it with garlic. Baste with the drippings, adding a little stock if necessary. Serve with lima beans seasoned and mashed.

Dessert—Apple Custards.

Steam two large tart apples that have been peeled and cored. Rub them through a sieve and add one cupful of milk, two tablespoons of butter, one-quarter of a cupful of sugar and the yolks of four eggs. Turn the mixture into baking cups, stand them in hot water and bake about twenty minutes. When they come from the oven pile the beaten white of egg on top of each cup, sprinkle with powdered sugar and place in the oven to brown slightly. Serve cold.

IN THE NURSERY

Proper Foods for the Children.

When baby comes to 6 months old he often does not appear satisfied with his food. It is then mothers make the dreadful mistake of giving their children solids, such as bread and milk, bread and gravy, and even potatoes and gravy.

All the baby requires is barely gruel instead of barley water.

At 9 months old two important items of food are added to a child's diet—namely, orange juice and raw beef juice.

After baby is 15 months old he should have stewed fruit for his midday meal every day. Apples, with a little brown sugar stewed to a sauce one day, prunes steamed until they are quite soft, then rubbed through a sieve to get rid of the skins and stones; another, gooseberry food that may be given as long as all the seeds have been carefully removed.

The best puddings for very young children are boiled and baked custards, made with new laid eggs, junket, milk jelly, rice boiled in milk to a pulp—once a week—fruit jelly, orange sponge.

A healthy thing for baby, after he is 18 months old, is spinach or tomato jelly. Make the jelly of half a pint of water in which spinach has been boiling for some time, and with the tomatoes boil them soft and rub through a sieve, taking care there is not a scrap of skin or a seed. Make the half pint of pulp into a jelly with a quarter of an ounce of gelatine.

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE.

The Good and Bad of Flirtation.

There are contradictory opinions as to whether flirtation is proper or not? "Personally, I love to flirt," remarked a young man, who professes to do the right thing always, and he added, "I believe most young men do. I wonder whether it is right or wrong."

Well, everything in flirtation depends upon the precise point where it stops.

There is nothing dangerous in that graceful game when it is played rightly, and made of an exchange of pretty speeches, charming attentions, and compliments. If flirtation is spontaneous, quite innocent, and witty, it is not only delightful and permissible, but even useful. For life is a duel, and flirtation teaches one to parry and thrust. It develops a ready wit, and the gift of repartee.

To be harmless it must be serious, and this should be distinctly understood by both parties. It must be a matter of admiration rather than affection between the two "flirts."

But when a flirtation means playing with fire, laying snares for a guileless young girl, and making her believe one loves her, that one is in earnest, then it is not only dangerous, but wicked. Every young man has a right to make himself agreeable to women, but if, at the same time, he tries to make them love him, whilst he himself has no serious intentions, he is acting in an unmanly and despicable manner.

To the Girl Who Has a Sweetheart.

Here are three bits of advice for the young woman who has met someone whom she believes she can love: 1. Remember there is no way so certain to lose you a true lover as to distrust him. Nothing "holds" a man as well as to let him feel that a good woman trusts him. 2. Don't make fun of serious things if you are trying to win the love of a really good man. 3. Be what you want him to think you are.

TIME'S CHANGES

By FRANK L. STANTON.

Times is changed," said the old lady, "an' the man to fill the office o' President o' these here United States, in this day an' time, has got to have the indigestion of a steam b'iler!

"He's got to eat alligator, an' say he likes it; he must wave the hotel waiter away an' say that nothin' less'n fried rattlesnake will set well on his stummick; he must look on 'possum as a Sunday privilege, an' roasted groundhog must be his heart's delight; he must wear goat skin breeches, shoes with terrapin-back soles, a cap 'coonskin, cowhide fer a chist-protector, an' the three-foot horn of a Texas steer fer a walkin'-stick; otherwise, in secret, he kin eat an' dress like an ordinary human.

"The fact is, he must, ez they say, do as Rome does, thouga Rome don't do no two things alike. It's true, he can't please all, but he kin try to, or die a-tryin'. The people like to be what you might call 'singular,' though they're always plural whar money is consarned—two tryin' to git one Time wuz you could split rails fer the presidency, but now you've got to walk a barbed-wire fence to git to it, an' afterwards put up extra wire to keep the office-seekers out.

"It's the curiousest age I ever lived in, an' gittin' more curious ever' day the Lord sends. When you ain't dodgin' ortermobiles you're in danger o' bein' sandbagged by an airship, an' ef you escape both the airship an' ortermobile, as like as not you'll be hit by a wireless message whilst enjoyin' of yerself in a bathtub! My o' man says the worl' is advancin' so rapid the angels theirselves must jist look on an' wonder an' admire! But it's my private opinion that they're kept out the way o' the world, bein' afeard it'll roll into heaven any minute, an' cuange the ol'-fashioned harps to phonygrafts, an' put 'lectric wings on all the saints.

"But I wuz a-talkin' 'bout Presidents, an' I might's well say, here an' now, that I'm glad no one in my family ever run fer that office. There's been a coroner, or two amongst us, an' a sheriff, an' a town marshal, but as fur as I know, not one o' 'em ever wuz peculiar enough to be President. But I won't make no brags on it, fer that's a gineration or two o' them hereabouts, an' this is a free country, an' that's jest no knowin' what'll happen 'fore we tell the sun good night fer the last time!"

the EVENING STORY

THE RUNAWAY

By Augustus Moore.

Just how Frank Cartwright came to meet, what he and we forever will call "the bride," though it is many years since he wooed and won her, makes quite a romantic story, if I am successful in telling it effectively.

Just after leaving Harvard, Frank attempted to become a poet by living the life which he concluded from the verses of Alfred de Musset that poet had lived. Do you know, now that he is gray and dyspeptic, he writes naughty lyrics for comic operas and semi-religious Christmas card verses, and is rich and unromantic.

All that winter of that first year the windows opposite were never apparently open, and, instead of a light burning in the pane, there hung a white card, inscribed thereon in black letters, "Apartments."

But one day the sign of distress was gone, the blinds were drawn up, and by the evening the windows were cleaned and the next morning showy muslin blinds were hung up and a few pots of evergreens brightened the rusty little balcony. It was not these, however, that being a man, attracted the attention of Frank Cartwright. He did not notice them until the day after the night we opened his windows and sat on the balcony and looked out on the blue night and the silver moon and smoked.

For some time nothing happened. And then—like a flash of forked lightning—a cry, the first high note of Nobile Signors, Salute! rent the air, and then to us all was as the silence of a cathedral till there came, as if out of heaven, the softer, more nightingale notes of Nobil donna e tanto onesta. We sat entranced, for whether is was the scene or the voice, or both, we could not decide, but it seemed the most beautiful moment of our lives. People had come out of the balconies and, at the end, there was some applause. And then we heard one window closed and the light in it went out, as if a star had fallen, and we knew from whence the voice had come.

Frank was the first to speak.

"Is it not wonderful?" he said.

"Fine voice," I answered.

"Fine man?" he replied, "it is marvelously beautiful. What do you call it?"

"Contralto, good range, and fairly even," said I laconically.

"Yes, I dare say," said he, "but does it not seem to you as if appealing to us and coming from a nobil donna."

"Why, my friend," said I, "it is in 'The Huguenots.'

"I don't care where it is," said the impulsive young poet; "it seemed to me as if specially chosen. The lady—"

"Probably a chorus girl rehearsing for a city dinner, guinea fee and find your own bus fares and gloves."

The next day he was at my office, very excited, and insisting he had come on business and must take me out. He said we must be alone, so we went into a graveyard and sat on a tomb, which, by the way, was very cold. Yes, he had seen her. I did not even pretend I did not know who he meant. He was very passionate and full of phrases. He had seen her at the window.

Tall and rounded as Juno; complexion like Dresden china; her hair like wheat gilded by the sun, rippled by the breeze; eyes, large and blue as a cornflower; a mouth like a poppy—an angel!

He said he must see me at his rooms tonight; that was his business! Would I promise, swear? I could see he was mad. I gave in.

That night she sang again. She certainly had a beautiful voice—a very beautiful voice, I was bound to admit, and, after that, he confided to me that, since seeing me, he had discovered the tragedy of her life. There was an aunt, or something, a grey-haired dragon in charge, someone whom he knew was guarding over her, who would keep him and his affinity apart. How false this was, will be seen. We talked of her late into the night, and the following day Frank called again. He had discovered her name—from the milkman or postman—I forget which. Anyway, it was Marenka, a Russian or Pole, we could not decide which—the surname I have never been able to spell correctly, though it sounds pretty. He had written her verses about herself, her singing, and, for all I know, Siberia.

"Do you think she will answer?"

"I decline to give up my time to thinking about anything so foolish."

He left, dissatisfied with my attitude and I did not see him that evening. The next day I did. He was in despair. He had no word, no sign. I was right. He was mad. The old aunt might have got the letter. Did I think she would be carried off? I fervently prayed she might, but did not say so to get rid of him, having persuaded him to write and apologize, and to watch carefully for two days for her going out unattended.

During those two days I was besieged by telegraph boys and district messengers, all bringing me news of his disappointment. At last he rang me up from a local call office. Yes, he had heard, she had written. He was rewarded. He read me the letter. She would be alone and dull, and, if he would call and have tea, and bring me, it would be kind.

I absolutely declined. I think he was glad then. I know he was afterwards. I consented, however, to be near him before, and after, this auspicious rendezvous which was to alter the whole current of his existence, to stand by him in his hour of trial, if trial it was to be, and in other words and under other circumstances to act as his best man. As things turned out he needed none. I next heard of the nightingale from Philadelphia. It was Frank Cartwright who wrote:

"What an adventure!

"I could not keep myself from dressing hours before the time of my appointment. I could not play the piano, could not sit still, smoke, write or walk about. I went out to kill time, but, whereas the pavements appeared to fly under my feet, all the clocks seemed to stand still.

"At last I could stand it no longer. I promised myself I would apologize if, anything, but wait I could not. I went out, round the square, and simply flew up her steps, knocked, was admitted, and asked to wait! Wait! I seemed to myself to have never done anything but wait! Anyway, I was there at last. That was the window her dear white hand opened. That was the curtain her golden head touched. That was the piano her little white-mouselike fingers ran over. And soon she would come in like an angel at that door, and hold out her long, lily arms to me, because there could be no shyness between our twin souls, and I would take her in my arms, and, holding her to my bosom, look into her turquoise eyes and press my lips against her pink carnation bud of a mouth. My heart beat against my ribs, my pulses throbbed like electric bells, every moment I felt she was coming, I listened. No—but I knew so fairylike a tread. I could not hear it. As I took two paces toward the window, I heard the door open behind me.

"As I turned I saw a little fair head above a vision in pink, with her back to me, closing the door. And then she swung round, dropping the pink cloak from her shoulders, and said:

"'Here is your singing bird.'

"I saw revealed to me the form of a woman masqueraded as Urbino in 'The Huguenots.'

"A sudden nervousness overcame me, but I pulled myself together, made my most profound bow, and said:

"'I am sent to apologize for my friend who admires you and your beautiful voice very much. He is called away. His wife is ill.'

"Then I backed myself out of the room. The nightingale was the aunt. I bolted back to my rooms, packed, and I am here in Philadelphia."

PARISIAN ARBITERS OF FASHION HAVE NEW MODES OF WEARING HAIR

NEW COIFFURES FROM PARIS.

These are the latest ways of wearing the hair as prescribed by the arbiters of fashion in Paris. They have taken the place of that fashion of winding the hair close around the head, which was in vogue in France last winter and obtained a certain acceptance in New York.

WEDDING DAY OMENS

By POLLY PAGET.

The bride who dreams of fairies the night before her marriage will be twice blessed.

If the groom carries a miniature horseshoe in his pocket he will always have good luck.

Don't wear an opal. Some people declare that opals are lucky. History proves the contrary.

The bride who finds a spider on her wedding dress may consider herself blessed.

No bride, if she would have good luck, should bake her own wedding cake. To do so invites ill-fortune.

Should a bride perchance see a funeral while being driven to the railway station prior to departing upon her wedding tour, she should order the driver to turn back and start over again, or else she will surely meet with bad luck.

No bride or groom should be given a telegram while on the way to church. It is a sign of evil.

To try on the wedding ring before the day of the marriage is considered very unlucky. And for the groom to drop it while placing it on the bride's finger is also held to betoken misfortune.

To lose the ring—or even to remove it from the finger—is another unlucky sign.

2 PER CENT GENIUS, 98 PER CENT HARD WORK

By FERDINAND C. IGLEHART.

Mr. Edison was once asked to give a definition of genius, and answered: "Two per cent is genius and 98 per cent is hard work."

When some one remarked to him that genius was inspiration, he said: "The inspiration of genius is perspiration."

The answer was not a correct definition of genius, for he evidently placed too low an estimate upon the value of native endowment, and yet it emphasized his estimate of the necessity of application for success in any lifework. He had more than 2 per cent of genius himself, but it was unquestionably his enormous amount of labor which made his genius fruitful.

On being asked his age, he said he was over a hundred; that while there were supposed to be but eight working hours each day, he has worked nineteen hours out of twenty-four for twenty-five years in succession. He had an idea that sleep is largely a matter of habit, and that people could get along with one-half the number of hours the average person devotes to sleep. In this opinon he is mistaken.

One reason why he had this idea is that the tides of life in him run very strong, some of his ancestors lived to be over 100 years of age. There is perhaps no public man of our time who has been so intense and constant a toiler as Mr. Edison has been.

Hereditary traits have much to do in determining the height to which a person can arise in this world. Wings are important things, as well as ladders in getting above the herd, but it takes an immense amount of energy to work the wings. Many of the gaps that indicate life's inequalities can be closed up by hard work. Men of ordinary ability, by working hard enough on the ladders have climbed to the top of the very tall spires.

NURSERY IDEAS

Discipline of Children.

For the good of the child, if for no other reason, discipline should begin as soon as a child is old enough to manifest its own will. That is earlier than most people suppose. Discipline should be conformed altogether to the good of the child and not to the comfort and convenience of the parent, although these also are to be considered.

Make a few simple rules for the government of the child, and enforce them. They can be added to as the child grows in strength and knowledge. And enforcement of these rules will be better through the means of commendation or reward for obedience than of punishment for disobedience. Lead the child onward rather than try to force it forward.

Treatment for Croup.

Some children suffer very much from croup, and, though a doctor should be sent for speedily, remedies should be at once resorted to while waiting for him. When possible the little sufferer should be immediately put into a hot bath, but should there be any delay in getting the bath ready a flannel wrung out of hot water should be wrapped in a blanket wrung out of hot water and replaced with another as soon as it shows signs of cooling.

Care of Children's Teeth.

Children's teeth frequently decay because they are too close together. They should pay regular visits to the dentist, so that he may see the teeth, even if there is not any toothache, in order that the teeth may be kept in good condition. This is as important with the first as with the second teeth.

When a Child Cuts Its Finger.

When a child has a cut finger first wash it thoroughly in hot water, then spread a little boracic ointment on a piece of lint and lay it on the injured part. Cover the lint with a soft rag, and tie the whole up carefully.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY

Doing Up Chintz Articles.

At cleaning time it is useful to know how to do up chintz. Shake the chintz and soak in cold water, wring out and wash through two warm soapy waters. Rinse in plenty of cold water, adding a little vinegar to the last water. Starch in very thick starch to which has been added some white melted soap and shredded white wax. If the articles are small, roll tightly in a dry towel and put aside for an hour or two. Iron on the right side with a hot iron. When the chintz is dry, lay on the table with only the sheet between, and polish with a hot polishing iron.

Cleaning Carpet on the Floor.

The following is a good formula for cleaning a carpet without taking it up:

Into one and a half gallons of hot water shave one bar of white soap; add two tablespoonfuls of ammonia, two tablespoonfuls of borax and four tablespoonfuls of soap powder. With a brush scrub as you would a wooden floor; use a small board with which to scrape up the lather. Have with you a bucket of pure water and use with a rag, soaking up the best part of the than most people suppose. Discipline water. If the room is left open to air, in a few hours the carpet will dry and you will find it looks like new.

Care of Sponges.

Sponges should be hung where the fresh air will reach them and where they will dry thoroughly. If possible, the sponge should be dried in the bright sunshine, and thoroughly scalded now and then in soda and water.

Anti-Rust Needle Receptacle.

Persons who live in damp localities should put their needles into small dry bottles, with a sound, well-fitting cork, instead of into a needle-book or pincushion. Kept this way they will never rust.

DECORATION DAY.

Half a century from war time, this nation still is celebrating Memorial day, the day set apart for laying upon the graves of those who fought and have died the flowers of respect and remembrance.

And, lest any think that the passage of time is dissipating the memory of what these men have done for their country, as it is softening the hardness of war time passions and wiping out the bitterness of war time hatreds, let it be said that never in all its history has Memoral day had more tender significance than it has today.

Indeed, though its spirit has changed slightly, it is more precious and more tender than it ever was before. There is, today, a little more thought for the living than there used to be, though not less thought for the dead. In the early years of the Memorial day observation the veterans, who were boys in war time, most of them, were in their prime. Though many limped from the effects of wounds, though many a sleeve was empty, though many a wooden leg bore testimony to the prowess of rebel lead, and though many of the marchers in Decoration day parades were weakened in body by the exposures and hardships of the battlefield, there were more who were sturdy and strong and active. The hand of time had but just begun to paint its record, touching brown hair and black with white. They were men in the full vigor of life, amply able to care for themselves and their loved ones, and with long years of activity before them. So public thought, of necessity, turned more to the honored graves and less to the stalwart ranks of marching veterans.

Today, though the memory of those who sleep in their last bivouac is cherished most tenderly, there is greater tenderness and greater thought for those who march in the thinning ranks. They cannot be with us much longer. Their rosters of the dead each year grow with increasing rapidity. Their ranks are shrunken more and more as the swift-flying years bring Decoration days closer and closer together. Soon the last veteran will be gone; and that is the thought which gives Memorial day new significance in these later years.

The army of the dead is gaining recruits too rapidly. Its ranks are nearly full, and within a few years its solid columns will go marching down the years, keeping pace with the glorious history of the country they saved and leaving on earth nothing but a memory of their sacrifices.

As the ranks of the living are mowed down by the inexorable scythe and the ranks of the dead grow complete, Memorial day will gain new and tender significance with the years, and the memory of those who lately marched with the living, but who now sleep on the eternal camping ground, will grow more and more fragrant.

Without abating respect for those who have gone, therefore, Memorial day should and will take on new consideration for those who live. May the winter of their lives be sunlit and mellow; may the frosts of age touch them tenderly; may the end come in the name of rest and peace; and may their final sleep in the bosom of their fathers be sweet in the knowledge that their graves will be kept green and their memory fresh through all the ages to come.

MINNESOTA, NORTH AND SOUTH.

Winnebago City Enterprise: These Northern Minnesota papers that are claiming so vigorously that Southern Minnesota is doing all it can to hinder the growth and prosperity of Northern Minnesota have another guess coming to them. We are all proud of our state with its many magnificent resources, and no one is doing any knocking down here. The hammer brigade seems to be chiefly confined to the pine woods section.

We are glad to make this interesting comment the basis of a statement that nobody in Northern Minnesota believes that the people of Southern Minnesota have any will to do harm to the people of Northern Minnesota.

If Northern Minnesota has been neglected by the state it is no fault of the people of Southern Minnesota. If their representatives in the legislature have been selfish and oppressive, it is the representatives who are at fault, and not the people.

However, it may be a good time to say that the representatives of Southern Minnesota in the legislature have been selfish and oppressive, and that with a few shining exceptions they have shown little appreciation of the vast benefits to all parts of the state that would come out of a proper development of Northern Minnesota.

The chief trouble is and has been that the representatives of Southern Minnesota have been many and the representatives of Northern Minnesota have been few. A legislative apportionment that was outgrown years ago leaves the people of the northern two-thirds of the state ridiculously under-represented. The appeal for reapportionment has been disregarded or rebuffed. And this was not because the people of Southern Minnesota insisted upon having a larger share in the control of state lawmaking than the people of Northern Minnesota, but because the senators and representatives from Southern Minnesota have killed reapportionment for the simple reason that changing the districts might cut some of them out of their jobs, or make re-election a harder problem than it is.

If Southern Minnesota will see to it that its representatives in the legislature work honestly for fair play between the sections, and will elect men who won't mind imperiling their own political fortunes in the cause of statewide justice, then there will be no question of enmity between Northern Minnesota and Southern Minnesota.

There is no enmity between the people of the two sections. They are all citizens of one of the greatest commonwealths in the Union. They all take pride in its greatness and hope for its growth and development.

But there is a little matter between the people of Northern Minnesota and the representatives from Southern Minnesota that needs to be straightened out; and the people of Northern Minnesota would be greatly obliged if the people of Southern Minnesota would help straighten it out.

As to the "hammer brigade," that is indeed busy in Northern Minnesota; but it is busy building up, and has no time for tearing down. It is doing the best it can with the tools at hand, but it is greatly handicapped by state neglect. If Southern Minnesota would lift that handicap, its help would be greatly appreciated.

THE MEN HIGHER UP.

The state of Illinois is very busy with an investigation into the wherefore of Senator Lorimer's election to the United States senate.

Grand juries are busy indicting men charged with taking money for their votes as representatives of the sovereign people of Illinois. District attorneys are busy receiving the confessions of those who betrayed the people for a price, and who seek by making a clean breast of it to save themselves from the wrath to come.

William S. Lorimer, charged with being the beneficiary of these negotiations in which official integrity has been the subject of barter and sale, is busy defending himself and assailing his enemies. His speech in the senate Saturday was rather over-full of the abuse of others, and rather lacking in plausible explanation of his own situation.

It is a very important and significant matter. If, as he says, Lorimer is the victim of persecution, no doubt he will be glad to have the investigation made so thorough that every fact relating to the affair shall be brought to light.

If, on the other hand, Lorimer did buy his seat in the senate, as others have done before him, the matter is still more significant and important.

It is important that the pitiful members of the Illinois legislature who sold their honor for a handful of money should be detected and punished.

It is important that Lorimer, if his seat in the senate is the product of bribery and corruption, shall be scourged out of that seat and his humiliation made an object lesson for the benefit of others whose ambitions outride their scruples.

But above and beyond the contemptible underlings, of whom Lorimer is one if his seat was purchased, the march of investigation should not be stayed until it uncovers those higher up who supplied the money which made the Illinois legislature reek with scandal, or who, by their interest in pending legislation, make it an object to Lorimer to use his own money.

Seats in the senate are not commonly bought merely to gratify the hunger of the purchasers for notoriety. Big Business, seeking special privileges, usually is back of such deals.

What particular branch of big business will be discovered at the root of the Lorimer case?

THE CHURCH AND SOCIETY.

It has become very clear of late that one reason why the churches do not grow as much as they should in strength and influence is that they do not associate themselves closely enough with the vital movements for the good of society that are calling forth the best public spirit and the most patriotic endeavors of people everywhere.

That is why The Herald often has urged a closer relationship between the churches and the fight for economic liberty. Men and women of patriotic purpose, who wish to give their lives to the service of humanity, too often find that the only outlets for their energies which promise tangible results are utterly foreign to the organized church. Though they are Christian men and women who would gladly work in the name of the Savior, they find the church holding aloof from these positive movements toward better things, and of necessity they must cast their lot in with non-religious organizations which are attacking concrete evils.

It is a pleasure indeed, therefore, to note that the Presbyterian general assembly, in its session at Atlantic City last Saturday, took a positive and an advanced stand on the pressing problems of the day, problems closely related to the cause of economic liberty, of industrial freedom and of government by and for the people.

The resolutions presented by the committee on social problems and adopted by the assembly ring true, and if the Presbyterian church will make them its social creed and exert its machinery to make the demands into laws, its influence will be greatly strengthened. The program of reforms proposed forms a platform on which every believer in the common people, every lover of liberty and every patriotic citizen, can get together in the battle for the common good. These are the resolutions adopted by the Presbyterian general assembly, and they do credit to the wisdom, patriotism and religion of that body:

> The church declares that the getting of wealth must be in obedience to Christian ideals, and that all wealth, from whatever source acquired, must be held or administered as a trust from God for the good of fellow man. The church protests against undue desire for wealth, untempered pursuit of gain, and the immoderate exaltation of riches; and calls for a more equitable distribution of wealth.
> The church declares for the abolition of child labor—that is, the protection of children from exploitation in industry and trade, and from work that is dwarfing, degrading and morally unwholesome.
> The church declares for the employment of the methods of conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes.
> The church declares for the release of every worker from work one day in seven, and it declares further for adequate protection of working people from dangerous machinery and objectionable conditions of labor.
> The church declares for some provision by which the burden imposed by injuries and deaths from industrial accidents shall not be permitted to rest upon the injured person or his family.

The spirit of the Golden Rule breathes through these resolutions, and the spirit of man's responsibility to his fellow man and to society. It will be encouraging if other denominations follow this progressive and public-spirited action by the Presbyterian church.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

PROHIBITION IN TENNESSEE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The enclosed letter was received in reply to an inquiry sent to Cleveland, Tenn., to find out whether the statements were true made in a letter published in The Herald that conditions under prohibition were awful and more demoralizing to boys than under license.

In every case this traced for definite and reliable information the newspaer letters knocking prohibition have been found unreliable, yours truly,

GEORGE L. BRIGGS.

The letter follows:

"To George L. Briggs, Duluth, Minn., Dear Sir: Yours of the 5th overlooked, but will answer at this date.

"Prohibition as a whole is not a failure in Tennessee. In most parts of the state the law has been enforced. Where it has been enforced the results have been very gratifying. Drunkenness has been decreased by a large per cent. The temptation has been removed from the novice and it has become more and more difficult for the boy just leaving home to secure intoxicants.

"As to 'blind pigs' of course we have some in our state, I might say many. We have three large cities, Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga where there has been no effort on the part of the city officials to enforce the temperance laws and the result has been almost open defiance of the law. But we consider a criminal blind pig nothing to be compared to a legalized saloon octopus.

"The city of Knoxville has been greatly benefited by the abolition of saloons, very sincerely,

THE GOPHER AND THE CANTEEN

To the Editor of The Herald:

In Saturday's paper Guy Eaton denies that there has been a canteen on the training ship Gopher. What he may mean by a canteen we know not; but we known, from several sources, that beer was sold to the boys over and under 21 years old every day while out on their practice cruise, up to a pint apiece a day.

If this is not a canteen what is one?

Does Mr. Eaton deny this fact? The representative of the W. C. T. U., in the Methodist district conference, said:

"It is against the law of the United States to allow a canteen on a ship of the United States navy. This ship is under state authority, but are our boys entitled to less protection than United States sailors?

"It is against the law of Minnesota to sell liquor without a license, or to sell it at all to minors.

"Unless public opinion is sufficiently felt this will probably be repeated this and every summer. Do you want your boys under such influence?"

These are the resolutions passed by the conference:

"Whereas, It has been certified to us that the training ship Gopher has had for the last two years in its practice cruise a canteen which sells beer to the boys who are in training for the defense of the state, without regard to age and contrary to law, therefore, we, Methodist women gathered in district missionary conference, do earnestly resolve:

"That officers set over young men under any kind of public military training should set them an example of obedience to law.

"That conditions under which young men are taught to serve the state or nation should not be such that they are likely to come out with vicious or injurious habits which may render them worse citizens.

"That sobriety, virtue and respect for law are the bulwarks of a state, and if in her citizen soldiers and sailors these are undermined, her defense will fail in time of need."

We demand the abolition of the illegal canteen on the training ship Gopher.

Decoration Day.

We have gathered bright flowers, from hillside, from valley,
To place on our altars of love today;
But no needs we can do, will add to their laurels,
We cannot repay them by aught we may say.

II.

In fancy we see them, our fathers, our brothers,
When life was so young, and when they were so fair;
When with kiss of a mother, a father, and loved ones,
They went out, full of life, to do and to dare.

III.

The hopes of a lifetime they counted as nothing,
They rallied for country, for freedom, for home;
In the spirit of duty they have answered that roll call,
The roll call that's made by the Master alone.

IV.

Let us reverently cover their graves o'er with flowers,
God's emblem of love, resurrection, and light;
Let us pray that they heard the "well done" of their maker,
That their lives, over there, know no night.

V.

Let us cherish the memory of all of our loved ones,
Who have gone on ahead, to that dim farther side;
We shall meet them again when our barque shall go drifting,
So silently drifting, on and out with the tide.

—C. O. Couillard.

The English Cold Morning Bath.

"A plain American" in the June American Magazine: Every one knows about the tradition of the cold morning bath. All Englishmen mention the fact in a casual manner that they have had one at least once each day, but I have wondered if they did not protest too much. How can any one prove that they actually get into this aforesaid cold bath? That a 200-pound man can get into a zinc pan 18 inches in diameter at the bottom, or prance about the great bilge keel which surrounds it, does not seem reasonable.

After getting out of a fairly warm bed many times, and trying to do acrobatic acts in tepid water with a damp atmosphere of about 40 deg. in a stone-walled room with the concentrated cold of 400 or more long years hermetically sealed in a musty old castle, I decided to fake the cold bath, as I now believe all Englishmen do.

It's an easy game, and this is the way to do it. Jump from the bed and land, if possible, clear of the stone floor on any old stray rug or piece of carpet. Dress hurriedly and completely and draw a razor over your blue chop called a chin, staunch the blood with your own pocket handkerchief—don't use the bath towel; then drag the zinc bath-tub to the center of the floor, lay a bath towel or two spread out beside it, then throw the soap as hard as possible into the water six or seven times (this gives the effect of a natural English bath splash), slap the ends of another towel in the water, wet your hands (no matter if it does make 'em ache—you must do this) and slap them on the towels to represent wet footprints. This done, you can look the world in the face—the kind R. L. Stevenson refers to.

ROOSEVELT'S RETURN.

American Magazine: The really interesting question now is: What is going to happen when the colonel once more stamps his native heath? I make allowances for changes in public sentiment. You have only got to remember the sudden eclipse of Admiral Dewey to realize how fatal it is to prophesy the long-continued popularity of any man. Why, a year ago Mr. Taft was popular. But the colonel presents a character new in American history and his future may be as contrary to precedent as he is defiant of it himself. Usually an ex-president is dead politically when he leaves office.

His following, as far as I can make out, is largely nonpartisan. It is purely personal and it is the largest personal following that any political leader ever has had in this country. A Tammany leader told me not long ago that Roosevelt could get half the young Tammany vote as against any Democratic candidate. This following may be scattered by some mischance. But this is not a good thing for any sporting man to bet on; for, if there is one thing that we know about the colonel, that is that things which would destroy an ordinary man bounce off him. His most reckless speeches to him do him no harm in the hearts of his admirers. He steps into every pitfall set for him and steps lightly out, while his enemy, hastily following to dispatch him, has a leg broken in the trap.

Think of the men and institutions that have hated him and have wished to destroy him—Hanna, Whitney, McKinley, Quay, Platt, Foraker, Cannon, Aldrich, Hale, most of the lawyers, most of the members of the supreme court and the inferior federal judiciary, Pierpont Morgan, Harriman, J. J. Hill, the great industrial corporations, the railway companies, the banks many powerful newspapers, college presidents, organization Republicans, organization Democrats—and altogether they have not only stopped his political career, but they have actually accelerated it.

If he were a little older we might know what to do with him, but he is in his prime and he is charged with energy as when he left Harvard. The comments of Englishmen writing from Africa are principally about his boyish vivacity and his astonishing physical vigor. His enemies, and they are the bitterest enemies that mortal man ever made, can only hope for chance to end his strange political career—chance or the habit of the American people building a triumphal arch hurriedly out of bricks at the hero when he has passed through.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

The Zenith Mining company at Ely is now on a better footing than ever before, its reorganization meaning business. The officers now are: Edwin Ellis, Ashland, president; George C. Greenwood, Duluth, vice president; J. H. James, Duluth, general manager; N. J. Willy, secretary and treasurer. Capt. Nick Cowling has been placed in charge of the mining and machinery will be installed. Among other new stockholders are said to be H. M. Bradley and H. H. Myers of Duluth and C. H. Bradley and H. E. Tremain of Bay City, Mich.

The most expensive gun ever sold to a Duluth man was purchased recently by Ned Culver from a Syracuse firm for $400.

At the annual meeting of the Clean Land company, officers were elected as follows: President, Giles Gilbert, Duluth; vice president, E. K. Wood, McBride, Mich.; treasurer, F. W. Higgins, Olean, N. Y.; secretary, Frank S. Smith. These officers, with Charles d'Autremont, compose the directorate. The annual meeting of the Higgins Land company was also held and the following officers elected: President, F. W. Higgins; vice president, W. M. Smith; treasurer, Miles W. Barse; secretary, F. S. Smith; directors, the foregoing and Giles Gilbert.

As far as officially heard from, Herman Oppel of the firm of Oppel & Sons, this city, has a cinch on the fine split bamboo trout rod offered by The Herald. He went fishing yesterday morning right in town and brought up eleven trout, the three largest being as follows: Length 19 inches, weight 3¼ pounds; length 16 inches, weight 2¼ pounds; length 14 inches, weight 1⅛ pounds. These fish were caught with a six-ounce split rod at the mouth of Tischer's creek at the East end, and it took Mr. Oppel just half an hour to so tire out the biggest one that he could land him.

The contract has been let by Palmer & Hall to Contractor Christianson for the new Methodist church at Lester Park. It will cost, complete, about $5,500, and will be a fine structure.

FOR NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

Middle River Pioneer: From all indications the summer convention of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Crookston on June 1, 2, and 3 will be attended by a large and representative body of men who will take such action on matters of import to the North that all the rest of the state will sit up and take notice.

Cass Lake Times: June 1, 2 and 3, will be red-letter days for Crookston, and the results will be far-reaching enough to give a bright coloring to the entire state. Northern Minnesota is coming to its own.

Two Harbors Journal-News: North Minnesota would sound a heap lot better to some of us than Northern Minnesota. A definite line crosswise of the state instead of an imaginary one as at present would turn the trick.

Carlton Vidette: What Northern Minnesota needs, now, is more advertising, more representation in the halls of our state congress, more appropriations for improvements of roads and bridges, more agents for development, more brains working to further the interests of this part of the state. There are so many opportunities here for the betterment of those who are here and of those who are not here but should be; there are so many thousands of places here yet for happy, prosperous homes and successful and wealth-producing young Americans, and there are so many of that class of needy ones in other parts who, only require to be placed in touch with the golden wealth that is here awaiting them—that to attempt to enumerate even half of them would pall on the largest single institution to itemize.

Deer River News. There is luck in Crookston. Remember? It was a convention in that city that gave drainage a successful boost.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Some time all of the farming land in the northern part of the state will be under private ownership and the price will be high. Then you will be sorry you didn't do it when you had the chance and the price was low. Better connect up with a forty or two even at this late date, and you'll never be sorry for it.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Keep a good eye on the doings of the development congress to be held at Crookston next month, and you will learn that the northern part of Minnesota is a vast empire that presents greater opportunity than any other section of the country.

Pullman Rates.

Washington Herald: Did you fondly imagine, gentle and, perhaps, unsophisticated reader, when you read a few weeks back that the Pullman company had been ordered to reduce its upper berth rates in certain territory that it would do it without a struggle? The odds are heavy that you did not—knowing the Pullman outfit as you do—and you were right. It is going to resist the suggestion to the limit of its resources. Why, if the Pullman company submitted in this crisis, by and by somebody would be advancing the idea that it ought to pay its porters living salaries, instead of looking to the public to fee them generously and handsomely as it travels.

The Pullman company knows as surely as the traveling public knows, that it is an outrage to charge the same fare for an upper berth that it does for a lower. And as the fare for the lower is, in nine case out of ten, utterly unreasonable, the fare for the upper is unspeakably so. And yet the Pullman company is not going to tolerate the proposal to reduce its upper berth fee—not this side of the very ultimate court of resort, at least.

We can only hope the courts will force it to do the right thing, in spite of itself. We believe this is a good time to bring the Pullman company to its senses, anyway. And we believe, moreover, that it will be brought. This is not a good day for bad trusts, and it may not be any too good a day for good ones. It would help some to see one of the worst of the lot made to behave itself.

A Prayer for All Employers.

The June American Magazine contains the following prayer by Walter Rauschenbusch for all employers:

"We invoke Thy grace and wisdom, O Lord, upon all men of good will who employ and control the labor of men. Amid the numberless irritations and anxieties of their position, help them to keep a quiet and patient temper, and to rule firmly and wisely, without harshness and anger. Since they hold power over the bread, the safety and the hopes of the workers, may they wield their powers justly and with love, as older brothers and leaders in the great fellowship of labor.

"Suffer not the heavenly light of compassion for the weak and the old to be quenched in their hearts. When they are tempted to follow the ruthless ways of others, and to sacrifice human health and life for profit, do thou strengthen their will in the hour of need, and bring to naught the counsels of the heartless. May they not sin against the Christ by using the bodies and souls of men as mere tools to make things, forgetting the human hearts and longings of these their brothers. Save them from repressing their workers into sullen submission and helpless fear.

"Raise up among us a new type of employers who shall be makers of men as well as of goods. Give us true captains of industry who will use their higher ability and knowledge to lift the workers to increasing independence and vigor, and who will train their helpers for the larger responsibilities of the coming age. Give us men of faith who will look beyond the strife of the present and catch a vision of a nobler organization of our work, when all shall still follow the leadership of the ablest, but no longer in fear, but by the glad will of all, and when none shall be master and none shall be man, but all shall stand side by side in a strong and righteous brotherhood of work."

REDUCTION DOWNWARD.

Indianapolis News: Mr. Payne, chairman of the ways and means committee, is the latest Republican statesman to attempt to show that the present tariff is lower than the one replaced. In his recent speech he said:

> The average ad valorem under the Dingley law on dutiable goods alone for the whole period was 45.76 per cent. Under the present law it is 42.20 per cent. On the whole importations, both dutiable and free, under the Dingley law it was 25.18 per cent. Under the present law it was 20.98 per cent, 4½ per cent difference in the equivalent ad valorem, a reduction in the equivalent ad valorem of the present law from the Dingley law of 17.6 per cent. We revised the tariff downward.

A pitiful showing this would be, even if it told the whole story. These results might have been attained by putting a few comparatively unimportant articles on the free list, while leaving the duties on necessities unchanged. As the old tariff was so high as to provoke universal protest, the people are hardly to be expected to be satisfied with rates which can only be said to be slightly lower.

But fortunately there is at hand the government's report dealing with our foreign trade for the first nine months of the present fiscal year, during all of which time, except one month, the new tariff has been in operation. Taking the nine months of the fiscal years of 1908, 1909 and 1910, we find that the duties on dutiable goods averaged, respectively, 42.7, 42.8 and 42.5 per cent. Thus there has been practically no reduction at all. On dutiable goods the rates are practically the same for the three years. Counting in all imports, both free and dutiable, the showing for the new tariff is slightly better. In 1908 the per cent was 23.9, in 1909 it was 22.7, and in 1910 it was 21.5. But even so it is impossible to argue from this that there has been any redemption of the party pledge. Nor do the figures agree with those given by Mr. Payne. But they are official, nevertheless.

What do such "reductions" amount to, when compared with the great increases in the cotton and wood schedules, increases which bear heavily on the people, and which really count? How can Republican orators expect to make the people believe that there has been a reduction when the government figures show that the rate on dutiable goods is almost exactly the same as under the old law, and that the rate on all imports is only a little lower? When they demanded and voted for reduction, they had in mind a real reduction, and not one that is—if it was effected at all—hardly appreciable.

The work was done by the standpatters, in the face of earnest warnings and strenuous opposition, and they will have to abide by it. They were told just what would happen, but they went blindly ahead, apparently sure that the people would meekly accept whatever they chose to offer. Now that they find that they were mistaken, they are making pathetic attempts to show that they did, what many of them did not intend or desire to do, did not think they were doing—namely, revise the tariff downward. But the people know better, know that the Payne law is what Mr. Foss called it Saturday, a humbug game. It can not be defended except by repudiating the party pledge. Mr. Payne has been no more successful than others have been. The people asked for a revision downward. At the most, they have got a bogus reduction—one in name only.

Stockholders.

Ellis O. Jones in Life: In school the other day a young lad was asked what he would rather be when he grew up.

"A stockholder," he replied. He spoke more wisely than he knew.

A stockholder is a wonderful being. He has nothing whatever to do. He never has to be at a certain place at a certain time. He is never arrested and is never bathed in immunity. Sometimes railroad engineers are arrested when the property of stockholders runs over a man; sometimes railroad directors are sent to jail for working in the interest of stockholders, but these things do not worry the stockholders. Many of them do not keep track of such things at all. Others keep track of them only by proxy. The stockholder is interested only in the annual report which he doesn't understand and which he doesn't care to understand if it is accompanied by a dividend check.

Baccalaureate Sermon to Students of the Normal School.

Says the Real Test of True Greatness Is Service.

The baccalaureate sermon to the twenty-two graduates of the state normal school, was delivered at the school yesterday by the Rev. George R. Gebauer, pastor of the First Unitarian church. "True Greatness" was Mr. Gebauer's subject.

Mr. Gebauer said in part:

"The erratic genius of Nietsche would make power the standard of life; to him the superman is the powerful individual. But the notion of power needs qualification; power must be power for good and the true superman is the one who can serve the world. In the words of Jesus, 'the greatest among you shall be your servant.' We can see now why the world has honored its great military heroes, its conquerors, even its despots. They deserved glory and honor in so far as they tried to serve their country, the world, humanity. The world's great servants. They are not great because they were the masters of their fellows, but simply because only as masters they could serve them. Frederic II of Prussia was merely a big man by his generation up, he proved that he was great, when he declared 'I am but the first servant of the state.' Roosevelt is not great because he could assert his personality with a club; we honor him only because we believe, that he tried to serve his country even if he had to use the big stick. Helpfulness then is the test of all true greatness. And it is intrinsic rather than extrinsic. In the sight of God he is great who simply uses his gifts in the best way he may for the good of his fellows. There is therefore greatness for the weak as well as for the strong, greatness for men and woman, for child and adult. There is the opportunity for true greatness in every honest sphere of life. For one this sphere is within the walls of the home, for another outside; but in each sphere the test is in efficiency, the sort of efficiency which makes the world happier and better, or perhaps it were truer to say, which makes the world happier by making it better and more efficient.

The Field of Labor.

And now, all this brings us face to face with your sphere in life. As you leave this place which has been to you truly an alma mater, a benign mother you will soon enter the field of labor here and there throughout the state. The work will have its sorrows and joys, its bitter and sweet, as every calling in life has. But beneath all your experiences good and bad, pleasant and unpleasant there remains for you, for your inspiration and your consolation the thought that you are serving in a great cause. Except you are uplifted by the thought of your work, except you see that it is after all a great thing to be even a little country school ma'am, your lot in life will hardly be an enviable one. Hold fast to the truth that there is no greater profession no nobler calling than to be a guider and teacher of the growing generation. And learn to approach your work in the motherly attitude of mind, with a love that is no respecter of persons and is filled with sympathy even for the naughtiest dirtiest little mischief. Cultivate a smiling face and a firm grip and never let the sun go down upon your wrath, be it ever so just. Make teaching a Christian science and a religious art.

"If you walk in the light of your service and do your work in the spirit of love, you are working with Christ the great teacher and servant of man."

The class play, "Pygmalian and Galatea," will be given by the women of the class this evening. Examinations will be concluded Wednesday and the remainder of the week will be devoted to class and social diversions. The juniors and seniors will give a picnic in Lester Park on Thursday.

The commencement address will be delivered Friday by S. D. Harvey of Menominee, Wis. The diplomas will be presented by S. H. Somsen of Winona, Minn.

FIFTH LECTURE IN THE SERIES

The fifth lecture in the series which are being delivered by Mon. Benedict Papot will be given in the high school auditorium tonight instead of next Saturday night as other engagements will render impossible in Duluth the presence of Mon. Papot on the day on which the lecture was to have been delivered.

Tonight's address will concern "Naturalism and Its Issues," with the following sub-divisions:

A—The Break in 1830.
Balzac, as an exponent of sociology.
Dumas, fils.
B—Second Empire.
Philanthropy: Electric school—Novels: Merimee-Fromentin: Fromen-Flaubert.
Poetry: Leconte de Lisle.—Baudelaire.
Theater—Labriche. Halevy.
Paris — Improvements — Art — The Working Man.
C—Gambetta.
Third empire—Influence of the Sociality Theory—Zola—Becque.

The fourth lecture in the series was given at the high school assembly hall Saturday evening. The lecture dealt with the period following the French revolution when the bourgeoise was assuming wealth and power. At that time, said the lecturer, the greatest fight for the sanctity of the home was waged with the drama as the medium for spreading ideas. The prurient French play which many people associate with French drama is not representative of the drama of the people for the stage in France has been the medium of preaching national lessons. It was begun in 1830 by Auge who defended the sanctity of the family and he was followed by Dumas, who made the fight for a single standard of morality and was one of the world's greatest moralists. After the period of the great success of the bourgeoise there came a reaction against the commonplace in life and romanticism came in to the life of the people, and students, artists, musicians and philosophers tried to get away from the humdrum of life. Then the famous Bohemian life of Paris had its start.

Noah's Trials Expensive.

Minot, N. D., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has cost Ward county the sum of about $15,000 to try Robert Noah and convict him of murder, the two trials entailing a cost of about $7,000 each so far. In the last case the cost of jurymen was exceedingly high, there being over 100 men called in from all parts. Noah came from Kentucky and local people would have been better pleased had he remained there.

MILWAUKEE MEN ARE LOOKING FOR A ROUTE.

Devils Lake, N. D., June 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—A party representing the St. Paul, Chicago & Milwaukee road has been spending several days in this vicinity, supposedly to look up prospects of securing a right-of-way from the south. Some time ago it was reported that the road intended building from Watertown, S. D., to this city. Now that the Soo line is also building in here, there is every reason to believe the St. Paul line will also come in.

Mars Flies Some.

Joplin, Mo., May 30.—J. C. Mars, the aviator, in a thrilling flight in an aeroplane here, soared upwards to a height of 1,300 feet, flew across country until his machine was a speck against the sky, after 22 minutes returned to the aviation field, and finished with a glide downward of 500 feet.

In a flight of 21 minutes, Charles F Willard covered twenty miles.

GREAT FEAT BY CURTISS

Aviator Makes Albany-New York Trip and Wins Big Prize.

Paulhan's Great Flight Is Beaten for Speed and Danger.

New York, May 30—Glen H. Curtiss flew from Albany to New York city in an aeroplane Sunday, winning the $10,000 prize offered by the New York World. He covered the distance of 137 miles in 2 hours and 32 minutes and came to earth as lightly as a pigeon. His average speed for the distance—54.06 miles an hour—surpassed any record ever made by an aeroplane in long distance flight, and in its entirety his feat perhaps eclipses anything man has attempted in an heavier-than-air machine.

The start was made from Albany at 7:03 a. m. The weather conditions were as nearly perfect as the most fastidious aviator could demand. One hour and 29 minutes later he had made his stopping place near Poughkeepsie, where there was an hour's intermission. Resuming his flight at 9:26 he sped southward and landed within the boundary of Manhattan island at 10:35 o'clock.

Only 100 yards north of the point on which the craft settled, stretched Spuyten Duyvil creek, separating Manhattan island from the mainland. Had he failed to cross this his flight would have been in vain, but as he swept over it, the prize was his. Thence to Governor's island his task was but a whim of triumph and the concluding lap of a race already won.

Eclipses Paulhan's Flight.

Paulhan's flight from London to Manchester—186 miles—exceeded the Curtiss feat in distance, but not in speed and danger. The Frenchman's average was 44.3 miles an hour, and below him lay English meadow land. Curtiss followed the winding course of the Hudson, with jutting headlands, wooded slopes and treacherous palisades. He swung high over the bridge at Poughkeepsie, dipped at times within fifty feet of the river's broad surface and jockeyed like a falcon at the turns.

Only once did his craft show signs of rebellion. This was off Storm King, near West Point, where at a height of nearly 1,000 feet, a treacherous gust struck his planes. The machine dropped like a rock for forty feet and tilted perilously, but Curtiss, always cool, by adroit manipulation of his levers brought renewed equilibrium.

An Ideal Husband.

WANTS CHANGE IN MEMORIAL DAY

Massachusetts G. A. R. Commander Says Movement Will Be Started.

Boston, May 30.—Asserting that it is better not to observe Memorial day at all than to make of it a Fourth of July, Commander J. Willard Brown of the Massachusetts department of the G. A. R., in a statement declares in favor of changing or abolishing Memorial day at the next encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The substitution for the present holiday of a Memorial Sunday, to be designated annually by the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, is to be suggested at that time, Commander Brown says.

Commander Brown would have the present Memorial day given over, during the forenoon hours, entirely to veneration of the dead, and then, when the flag is sent to the peak at noon, sports and other pastimes might be properly taken up. Such a day would satisfy the Grand Army men, he said, and the enactment of any law which would have this effect would be preferable to abolishing the day.

HEAD OF SUNDAY SCHOOL DIES AT END OF SPEECH.

Randelman, N. C., May 30.—Closing his address before the Randelman township Sunday school convention in the auditorium Sunday afternoon with the utterance, "May God be with you till we meet again," Wilson Davis, the aged superintendent of St. John's Sunday school, droped to the floor and expired.

SPENDS HOURS IN RAIN OF BULLETS

Private Is Literally Shot to Pieces By Unsuspecting Comrades in Army.

Monterey, Cal., May 30.—His body an unseen target for the rain of bullets of a firing squad at rifle practice, Claude Hetherton, a private of Company K, Thirteenth Infantry, stationed at the Presidio, who was taking measurements of the range, was literally shot to pieces and died after lingering in the reservation hospital for two days. The accident occurred last week, but the facts have just come to light. An investigation of the affair delayed the funeral until yesterday.

All during the afternoon of the day he was shot, Hetherton crept about on the embankment, peppered with lead, while the bullets whizzed about him. His cries could not be heard. After the first bullet had brought him down, he made an effort to drag himself out of range, but no matter which way he turned his escape was cut off by the flying missiles. Finally he sank on the sand mound, awaiting the shot that would end his torture. Bullets sped about him, ripping his clothing and tearing his flesh. Hetherton was married.

DROWNED IN SPIRIT LAKE

Axel Peterson Meets Death When His Boat Is Capsized.

Alfred Carlson Escapes By Clinging to the Boat Until Rescued.

Axel Peterson, 21 years old, cigarmaker whose home was at 120 Garfield avenue, was drowned yesterday afternoon at Spirit Lake, while on a fishing trip. Alfred Carlson of West Duluth, a companion, narrowly escaped with his life by clinging to an overturned boat. Up to noon today Peterson's body had not been recovered. Another search will be made this afternoon.

While rowing across the main chanel off Spirit Lake, Carlson dropped one of the oars. Peterson leaned over the edge of the craft to recover the oar, when the boat upset. Peterson sank and did not come to the surface. Carlson came to the surface the second time, when he caught the boat. He clung to it until rescued.

After he had been rescued, Carlson notified the police of Peterson's death and Sergeant Bradley, Officers Ek and Clark worked until dark last evening in an effort to locate the body.

Peterson has lived in Duluth for the past eleven years. He came here from Sweden in 1899 with his parents. He learned the cigarmaker's trade but lately he had not worked at it. Recently he had been employed as a bartender for his brother-in-law, Gust Melin of 129 Garfield avenue.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peterson, five brothers, Iver, Richard, Carl, Charles and George, and two sisters, Anna and Mrs. Gust Melin, survive him. He leaves two half sisters, Hannah Peterson and Mrs. John King of Oakville, Can. With the exception of the last named, all live in Duluth.

Peterson was one of the charter members of the Adams Athletic association at the West end.

Work Horse Parade.

An interesting civic event of the holiday was the work horse parade up Fifth avenue, a function under the auspices of the Womens' Auxiliary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. At New Rochelle, the home of Thomas Paine, the Paine National museum was dedicated.

President Taft planned to return to Washington this afternoon.

Veterans Ride in Autos.

Chicago, May 30.—More careful preparations were made for the observance of Memorial day in Chicago this year than for many years past. Ceremonies at practically all of the two score cemeteries about the city were the features of the morning, while a large parade occurred in the afternoon. Many veterans were taken over the route in automobiles. Several hundred soldiers, marching from Fort Sheridan, arrived on foot and encamped in Grant park on the lake front.

Statesmen Honor Soldiers.

Washington, May 30.—The halls of congress and all executive departments were closed today while the statesmen of the nation participated in the commemoration of Memorial day. Here an elaborate program filled the day, beginning with a street parade of veterans and soldiers, and including ceremonies at Arlington cemetery, the National cemetery, United States soldiers' home, the Congressional and Battleground cemeteries and others.

An impressive spectacle was the setting adrift of a flower-laden boat in the Potomac river by the Spanish war veterans, in honor of the national naval dead.

The orator at the Arlington cemetery was Senator William O. Bradley of Kentucky. Senator Depew of New York delivered the address at the soldiers' home. Senator W. B. Heyburn of Idaho spoke at the Congressional cemetery, and at Battleground cemetery, Senator Brown of Nebraska was the speaker.

More Graves to Decorate.

Boston, Mass., May 30.—The observance of Memorial day in New England differed but little from previous years, except that there were more graves to decorate and fewer veterans in the line of march to the various cemeteries.

For every little green mound there flew a flag placed there by the survivors of the Grand Army of the Republic. Joining in this yearly ceremony were various veteran organizations of the Spanish-American war, while the graves of those who fought in the Mexican and the early wars of the republic were not forgotten.

Honor Harvard Men.

One of the notable incidents of the day in this vicinity was the unveiling of a bronze memorial table in the Harvard union, commemorative of the eleven Harvard men who died in the Spanish war of 1898.

The day was one of the biggest in sporting events of the year. Baseball, of course, led, but rowing, golf, tennis, motoring, athletic games, shooting and horse racing took many thousands into the open air.

FORECAST TILL 7 P. M. TUESDAY.
For Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges: Fair weather tonight and Tuesday; probably light frost tonight in low places; moderate westerly winds.
EXPLANATORY NOTES
H. W. RICHARDSON, Local Forecaster.

FAIR

The weather man is outdoing himself. Fine weather on Memorial day is considerably out of the ordinary for Duluth, but the sage on the hilltop favored the city with sunshine and moderate temperatures and the Memorial day parade was not drenched. The brisk wind and low temperature Sunday were uncomfortable. Fair weather is predicted for tonight and tomorrow, with light frost tonight.

Cloudy, threatening weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:18 and it will set at 7:53, giving fifteen hours and thirty-five minutes to sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The storm has shifted its center from the Lake Superior into the St. Lawrence valley. During the past twenty-four hours light rains fell over the upper lake region and brisk to high westerly winds occurred Sunday and last night over Lake Superior, the maximum velocity at Duluth early this morning being forty-eight miles per hour from the northwest. Much cooler temperature prevails throughout the western lake region and Upper Mississippi valley due to an increase in pressure, the center of the high barometer overlying the extreme northwest. Temperatures are rising over the Dakotas and most of Western Canada."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes—Moderate northwest winds; partly cloudy tonight; Tuesday fair.

Chicago, May 30. — Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight, with frost; Tuesday fair and slightly warmer.

Wisconsin and Minnesota—Generally fair and continued cool tonight and Tuesday; frost in lowlands tonight.

Iowa—Partly cloudy and continued cool tonight and Tuesday.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; probably light frost in lowlands of east portion tonight.

South Dakota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler in extreme southwest portion tonight.

NORTHERN PACIFIC GIVEN DAMAGES

Soo Line Must Pay $4,500 for Crossing Tracks at Grade.

The commissioners appointed by Judge Page Morris of the United States court to determine the amount of damages the Soo line shall pay the Northern Pacific for the privilege of crossing the Northern Pacific tracks in entering the city have filed an order allowing the Northern Pacific $4,500 for the grade crossing which is to be maintained and $1 for the overhead crossing to be maintained after that time.

The trestle must be ready in two years, and until it is ready the grade crossing will be used. Two men must be stationed at the grade crossing while it is in use, which was an item entering largely into the commissioners' award.

The commissioners were: Henry F. Greene, George R. Laybourn and W. H. Hoyt.

shortly afterwards and then Gibbons went to the priest's house, called him to the door and shot him.

It is said there have been several estrangements between Gibbons and his wife and that Dr. Walsh has each time successfully intervened as peacemaker.

Talked Freely at Jail.

At the jail Gibbons was nervous, but talked freely.

"It's a peculiar world, looking at it from any angle," he said. "I've viewed it several ways and don't know much about it yet. I had a wife once who didn't care for me, but liked the companionship of others. She had children who were my children. She couldn't have cared for them or she wouldn't have dishonored them.

"I knew of her treachery for over a year, but said nothing. She suspected I knew, but never tried to verify her suspicions. We lived that way until today, for me a hell on earth—for her I don't know and she can't tell. It is all over with now, and I am at peace with myself. Let follow what may.

"When Father Walsh came to South St. Paul I was jubilant. He appeared such a nice fellow and I went to him and volunteered what support was in my power to give him. He thanked me and we became fast friends. Then followed a game of treachery and deceit—a game that I was not in on, yet deeply interested in.

Invited Priest to His House.

"I had invited Father Walsh to my home and I introduced him to my wife and family. Whenever he called a box of cigars were at his disposal. And you, they were not the brand I smoked, but much better.

"I first grew suspicious about a year ago. My wife received a new silk dress by express. The package came to my office, I don't remember from where. When I asked her who gave it to her, she told me the ladies of a church society because of active interest she had taken in their work, but her explanations did not satisfy me.

"The visits of Father Walsh were becoming too frequent to please me. He appeared at my home afternoons when I was at my office and spent several hours in the company of Mrs. Gibbons. Sometimes my children were present, but more often not. I said nothing to my wife, never mentioned that I thought anything of the frequent visits. I had planned my little game, which worked so successfully."

Gibbons has lived in South St. Paul for twenty-five years. For a long time he was chief of police, but about ten years ago he went into the commission business, in which he is said to have been more than usually successful. He bought the first load of hogs which ever came to the South St. Paul packing house.

About twenty years ago he married Nellie McGowan and seven children have been born to them.

Of the scores of South St. Paul people who discussed the tragedy not one could be found who breathed a word against Mrs. Gibbons' character.

"She was a model wife and mother, a good and devout woman," was the substance of what every one who ever knew her had to say.

PINCHOT IS BACK HOME

Secretary Ballinger, but Mr. Pinchot said:

"I can't discuss this matter of the inquiry nor anything in that line. That's a matter of fact. I have not been in close with the situation since I left here. The European papers have not been giving much attention to the matter. Of American papers I have seen very little since I left here."

Laughed at Vertrees' Words.

Mr. Pinchot was spoken to about the summing up by Mr. Vertrees on Saturday in the Ballinger inquiry, and said:

"Oh, I read about that. Some papers were handed to me aboard the boat last night. I see he says I'm a small 'possum up a big tree.' Oh, well!" The rest of the remarks were lost in a peal of laughter of the speaker. Then he went on to talk about the conservation question.

"At the big meeting in St. Paul," he said, "we hope to accomplish some very large results in getting the attention of the people of this country interested in the subject as it has preseuted itself here."

Gets Two Presents.

Menominee, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jake Casper, Saturday accepted a piano which had been won in a popularity contest, on behalf of his wife, and expressed the wish that he might have some one at home who could play it. When he arrived home a few minutes later he found that he was the father of a baby girl born at just about the time he was making his speech.

FATHER OF GIANTESS HANGS SELF TO TREE.

Calumet, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—On going out early Saturday to drive their cows in from pasture, back of Centennial Heights, Mesdames Hautivitta and Topplia discovered the body of Herman Wiedelmann, suspended from a tree. The women ran screaming back to the location and Marshal Trudell was summoned. When the body was cut down life was extinct, and a medical examination showed that Wiedelmann had been dead some time.

The decedent, who was aged about 60 years, and the father of "Big Lydia," who weighs 500 pounds, had been despondent for some time, and being made defendant in a divorce suit is said to have caused the suicide.

GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE MEETS.

The Duluth branch of the German-American alliance, in regular monthly meeting at Kalamazoo hall last evening, devoted some time to discussion of political questions, reapportionment and prohibition coming in for a share of attention. In connection with the approaching elections, it was decided to make every legitimate effort in the cause of such candidates for county offices as are of German nationality or extraction.

Delegates to the annual state meeting in St. Paul, June 2, were elected by the branch at last evening's session.

It was said at the meeting that the German American element in the nation's population will probably be found to outnumber any other nationality when the federal census is completed.

THE VICTOR RECORDS FOR JUNE ARE OUT.

Among the big features in the June list of Victor records are three Caruso records, two airs from Franchetti's opera "Germania," in which he made a brilliant success during the past season, and in the famous duel trio from the third act of "Faust," sung by Caruso, Scotti and Journet. Geraldine Farrar contributes an aria from "Madam Butterfly" and Martin, Bornia and Scotti are heard in the dramatic trio which occurs in the second act of the same opera. Another important concerted number is the great Rigoletto duet, "On Every Festal Morning," sung by Marcella Sembrich and G. Mario Sammarco, the famous Manhattan baritone, and the record of this powerful Verdi number is extremely charming.

Gadski and Homer sing a duet from Gluck's "Orpheus," and Mme. Homer also renders as a solo the exquisite "Allmacht" by Schubert and her delivery is a highly impressive one. Mme. Gadski makes a further addition to her Wagner list with an aria from one of the most effective portions of Gotterdammerung. John McCormack, the young Irish tenor, gives an exquisite rendition of the popular ballad, "I Hear You Calling Me," in which he sings some pianissimo notes of surpassing beauty. He also sings two operatic selections, the "Flower Song," from "Carmen," and "All Hail, Thou Dwelling Lowly," from "Faust"—and the result of his years of hard study in Italy are readily seen in his perfect command of the Italian language, which he sings like a native. Evan Williams contributes an impressive poem, "Forgotten," which Eugene Cowles has furnished with such a lovely setting. Mischa Elman, the famous young violinist, plays two new selections, a minuet by Beethoven and Dvorak's "Humoresque."

The June list also includes some splendid band numbers an unusually attractive list of the popular things and some well selected and well rendered sacred songs.

BRAINERD'S MAYOR IS GIVEN SCORING

Grand Jury Says He Is Not Obeying Law and Reprimands Him.

Brainerd, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of the late grand jury, just made public, contains a severe reprimand of the mayor and city officials for alleged failure to enforce the laws. The grand jury says: "We beg leave to report to the honorable court that we have had under consideration, among other matters, the manner in which the laws of the state and the ordinances of the city of Brainerd have been executed, or rather the manner in which they have not been executed, by the honorable mayor and his officers. We have found that in respect to the laws and ordinances relating to houses of ill fame after being informed of the existence of such places within the city limits and after being requested to enforce the laws in regard thereto, the mayor has not, so far as we have been able to discover, taken any steps whatever, to close the same, nor has he given any orders to his officers to close them. We find that there has been a laxity in regard to saloons being run open on Sunday, although the saloons have been in the main closed on Sunday, there have been violations of the laws and ordinances relating thereto. We would therefore, recommend that the honorable mayor be reminded of his duty with regard to such matters to the end that a better and more vigilant watch be kept over such places. We earnestly request that the mayor hereafter close and keep closed all immoral places within the city, and that all houses of ill fame especially, shall not be permitted to be open to the public."

The grand jury reported that they had examined and looked over the county jail and lockup and found them in good shape. They recommended that some more bedding be bought and put in the county jail. They also visited the county farm and found the same in as good a shape as could be expected. They recommended that the county farm be leased to some competent party at a fixed cash price and a contract made with him for the keeping of the paupers at the farm. This report was signed by H. H. Baker, foreman of the grand jury.

Some Indictments Returned.

In the case of the State vs. Alvin Clark, the defendant pleaded not guilty, to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree. This was on a joint indictment against James Grasser, James Winters and Alvin Clark. All three defendants entered a plea of not guilty. Grasser and Winters also pleaded not guilty. Ray Willett, indicted for grand larceny in the second degree pleaded not guilty.

Five indictments were returned against Fred Boyd and two against Benjamin F. Boyd. There are seven indictments for showing, selling and having in possession lewd and indecent pictures. Both were arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

In the case of Albert Vogel vs. Steve R. Flanders, a personal injury case in which Vogel sued for $25,000. The jury found for the defendant.

ANNUAL REGATTA ON THE HARLEM

Fifty Entries in Various Events, Which Include All Classes.

New York, May 30.—The forty-fourth annual regatta of the Harlem Regatta association was rowed today on the Harlem river speedway course, this city. All the races with the exception of senior quarter-mile dash were one-quarter miles straightaway and there were fifty entries in the various events. The list of races included all classes of singles, doubles, fours, and eights, and one event in gigs, the senior fours.

In junior eights, the New York A. C. and Nassau B. C. were entered; senior eights had New York A. C., Sewanaka of Brooklyn and Wahnetah of Flushing. The senior four-oared shell event had two entrants—Malta of Philadelphia and Arundel of Baltimore.

An interesting contest was expected in the junior octuple sculls, with Wahnetah of Flushing and Harlem of New York sending crews to the line. In senior doubles, Shephard and Fuessell, of Harlem rowing club, New York, were expected to have an easy race, as their only competitors were Parker and Steel, of Arundel boat club, Baltimore, who were not considered in their class.

The program began with junior double sculls which had five starters, all Greater New York crews. All signs pointed to good racing weather.

Brainerd, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Moses F. De Rocher, a member of the Brainerd police force for about thirty years, died Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, at his home. He had been sick with dropsy for the past three months. The deceased was born in Waterville, Me., June 2, 1842. He came to Minneapolis when he was 27 years old, and worked on the dam being built there. He was married in that city to Miss Flora Gonyea, and to them four children were born, Charles De Rocher of Paradise, Mont.; Moses De Rocher, Jr., of Brainerd; Mrs. Albert Halvorson of Bemidji, and Mrs. B. H. Stevens of Everett, Wash. The family removed to Brainerd in the early eighties.

The deceased was first appointed a policeman by Mayor James S. Gardner in 1883 and served two terms under Mayor Gardner. He spoke English, French and several Indian dialects. In 1884 he was shot while making an arrest. One of his exploits in the early history of the town was the arrest of twenty-five bad men in West Brainerd. Single handed he arrested them all and marched them to jail, a distance of a mile.

The deceased was chief two different times and captain of the force several times. He was a member of the Red Men order and also a member of Hose Company No. 2 of the fire department for many years. The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning at St. Francis' Catholic church. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery. CONFESSES TO BRIBE

Illinois State Senator Says He Got $2,500 for His Vote.

Lorimer's Speech Has Sinister Echo---Paper Answers His Charges.

Springfield, Ill., May 30.—The Sangamon county grand jury exploded a bomb under the political tent of United States Senator William Lorimer late Saturday, by returning an indictment against State Senator John Broderick of Chicago on a charge of bribery.

The explosion occurred just as the echoes of the senator's "explanatory" speech at Washington were reverberating through the columns of the evening Illinois newspapers, and completely drowned out, for the time being, the sound of the senator's voice as it was lifted in his own defense.

Broderick, who is a leading Chicago Democrat, was indicted as the direct result of a confession made to the grand jury by State Senator D. W. Holstlaw of Iuka, Ill., who says Broderick paid him $2,500 to vote for Lorimer for senator.

From Graft Probe.

The unexpected turn in the Lorimer scandal was an offshoot of State Attorney Burke's investigation of alleged graft in legislative furniture deals. Senator Halstlaw had been indicted on a perjury charge in connection with the furniture contract and upon advice of his lawyers, when offered immunity, agreed to make a confession. Then he told the grand jury that he had received $2,500 for his vote for Lorimer; $700 as his share of a legislative "jackpot" and a promise of $1,500 as his share of the sate house furniture deal.

Senator Holstlaw's confession regarding the furniture deal was corroborated before the grand jury by Otto Freier, who, as agent for the Ford-Johnson Furniture company of Chicago, obtained the furniture contract.

The two confessions regarding the furniture contract resulted in two additional indictments on a conspiracy charge. These were: State Senator S. C. Pemberton, Republican, of Oakland, Ill., and Representative Joseph S. Clark, Democrat, of Vandalia, Ill.

Three Warrants Issued.

As in the case of Senator Broderick, in the Lorimer alleged bribery matter, capiases and bench warrants were immediately issued for Senator Pemberton and Representative Clark on the conspiracy charges in connection with the furniture contract.

Although an indictment charging conspiracy was returned against Senator Holstlaw, it was immediately nolled and immunity for Holstlaw was ordered by Judge James A. Creighton upon the recommendation of State Attorney Burke.

When the indictments had been returned and the court orders entered in the two separate scandals, the members of the grand jury adjourned until Tuesday.

After conferences with Attorney A. M. Fitzgerald, his lawyer, Senator Holstlaw communicated with State Attorney Burke. Worn, haggard and driven almost to distraction during a sleepless night, Senator Holstlaw told the prosecutor that he was ready to confess and all liability to prosecution and punishment was waived when immunity was offered and later granted because Holstlaw was a material witness.

Chicago, May 30.—Senator Holstlaw's confession, resulting in the indictment of Senator Broderick of Chicago, is the fourth confession obtained since the exposure of the alleged Lorimer bribery scandal on April 30 last. The first confession was made by Representative White of Ofallon, Ill., who declared that he had received $1,000 from Lee O'Neil Browne for his vote for Lorimer and $900 as his share of the legislative "jackpot."

Although stigmatized as a blackmailer by the men whose names he had involved, White's confession resulted in grand jury investigation in Cook and Sangamon counties. In the Cook county grand jury room on May 5, White's confession was substantiated by Representative Beckemeyer of Carlisle, Ill. This second confession resulted in three indictments in connection with the Lorimer case. These were Lee O'Neil Browne, leader of the Democrats in the legislature, of Ottawa, Ill., on a charge of bribery; Representative Robert F. Wilson, Democrat, on a perjury charge; Representative Michael Link of Mitchell, Ill., charged with perjury.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE REPLIES TO LORIMER'S CHARGES.

Chicago, May 30.—The Chicago Tribune in a statement commenting on Senator Lorimer's charges in the United States senate that the Tribune was conspiring to ruin him, says:

"The statement that Medill McCormick conspired with others to ruin him financially with Representative White's narrative, is untrue. Mr. McCormick was not in Chicago when the White narrative was brought to the attention of the Tribune. He did not know of its existence until he read it in the Tribune.

"Mr. Lorimer's bank is of no interest to the Tribune. He dragged it into the case. One after another, his frantic falsifications could be nailed, but the truth is being brought out in Sangamon county, Cook county and in Washington. It will be possible soon for all to decide the question of Lorimer vs. the Tribune, if that be of any importance. In the meantime the answers to Mr. Lorimer are White, Link, Beckemeyer and Holstlaw, and there will be others."

GEORGIANS OFFER TO PAY TAFT BILL

Southerners Would Make Up Deficiency in His Traveling Expenses.

Washington, May 30.—A protest against the action of certain Democratic members of congress in opposing the appropriation of $25,000 for the president's traveling expenses, covering the president's last Southern trip, and an offer to make up the deficiency, has been telegraphed to Speaker Cannon by the Augusta, Ga., chamber of commerce and cotton exchange and Georgia-Carolina Fair association. The memorial, sent to the speaker, to be presented to the public and to President Taft, says:

"Augusta, the winter home of President Taft stands indignant and mortified at the action of certain Democratic members of congress in defeating by technical opposition the proposition to make it operative, so far as to cover all the expenses of his last Southern trip, the appropriation of $25,000 for the president's traveling expenses."

Taft Much Pleased.

The telegram then adds an offer of the organizations to tender to the United States the $5,000 necessary to meet the deficiency of the president's recent trans-continental trip.

The president upon reading the telegram, was much pleased, but said he could not possibly accept the offer of the patriotic Georgians. He intends to pay out of his own pocket the traveling expenses for the remainder of the fiscal year, amounting to about $7,000 or $8,000.

MEANS WAR IN DULUTH

Zenith City Will Be Scene of Skirmish in Theatrical Campaign.

L. N. Scott of Minneapolis Will Probably Manage Trust Theater Here.

The announcement in The Herald Saturday evening that Samuel Neuman, representative of L. N. Scott of Minneapolis and St. Paul, and of Klaw & Erlanger, was in the city to select a site for a new theater to be built in Duluth to house the so-called "trust attractions," probably means the beginning of a theatrical war in Duluth.

Charles A. Marshall, owner of the Lyceum theater, is firmly entrenched and is now booking the independent attractions of the Shuberts and John Cort. Klaw & Erlanger were evidently not content to remain idle and watch such rich territory as Duluth pass from their hands. They claim to have raised a fund of $25,000,000 and of this amount it is said that $500,000 will be used to build a theater in Duluth.

Mr. Neuman, who is closely associated with L. N. Scott, manager of the Metropolitan theaters in St. Paul and Minneapolis, refused to disclose anything regarding the location selected. He was offered one site on East Superior street, however, and another near Fourth avenue west and First street. It is understood that he preferred the latter site and that this may be selected. He claimed that the site would be bought this spring, work begun this summer, and that the theater would be ready for occupancy next year. If this is the case Mr. Scott will bring out his old sign, "The Triple Winners," which he used when he managed the Lyceum here and his two Twin City houses.

It is claimed that the $25,000,000 will be used in erecting a chain of theaters from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Winnipeg to Galveston. The producing firms which will be included in the syndicate are:

Klaw & Erlanger, Charles Frohman, Nixon & Zimmerman, Al Hayman, William Harris, C. B. Dillingham, Henry W. Savage, Cohan & Harris, Frederic Thompson, David Belasco, Daniel Frohman, Joseph Brooks, H. H. Frazee, George W. Lederer, F. Ziegfeld, Jr., Wagenhals & Kemper, Joseph Weber, Joseph M. Gaites, Augustus Pitou, Frank McKee, Henry Miller, Henry B. Harris.

Independent Attractions.

On the other hand the independents will not be short of attractions, by any means. In fact, if Manager Marshall gets his fair share of them, and from his friendliness with Cort he certainly should, Duluth will have a theatrical season next year surpassing anything ever seen here. The list of independent attractions to date follows:

Revolutionizing Street Traffic.

Possibly the most striking sign of street traffic revolution is the ever-expanding motor truck. The auto-truck of today can carry up to a limit of ten tons, which seems to be the capacity of loads capable of being sustained by rubber tires. Some pointers could be gained as to the purity and good qualities of Golden Grain Belt beer by giving it a trial. Get a case and have it in your cellar for daily use. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

MESSAGES FOR SWEDES.

King Gustave and Col. Roosevelt Heard From at Music Festival.

New York, May 30.—A message sent by King Gustave of Sweden to former subjects, who now live in the United States, was delivered at the concert in Carnegie hall, which opened the fourth quadrennial convention and musical festival of the American Union of Swedish Singers.

Charles J. Johanson, president of the union, in introducing Herman Lagercrantz, the Sdewish minister, announced that he had been commissioned by King Gustave to convey his hearty greeting to the organization, and at the same time express his delight because of the spirit of love and faithfulness to the fatherland which prevails among the singing societies.

Minister Lagercrantz began by saying:

"I bring you greetings from Mr. Roosevelt. He wrote me only a few weeks ago: 'You cannot imagine how glad I am to be in your beloved Sweden. I shall never forget how heartily and with what rare courtesy I was received.'"

Singers representing fifty societies from New York, Boston, Palladelphia, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and other cities comprised the chorus. After the convention a picked chorus of fifty singers will go to Stockholm to hold a festival there.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, May 30.—Eastern consumers of foundry iron last week purchased freely of both Northern and Southern pig metal, it being estimated that contracts were placed for about 65,000 tons, or a total of 90,000 tons in the last two weeks. Pipe works purchased the heaviest tonnage, but nearly all large consumers were represented in the buying. Contracts are still pending in the East for about 70,000 tons.

A large volume of business was also placed in the Southwest. The total contracts in all districts in the last two weeks have aggregated in excess of 250,000 tons.

Although the buying has been heavy, competition for business has been so keen that prices have receded slightly. No. 2 northern iron has sold in New England district at $17.25 @17.50 delivered.

Eastern Pennsylvania producers have accepted $15.50 to $16.00; Virginia $14 or less, and Alabama $11.50 at the furnaces for various shipments extending over the remainder of the year.

Many small orders for structural and fabricated steel were placed last week and several important contracts were closed in the West in the last day or two. Vandalia railroad and Pennsylvania lines west placed some bridge orders, but most of the railroad work pending will go into another month. The steel contracts for buildings placed in May aggregated nearly 150,000 tons, only 30 per cent of which went to the American Bridge company.

Railroad equipment orders were light. May contracts included 25,000 cars, 250 locomotives and 95,000 tons of rails.

MAN IS KILLED AS HE IS RAISING FLAG.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 30.—The patriotism of John Gerlowski, a middle-aged Pole, has cost him his life. While trying to hoist the Stars and Stripes for Memorial day on the roof of Turner hall, in Glendale, a copper wire on which the flag was strung, came into contact with a live lighting wire. The shock killed Gerlowski.

TABULATES TWO TARIFF LAWS FOR COMPARISON.

Washington, May 30.—William W. Evans, the expert clerk of the house committee on ways and means, has prepared an elaborate comparison on the tariff acts of 1907 and 1909. The rates and other information are arranged in parallel columns so that one may tell at a glance how one tariff act compares with another.

PRESBYTERIANS MAKE DECLARATION OF FAITH.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 30.—That there may be no doubt in the minds of any one that because the New York Presbytery and synod were exonerated on the complaint of heresy the Presbyterian church was not going back on the doctrines laid down by its founders, a lengthy statement was adopted by the general assembly at its closing session here reaffirming the belief of the governing body in the cardinal theological tenets of the church.

There was no debate on the doctrines beyond one objection by Rev. H. N. Wilson of St. Paul, who declared that the Presbyterian church already had enough "declarations" on doctrinal principles and he saw no reason "for making another one." He therefore voted agaiast the adoption of the statement, as did half a dozen other ministers who felt as he did.

TRIBUTE TO HEROES OF '61

John H. Norton Delivers Address at Lester Park M. E. Church.

Soldiers of Civil War Have Monument More Enduring Than Marble.

The Sunday evening service at the Lester Park M. E. church last night took the form of a patriotic service, arranged by the Young People's society of the church and participated in by members of the G. A. R., Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans and Citizens' staff.

The service opened with "America." Mrs. Smith sang, "The Star Spangled Banner," the congregation standing. Mr. Wood recited, "The First Minnesota's Charge at Gettysburg," and the choir sang several appropriate selections.

JOHN H. NORTON.

County Attorney John H. Norton was the principal speaker of the evening. He was introduced by Rev. Oaten, who acted as master of ceremonies.

Mr. Norton spoke as follows:

"This nation was founded by religious refugees—the Puritans settling on the New England coast and the French Huguenots settling in Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas. They each in some measure, partook of the character of the soil and climate of their respective localities. The Puritans were rigorous, austere and frugal, as was the region around them; and the Huguenots were warm, genial and hospitable, like the climate which they found.

"The same wind that filled the sails of the Mayflower and drove her upon the bleak and barren shores of Massachusetts filled the sails of the first slave ship which landed its cargo of human freight at Jamestown and sowed the seeds which 300 years after ripened into the rich harvest of the Civil war.

"They were of differing temperament, and in time there grew up a diverse sentiment, which afterward clashed in the political arena, and which finally culminated in armed conflict which shook the nation from center to circumference and ultimately came to an end at Appomattox.

"Before the Puritans landed at Plymouth rock they signed a compact in the cabin of the Mayflower, and mutually agreed to be bound by laws of their own making, and went ashore and built their camp fires, at last where 'sweet water gushed freely forth from the bosom of a hill,' and here they grew and flourished in spite of the inhospitable climate and still more inhospitable savages, until they had developed the spirit of liberty and equality. The courts of England did not deign to notice them until they became of sufficient importance to be taxed for the benefit of the crown. Then, without having any voice or vote in public affairs, the king sought to levy and collect taxes against them. To this the colonists objected, and writs of assistance were issued and ordered served. Then it was that James Otis came to the fore like a flame of fire and opposed them.

Birth of Independence.

"Here independence was born, and which, fifteen years later, culminated in the Declaration of Independence, and after eight years of ceaseless warfare Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, and this nation, battle scarred and storm tossed, stood forth, a nation among the nations of the earth. There was left, however, in the organic body politic, the seeds of discord and disaster. At first it was scarcely noticeable, but became more and more apparent until Calhoun and Hayne on the one side and Webster on the other, in one of the most dramatic debates the world ever saw, drew the lines hard and fast and there was no possibility of settlement or compromise. It seems to me that I can see Webster now, standing in the senate house, with eyes aflash and soul aflame, building up an insurmountable wall out of the Constitution, over and around which the nullifiers and secessionists could not pass. He was a Titan, and tempered his weapons in the elemental fires. His name and fame will reverberate throughout the ages. After this nothing was left but armed conflict, and, in 1861, the war broke out. It was unique in the annals of history. It was altruistic in the extreme. Heretofore our forefathers had been fighting the battles of liberty for themselves and their posterity, but now the world was to witness the greatest war known to history—between brothers of the same flesh and blood, who were fighting, not for themselves, but for another and inferior race.

Never Grows Old.

"They proved their courage and patriotism upon a hundred battle fields. Many times and oft, the story of their deeds have been told. Yet it never grows old. Who would want to forget the memory of Cold Harbor and Cornith; of Malvern Hill and Sailoh? Who would want to forget the First Minnesota and all the other regiments of soldiers that fought at Gettysburg in order to check the charge of Pickett's indomitable invaders and turn Lee back into Virginia and make his advance into a route? Or that other and gallant Second Minnesota who fought with Thomas at Chicamauga and helped to break the flower of the Southern army in three days of the hottest fighting of the war?

"Every day, and every hour that they were in the field, they were writing the history of our country in fire and in blood and every page is luminous with the light of valorous deeds and patriotic devotion.

"The end of the war was ordained in the beginning. The result never was in doubt. When the fall of the Confederacy came and Lee surrendered at Appotomax, it was but the inevitable result of the correlation of forces working out for the betterment of man.

"The poet has expressed the thought beautifully:

"Yet I doubt not through the ages,
One increasing purpose runs;
And the thoughts of men are widened
By the process of the suns."

"And of those who fought on the other side, permit me to say that it is not for me to dim the splendor of their efforts or to censure their motives in attempting to establish a government upon the foundation of sectionalism. Suffice it to say that their heroic efforts, their lofty courage, their fierce determination, destryed a nobler cause and a better fate. They sacrificed their property, their lives, their all, upon the altar of their ambition and came back to us broken in spirit and in fortune, humbled in pride and bereft of power. They have taken their places under the standard they sought to destroy with manly courage and womanly dignity and there is none today that excels them in their love for the Union or their devotion to the flag.

"No more shall war cry sever,
Or the winding rivers be red;
They banished our anger forever
When they laureled the graves of our dead.
Under the sod and the dew,
Awaiting the judgment day,
Under the one, the blue,
Under the other the gray.'

"The war of the rebellion was the culmination of a long series of events which had gradually been tending to disrepute the Union and which had been delayed from time to time by temperizing statesmen, by compromise upon compromise, till at last the supreme crisis in the life of the nation had arisen. To the superficial and the curious, it might seem as if the war was to be waged for the liberation of the slaves, but to the student of history and to the statesman, it was apparent that it was a war between two conflicting and opposing forces in government. Jefferson had written in the Declaration of Independence that 'all men are created equal.' This was a maxim borrowed from the Roman Juris Consults and had grown into a political tenet, around which clusters and clings the cherished traditions of our Saxon civilization. The Southern slave holders denied the truth of this statement and held that it had no applicability to persons outside the white race. This great event which marked the epoch of progress was fought between the North and the South on issues that were momentous.

"It was their particular privilege to participate in this event. Little did they dream that in after years they were to become the central figures around which the romance, the reverence and the affections of the nations would be entwined. They little thought when they signed the muster roll that they were affixing their names to the title deed of fame. In the unconscious effort on their part to perform their duty to their country they builded greatest and grandest glory. For four years of ceaseless effort and untiring energy, of heroic fortitude they marched in mud and dust, through sunshine and shower, sometimes advancing, sometimes receding, sometimes fighting, but always performing their duty with soldierly bearing and dignity, until at last Lee surrendered at Appamattox and the war came to a close.

"Five days after Appamattox the crowning tragedy of the war was enacted and the nation was compelled to tread the wine press from which only the blood of martyrs flowed, and Abraham Lincoln, the master and the man, was assassinated. In his great, heroic and patriotic soul went to his Maker, across that 'mysterious sea upon whose bosom no wave has ever reflected the image of a homeward sail,' he carried in his hands the broken fetters from 4,000,000 slaves, and as he looked behind he saw the glad and gladsome faces of the free.

The Heroic Dead.

"A short time ago I stood within the shadow of the granite shaft which towered high above me and which was reared to commemorate the virtuous and valorous deeds of the immortal Washington. It was early morning and as the sun rose over the Maryland hills and threw its fiery beams across the Potomac the Heights of Arlington was all aglow. As the marble monuments which mark the resting place of 16,000 of our heroic dead, glinted and gleamed in the sunlight, I thought of the greatest army that was ever marshaled in the field. I thought of the confidence, courage, the patriotic devotion, the love of the old flag, which animated and sustained through four long and bloody years of internicine war. I thought of the wild charges they had made, of the weary marches, of the shock of onset and the shouts of victory mingled with the chrieks of the wounded and the groans of the dying. I thought of all the misery and woe, of the desolation and death, of the widows and the orphans, of the struggle and the strife that this nation might be preserved inviolate and perpetuated to their children and their children's children as a priceless heritage of liberty forever and forever. I thought of the column of July in the Vandome at Paris, which was reared to commemorate the victories of Napoleon on the land, and the monument in Trafalger Square, which was reared to commemorate the victories of Nelson on the sea, and I said to myself that the soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic need no towering shaft to perpetuate their memory. They have a larger and a loftier monument, far more enduring than marble, which is reared in the hearts of the American people that shall remain as long as memory endures.

"These heroes are dead. They died for liberty—they died for us. They are at rest. They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn pines, the sad hemlocks, the tearful willows and the embracing vines. They sleep beneath the shawdows of the clouds careless alike of sunshine or storm, each in the windowless palace of rest. Earth may run red with other wars—they are at peace. In the midst of the battle, in the roar of conflict, they found the serenity of death."

Trust Company Men Arrested.

Philadelphia, May 30.—J. Kinnier Crawford, vice president, and his brother, Joseph S. C. Crawford, secretary-treasurer of the American Trust company, which was ordered closed by Bank Examiner Tabor last November, have been arrested and held in $5,000 bail each to answer charges of misappropriating the funds of that institution.

Canadian Logs Burned.

Winnipeg, Man., May 30.—Three million of logs, the property of the Great Western Lumber company at Greenbush, Man., have burned. Rain is subduing the forest fires which have caused losses to lumber companies of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

EASE FOR ALL, SAYS EDISON

Chore Boy and Salesgirl to Be Replaced By Electricity—Also Exit Rats, Mice and Bugs.

In the June number of Popular Electricity Thomas A. Edison, the inventor makes a few predictions about "The Tomorrows of Electricity and Invention."

"The chances for big, new electrical inventions are much greater now, he says, than before the telegraph, the telephone, the electric light and the electric motor were invented; while each of these things is far from perfect. We shall have easily $50,000,000,000 of money in electrical service in 1925, he predicts, and five times as many persons will then be employed in electricity as now, most of them in branches for which we have not yet got even a name.

In the not far distant future, says the wizard of Menlo Park, all the chores of the household will be done by electric machines and the armies of clerks and sales people in the department stores will be replaced by motors and slot machines. Mr. Edison says he is now at work on plans for such a store and soon will have them completed.

"Animal labor"—that is, human labor—must give way, he insists, before the scientific work of the electric machine. Humane societies, Mr. Edison prophesies, are doomed to early extinction with the positively sure disappearance of the horse from the streets of cities.

No Room For Horses.

"For years past," he writes, "I have been trying to perfect a storage battery and now have rendered it entirely suitable to automobile and other work. There is absolutely no reason why horses should be allowed within city limits, for between the gasoline and the electric car no room is left for them. They are not needed. The cow and the pig have gone and the horse is still more undesirable.

"A higher public idea of health and cleanliness is working toward such banishment very swiftly, and then we shall have decent streets instead of stables made out of strips cobblestones bordered by sidewalks. The worst use of money is to make a fine thoroughfare and then turn it over to horses. Besides that, the change will put the humane societies out of business."

The substitution of electrical for human labor will cut down the cost of living to the minimum, Mr. Edison predicts, and he then proceeds to tell how, with his rapidly perfecting plans for "pouring" houses instead of building them, the laboring man may have a fine home for a year's wages or thereabouts.

Holds Plans Simple.

"My plans are simple," says the inventor. "Nothing that is fundemental and successful in dealing with the wants of humanity in the mass must ever be complicated. I just mold a house instead of a brick. A complete set of my iron molds will cost about $25,000 and the working plan $15,000 more. As a unit plant I will start six sets of molds to keep the men busy and the machinery going.

"At least 144 houses can be built in a year with this equipment. A single house can be cast in six hours. With interest and depreciation of ten per cent on a sum of say, $175,000, the plant charge against each house is less than $125. I believe the houses can be erected complete with plumbing and heating apparatus for $1,200 each when erected on land underlaid with sand and gravel. Each house may be different in combination of design, color and other features, and endless variation of style is possible.

"The house I would give the workingman has a floor plan 25 by 30 feet, three stories high, with cellar, on a lot 40 by 60 feet, with six large living and sleeping rooms, airy halls, bath and every comfort. In cut stone such a house would cost $30,000. These houses can be built in batches of hundreds and then the plant can be moved elsewhere. When built these communities of poured houses can become flowered towns, with wide lawns and blooming beds along the roadways.

Exit Rats and Bugs.

"Rats and mice and croton bugs will have as much show in them as in the steel safe of a bank. Cement neither breeds vermin nor harbors it. There is nothing in all this that is not common sense and easy of practice. With a fair profit these houses should rent at $10 to $12 per month.

"Who would not forsake the crowded apartment or tenement on such terms for roomy, substantial houses, fitted with modern conveniences, beautified with artistic decorations, with no outlay for insurance or repairs and with no dread of fire or fire bugs?"

KING'S INHERITED PRIVILEGE

Is Exempt From Taxation Toll, Has Sole Right to Print the Bible, and Has Other Odd Prerogatives.

IT IS commonly supposed that the influence of royalty is incompatible with the spread of democratic ideas, the increasing power of the press and the extension of political rights. This supposition is hardly borne out by the more recent developments of history, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The prestige which George V. inherits in 1910 is infinitely greater than that which George IV. left behind him in 1830. William II and Francis Joseph are incomparably more popular than were the king of Prussia and the emperor of Austria in 1848. It is true, indeed, that the power of the British empire and therefore of the British sovereign has been increased by increase of wealth, population and territory. Likewise it is true that the position of the king of Prussia has been improved into that of emperor of Germany. Nevertheless one perceives that the influence of the royalty of today is no mere affair of territory, population or revenue. Otherwise how explain that the emperor of Austria, who has lost provinces, is more generally respected than any of his predecessors?

The real explanation seems to lie in the fact that the present occupants of thrones have read aright the signs of the hour and have been content to lose substance for show. Kings and emperors alike are what evolutionists would call survivals. They retain their outer splendor only by sacrificing their inner meaning and by allowing the functions imputed to them to subside into abeyance.

And thus it is that the monarchial and patrician England of the past has gradually and imperceptibly been transformed into a veiled republic with a royal figure head.

Still Absolute In Theory.

In theory, to be sure, the king is still as absolute as was his ancestor, William the Conqueror. In theory he is still the legislative head of the nation. Parliament is ostensibly his great council, which he summons to deliberate with him on the affairs of the nation. No bill, even though it has passed both the house of commons and the house of lords, can become an act of parliament without his royal assent. It is true that he never exercises the veto power which nominally resides within him. No English monarch has exercised it since Queen Anne refused to sign a Scotch militia bill. It is safe to say that the veto power is moribund. It cannot be described as dead.

Theoretically, again, the king of England is the executive head of the nation, governing through ministers, whose very name implies that they are the king's men, and whose acts are held to be his acts.

In accordance with the old legal fiction that the king can do no wrong, he cannot be held personally responsible for any crime or "tort" which it might suit him to commit. The responsibility for any injury so inflicted upon a subject must be shouldered by the king's advisers. Upon no pretense may he himself be arrested or his goods be distrained or taken into execution.

As the king is assumed to be impeccable and omniscient, so likewise he is assumed to be omnipresent. Theoretically he is with every court of justice at every sitting. His bodily presence may be reported at Windsor or Paris, or where not, legal fiction insists that he was at the law courts in the Strand and with every judge holding a court of assize throughout the country. In any ordinary suits between individuals the nonappearance of either plaintiff or defendant causes either to be nonsuited. In other words, the case is dismissed and the costs are shouldered on the delinquent. The king, however, can never be nonsuited in any cause that is instituted in his name, because, even though he is actually hundreds of miles away, he is constructively present. Only constructively, however. He may not put in a bodily appearance in any court as plaintiff or defendant, nor may he administer justice.

Constructively, also, the king is present at every sitting of parliament. Yet he cannot appear there in the body save when he comes in state to the house of lords for the exercise of his prerogative of opening and proroguing parliament or when his presence is needed for the purpose of giving royal assent to the bills which custom practically forbids him to veto. As prince of Wales, King George occasionally occupied the seat over the clock in the peers' gallery, whence he could listen to the debates of the lower chamber. His father, when prince of Wales, was even more frequent in his attendance there. But King Edward never was present in the house of commons after he had mounted the throne. King George will imitate his father, as the latter imitated his mother, Queen Victoria, in obeying a tacit prohibition.

High Crime and Misdemeanor.

In both houses it is a breach of order to mention the name of the sovereign with a view to affecting legislation. So far back as Dec. 17, 1783, the house of commons resolved that "to report any opinion or pretended opinion of his majesty upon any bill or other proceeding depending in either house or parliament, with a view to influence the votes of members, is a high crime and misdemeanor, derogatory to the honor of the crown, a breach of the fundamental privileges of parliament, and subversive of the constitution of the country." In 1808 Tierney was called to order for asserting that Canning had "forfeited the good opinion of the country, of the house and, as I believe, of his sovereign," the speaker reminding Mr. Tierney that he had no right to introduce the personal opinion of the sovereign into a debate.

The king of England is exempt from taxation because, in theory, as formerly in fact, the revenue of the realm is his. Obviously it would be useless and ridiculous for him to tax himself.

For the same reason he is exempt from toll. In the reign of George III. toll was exacted at Hampton bridge. One day during a royal hunt on Hounslow Heath the stag swam across the river and its pursuers made for the bridge. Unaware that the king was with them, the toll collector closed the gates, but opened them immediately when the cry: "The King! The King!" was raised by the vanguard of the hunters. When these had passed through it closed them again. Another party of hunters, with the king this time among them, clamored at the gates. But the collector thought the king of England had already passed through and was not inclined to tender royal privileges to all his courtiers.

"I've let King George through, God bless him!" he protested, "and I know no other king of England. If you have brought out the king of France, hang me if I let him through without the blunt."

Then, to his dismay, he caught sight of King George himself. Humbly apologizing, he threw open the gates. The deer, however, was lost through the delay. In great wrath, George dispatched an attendant back to demand an explanation from the collector. The latter pleaded that he thought the king himself had passed in with the first party, and that it was the custom for the royal retainers to pay for themselves. Satisfied with his explanation, King George directed that toll should be paid for 40 of his attendants.

No member of the king's household, no menial officer or servant employed in attendance upon the king, may be arrested or taken in execution in civil action without permission first being obtained from the board of green cloth, which regulates their duties and liabilities. The palaces as well as their inmates enjoy a similar exemption. Without permission of the same court no arrest nor anything in the nature of a judicial process may be executed within a royal residence. Formerly the offense of striking anybody or drawing blood from him within these sacred precincts was punishable by the loss of the offender's right hand and by life imprisonment.

Owns Beds of All Rivers.

The king is sole owner of the beds of all tidal rivers in Great Britain. He is also proprietor of all that part of the shore surrounding the British coasts which lies between high and low water mark. He may put this to any use which he thinks fit. Of course, theoretically, he is owner of every inch of British soil, but he would not dare to put this proprietorship to actual test. Any new land discovered by any of his subjects becomes his. Had a Britisher been the discoverer of the North Pole, the North Pole would have been King Edward's, and would now have passed into the ownership of King George. Again, if an island were to arise suddenly within the three-mile radius of the seas surrounding the British Isles, it would immediately become the property of the reigning sovereign.

The king has the sole right to print the Bible, the Book of Common Prayer and all acts of parliament in the United Kingdom. If he so desired he could forbid the printing of any or all of them within the British dominions.

The sturgeon and the whale are popularly known as royal fish. Whenever they are cast upon the coast of England the sturgeon's body becomes the property of the king, while the whale's is divided between the king and the queen—the former taking the head and the latter the tail. Some old authors justify this division on the ground that the queen needs the whale's tail to furnish her wardrobe with whalebone. But it has been rightly objected to these old authors' that baleen, or whalebone, comes from the head and not from the tail of the whale. Also, jurists have recoiled at the use of the word "fish" as applied to the whale, which is not a fish at all, but a mammal.

King Edward VII possessed a number of distinctions that were personal to himself. He was a clergyman, a lawyer and a doctor. As prebendary of St. David's cathedral in Wales he received a salary of £1, or $5, a year, which entitled him to preach a sermon in the cathedral pulpit. He was called to both the English and the Irish bars, though it would have been impossible for him to practice the profession of a barrister in view of the fact that this would have antagonized the old-time convention forbidding the bodily presence of the king in the temples of justice where he was constructively immanent. Some years ago the Royal College of Physicians made him a member of the faculty, and the Royal College of Surgeons also gave him permission to append the initials F. R. C. S. after his name. He welcomed all these honors in order that he might be associated with all fields of the national life.

GRAND OPERA AT POPULAR PRICES

ALESSANDRO BONCI.

Alessandro Bonci, the Italian tenor, before his departure on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse announced that he planned to organize a company to present grand opera in this country at popular prices. Until these plans take definite form, however, the tenor said he will go ahead with arrangements for a concert tour of this country next season. He intends to start out with a company of well known stars and to gradually replace them with young American shirrers. He believes there is ample material obtainable among those who need only an opportunity to reveal their worth. Mr. Bonci believes that the retirement of Mr. Hammerstein will result in a cut in salaries to the high priced opera stars and therefore he has decided to sing in concert.

SAYS COOK IS GOING NORTH AFTER ESKIMOS.

New York, May 30.—The mystery of the whereabouts of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the American says today, has been solved. He is in Scotland preparing for his trip to Etah, whence he plans to bring back his records of his discovery of the North Pole and his instruments which are cached there. He also intends to bring back the two Eskimos who accompanied him on his dash to the North Pole. Dr. Cook's objective point when he shall have recovered his records and instruments, says the newspaper, will be Copenhagen. There he will present his completed proofs to the scientific body before which he appeared when he first returned from the far north.

S. S. S. THE REAL CURE FOR SCROFULA
Scrofula is a blood disease manifested usually by an ulceration of the glands. It is almost entirely hereditary in its origin, being the seeds or dregs of some specific blood poison which has been transmitted, in modified form, to the offspring of diseased parentage. Where the blood is specially vitiated Scrofula attacks other portions of the system beside the glands, and we see its effects frequently in weak eyes, poorly developd bodies, running sores and ulcers, skin diseases like scaldhead, catarrhal troubles etc. While the young are the usual sufferers from scrofulous troubles, it is true that it is sometimes held in check until middle life is reached, or passed, and then, as the physical system begins to decline, older persons are attacked by the disease. S. S. S. is the one real and certain cure for Scrofula. It is a blood purifier without an equal and it cures this destructive blood poison by removing the germs from the blood and so enriching and building up the circulation that the disease can not remain. S. S. S. searches out every taint and impurity from the blood; it gives to the blood the richness and power necessary to the healthy growth of children, and it strengthens and invigorates the constitutions of older persons, by its fine tonic effects. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable medicine, perfectly safe for young or old. Scrofula being a blood disease can only be cured by a blood purifier like S. S. S. Book on the blood free to all who write and request it.

Malloy's Indians were relegated to the bottom of the ladder yesterday through the Shylock brand of pitching of Klingebiel and the superior play of the Champions. It might be mentioned that the home run hit by Altermott was the feature of the game.

Quite as exciting as anything seen at the park the present season was the attack of Mique Malloy upon Umpire Agur. The leader of the Indians had been called out at the bag, which decision aroused his ire into a turbulent surging river.

Mique, unmindful of fines or suspension, rushed upon the indicator holder and grabbed that worthy person by the neck. He grasped tightly and shook. He was persuaded to loose his hold and was also persuaded to leave the park, under the general management of a policeman.

Two of the happy runs of the Champions came in the second inning. Darby O'Brien was hit with one of Chief Roy's shoots and Altermott, after two strikes had been called upon him, hit the leather far over the left field fence. It was the best thing Altermott has done since the team has come home.

Sweeney followed this free hitting exhibition with a double and went to third when Woods was retired at first. He attempted to come home when Gillis hit to Black, but was thrown out at the plate. Klingebiel flew to Malloy, ending the happy frame.

In the dear, old eighth the thirid run was added to the ones that are being collected by the home team. Woods hit for one and was shoved along the paths by Gillis. He attempted to come home on Klingebiel's single to left garden, and was frustrated in the bold but laudable attempt. Klingebiel went to the halfway station on the throw in. The big chief watched Klingy narrowly out of his eagle eye. Suddenly he turned and shot the ball to second, or in the general direction. The pellet rolled to center field and when it was retrieved the pitcher was walking to the bench.

There was really no scare, for the Indians could not do much with the curves of Klingebiel. The Champions were playing a nice game in the field and there was very little chance for the Malloy pets to show the discourtesy they exhibited at Superior.

The defeat yesterday of the Indians shoved them to the bottom of the ladder and gave Duluth the longed-for start up to the top of the column.

The two teams have two games scheduled for today, one this morning and the other coming this afternoon. If the Champions win the two contests. It will give them a nice lead over the Indians and will also place them in a position to overtake La Crosse, the team that occupies the position immediately ahead of us.

Below you will find the more cause for joy.

Saturday's Game.

Our fellow-townsman, Richard Thorsen, was in fine fettle Saturday, and the Rochester Surgeons dropped the third game of the series by a score of 2 to 1. Thorsen really should have had a shutout. He wielded the brush with neatness and dispatch, but Anderson and Sweeney chucked a couple of ill-smelling bungles into the proceedings in the seventh inning, and Richard's spotless work was considerably marred thereby.

Except in the seventh, Rochester threatened only once. In the fifth, with two men down, Johnson hit between center and right for three bases. Twohey walked, but Joe Corrigan fanned and Johnson died on the path. Thorsen fanned eleven of the visitors and was steady all through the proceedings.

Mr. McNeil pitched ball that ordinarily would have been good enough to win. The Sox bunched singles on him in the sixth inning, however, and aided by some slow fielding on the part of the boys from the hospital town, they put two men across the plate and cinched the game.

The game was started in a driving rain, and the greater part was played in a misty downpour.

ROCHESTER IS DEFEATED

Superior Takes First of Series From Surgeons By Score of 8 to 2.

Superior defeated Rochester by the score of 8 to 2. Josie Krick, the former Sox, was on the mound for the Grumblers, holding the Surgeons safe at all stages of the game. Rochester played rather slow baseball at times and did not seem to get into the game until Superior held such a lead that it was impossible for the visitors to win. Rochester could do little with Krick, while Johnson proved comparatively easy for the Superior hitters.

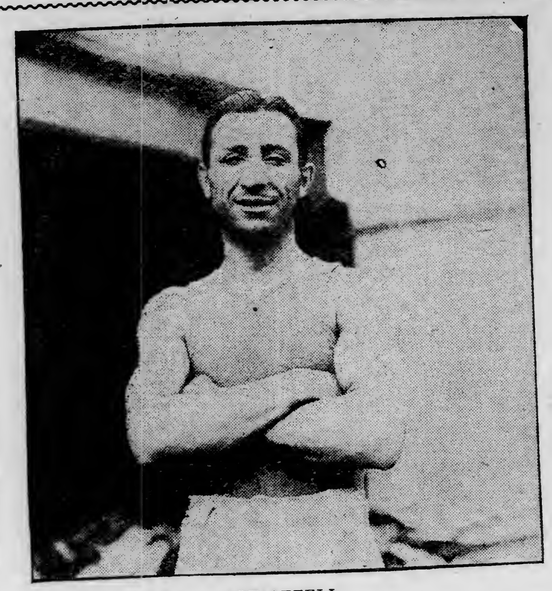
ATTELL'S WHISKERS PLAYED PROMINENT PART IN FIGHT



ABE ATTELL.

Tommy Murphy was quite easy for foxy Abe Attell in their ten-round fight before the National Sporting club. Abe's whiskers were the feature of the bout. He took great delight in rubbing them against Murphy's chest and neck in every clinch. This was what Murphy did to him at their last fight and Attell seized the chance of evening up matters. This photograph was made only an hour or two before the fight.

PACKEY AND FREDDY WELSH

Will Take International Peace Battle Before London Boxing Club.

Packey McFarland of Chicago and Freddy Welsh of Wales are scheduled to meet tonight before the National Boxing club of London. The fight is scheduled to go twenty rounds and is attracting intense interest in this country and England. McFarland is a slight favorite, with plenty of Welsh money in sight.

There is a deep feeling of bitterness between the two boys, so that the fight promises to be a fight in every sense of the word from the opening gong.

Both men are wonderfully clever and the fight promises to be one of the greatest ever fought between lightweights. The boys will battle at the English standard lightweight limit, 135, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. At this weight it is figured that McFarland should be at his strongest.

CROWDS SEE FIGHTERS

Johnson Boxes Five Rounds With His Sparring Partners.

Coffroth Says Jeffries Is in Remarkably Good Condition.

San Francisco, Cal., May 30.—The latest announcement from Jack Johnson's camp is the negotiations for the supervisory services of the veteran trainer Billy Delaney have been concluded and that he and Al. Kaufman will be installed at Johnson's quarters tomorrow or Wednesday. Johnson says that Delaney has agreed to oversee his training along with the job of managing Kaufman.

Kaufman, according to Johnson, will continue training for his coming fight with Sam Langford, at Johnson's place and he and the negro champion will naturally aid each other in boxing bouts.

Johnson yesterday afternoon drew the largest crowd since he commenced his boxing at the beach. The pavilion in which he works was crowded with 1,500 spectators, who cheered him lustily as he went through his grind. Among the visitors at the camp yesterday were Eddie Graney, the referee, and Jim Nell, father of Frankie Nell, at one time bantamweight champion. Both experts expressed themselves as pleased at the showing made by the negro and declared him to be in tip-top condition, considering the time he has to get ready for Jeffries.

Johnson opened the program with punching, tossing the medicine ball and body exercise on the mat. One of the fans grew impatient as Johnson was handling the weights and shouted to the colored man: "Oh, put on the gloves. Quit your fair kidding." Johnson grinned back and won over the house when he replied to the intruder by inviting him to come up and do a little boxing.

The boxing consisted of eight rounds, of which five were with George Cotton, and three with Marty Cutler. Cotton gave the champion a good work-out, but retired with a bleeding mouth. Cutler had entirely recovered from the knockout of Saturday, but he was far more cautious and did not attempt to mix things with Johnson. About three-quarters of an hour was taken up in the gymnasium and the crowd gave a cheer as the champion finally left for his dressing room. He will box again today and then take a layoff from gymnasium exercise for several days.

Coffroth Is Surprised.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 30.—Although boxing was not on the program at the Jeffries training camp yesterday, the gymnasium was packed when the ex-champion started to go through his work. It was the largest and one of the most enthusiastic crowds that have visited the camp since training began.

Despite a hot day, Jeffries shirked none of the gymnasium tasks. He worked hard for an hour and a quarter and retired to his dressing room dripping.

Among the sporting men in the crowd was Jim Coffroth, the San Francisco fight promoter. Coffroth had not seen Jeffries in action since he watched him box in New York last December and he expressed himself surprised at the fighter's physical condition.

"I did not think Jeffries ever could get down to weight," said Coffroth. "He looks to me to be in just about the same condition as he was when training for Monroe in Harbin Springs. I have never seen Jeffries looking quite as husky and healthy and I have watched him closely in many a fight. I am of the opinion that he is a better man today than he was ten years ago."

Manager Sam Berger came down from San Francisco in Jeffries new automobile. The machine will be used on frequent runs to Santa Cruz for hot baths. Jim Corbett is expected to join the training squad today.

"PENNSY" WINS FIELD MEET

Has Margin of But Two Points Over Old Eli.

Philadelphia, May 30.—The University of Pennsylvania won the intercollegiate championship track and field meet on Franklin field Saturday afternoon by the narrow margin of two points, scoring 27½ points to Yale's 25½. Michigan, by the fine work of R. C. Craig, her sprinter, took third place with 20 points. Princeton, scoring 20 points, Princeton made 17 points, Cornell 14, Harvard 13½, Syracuse 8, Amherst 6, Brown and Dartmouth each 3, Columbia 2½, and Wesleyan, Bowdoin and New York university each 1.

The world's record in the 220-yard dash—21 1-5 seconds—held by Wefters, was equalled by Craig of Michigan, and the intercollegiate pole vault record of 12 feet 3¼ inches, held by Campbell of Yale, was raised to 12 feet 4⅝ inches by Nelson of Yale.

The championships were not decided until the final event—the 220-yard dash—was run off. Before this sprint was started, Yale had raised her total points to 25½, or three more than Pennsylvania had, and there was great excitement as Craig of Michigan, Ramsdell and Minds of Pennsylvania, Robbeson of Wesleyan and Cooke of Princeton toed the scratch. Craig took the lead, and try as hard as he could, Ramsdell, who had defeated him in the 100-yard dash, could not catch him. The Western sprinter nearly flying over the course and there was no surprise when it was announced that in winning the race he had equalled the world's record. Ramsdell took second place and Minds third, giving Pennsylvania five points and topping Yale's score by two.

The hurdling of Gardner of Harvard in the 220-yard even helped to put Yale out of the championship. Chisholm of Yale was looked upon as a likely winner in this event, but Gardner hurdled beautifully and won rather easily.

As usual, Yale excelled in the pole vault. Nelson gave a great exhibition of vaulting. After winning the event at 12 feet 4⅜ inches, he tried for a world's record at 12 feet 10½ inches. He got over the bar, but in coming down his elbow struck the crossplece, much to the dismay of the 15,000 persons who looked on.

Excepting the pole vault, there were no notable performances in the field events, though Horner of Michigan was only one inch short of the intercollegiate record in putting the shot.

TOURNAMENT UNDER WAY

Expert Trap Shooters Competing at Northwestern Gun Club.

The tournament of the Northwestern Gun club of this city started this morning at the grounds of the club on the Rice Lake road. A number of prominent shooters from St. Paul, Minneapolis and other towns and cities are entered in the tournament.

There are ten events. The club has donated a prize of $10 for each event, this being in addition to the sweepstake prizes. It is expected that the shooting today will be the best seen at the Head of the Lakes for some time.

High wind and unfavorable weather conditions in general prevented consistent shooting at the meet of yesterday. Target shooting was extremely difficult under the high wind.

A challenge has been sent to the Superior Gun club for a meet between the Northwestern and Superior clubs. The challenge sent by Secretary Tesko of the local club provides for a team shoot of ten men on each side, a fifty-bird event, the losing team to pay for shells and birds. The local shooters would like to hold the shoot any time after June 5.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—The climax of the three days' racing meet at the Indianapolis motor speedway, during which many records have been broken will be reached today when the first annual national championship races of the American Automobile association will be run and Barney Oldfield, in his 200-horse power Benz, will attempt to lower the world's record for the mile, the half mile and the kilometer.

The brick track, washed clear of oil and dust, was alive at an early hour today with drivers trying out their cars. The closing events of the meet will have a great field of entries.

There will be a fifty-mile race for cars of 231 to 300 displacement, for which a silver trophy valued at $2,500 is offered; five and ten-mile free-for-all races and a mile speed trial for touring cars carrying four passengers.

CRAWFORD IS COMING BACK

Word has been received from "Bill" Crawford, former captain of the junior eight of the Duluth Boat club, in which the big oarsman says he will be in Duluth in about a week from Friday and will come out and try to make the crew.

He stated he had been taking exercise with the football squad in spring practice and was already in good physical condition. Crawford is enthusiastic over the prospects of the crew and is anxious to do all he can to better them.

While at the university Crawford has had the opportunity to see the St. Paul juniors work out. He is under the impression that at the present the Duluth juniors stand an excellent opportunity of defeating the St. Paul eight. He does not think the material at St. Paul as promising as the material here.

"Bill" told the officials of the rowing department that he would be here as soon as he completed his examinations.

GREEK AND SAILOR MATCHED TO WRESTLE.

Greek Johnny Hudson and Sailor Jack were matched Saturday afternoon to wrestle a finish match before the Duluth Athletic club, Wednesday evening, June 8. The boys will meet for the privilege of wrestling Young Miller for the world's welterweight championship.

The sailor is confident that he can defeat the Greek. Ed Adamson has Johnny Hudson in tow and has taught the boy many of the fine points of the game. He is confident that the Greek will pin the sailor. The local champion has long wanted a chance at Miller and is determined to defeat the Greek, so that he may get a chance at the welterweight honors.

Program at the Church.

The program at the First M. E. church, which was held after the parade had moved and which began soon after 11 o'clock, comprised selections on the pipe organ by Horace M. Reyner. J. H. La Vaque introduced Mayor M. B. Cullum, who presided at the services. Rev. M. O. Stockland delivered the invocation and the large audience sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee." John H. Norton read Abraham Lin-

Rev. Mr. Milne Speaks.

Taps was sounded, Charles Helmer was the bugler and Miss Maud Matteson vocalist. Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele pronounced the benediction. The Memorial address by Rev. Alexander Milne follows in part:

"Memorial day had its origin in the Civil war. The establishment of it was suggested by the veterans of that struggle, to commemorate the heroism of those who had fallen in battle, and of those who were spared to see the dawn of peace and afterwards in God's good time fell asleep.

"It was born, therefore, in the mingled feelings of sorrow and thankfulness, of deep regret and grateful triumph evoked by that conflict. It is not too much to say that without the Civil war this day had never been known. Its significance has broadened so that it is now the great national festival of a thankful patriotism on which we remember those who loved their country better than they loved their own lives. It is appropriate, therefore, to bear in mind, especially, the terrible days and the heroic deeds of the Civil war, particularly as we gaze upon the rapidly dwindling ranks of the veterans who nearly half a century ago consecrated their young manhood to the cause of human freedom when imperiled by the disruption of the Union.

It would not be an impossible task to prove that the war from 1861 to 1865 was the greatest and from the point of view of the cause of humanity the most important and most critical struggle of all American history, and I use the word 'American' as symbol of the whole Western world. The Civil war was the greatest event or greatest series of events the whole Western world has ever known, and it is doubtful if Europe in the past seventy-five years has had anything comparable to it in world-wide significance. It was assuredly the greatest in the history of the English-speaking people of North America. No one will question, I think, that our brief war with Spain was not to be compared to it. Tremendous consequences have already flowed from that war, and no man has foresight enough to prophesy what mighty results will yet flow from it, but it can claim no such high place in the history of human freedom, justice and brotherhood as the Civil war. This is not in the slightest degree to minimize the heroism of those who fought the soldiers of Spain in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. In their readiness to enlist and in their bravery they showed themselves true sons of their fathers.

They were not to blame that the war was not the inevitable and critical conflict in the cause of humanity, which the Civil war by all competent students is recognized to have been.

The Revolutionary War.

"What shall we say of the Revolutionary war? It would not be impossible to maintain before an impartial jury, with good prospect of success, that in its essential relations to the cause of humanity, the Civil war was greater than the Revolutionary. This may seem a bold, even a reckless statement. I do not at all deny the greatness of the revolution as an historical event. I simply dare to maintain that in its relation to the cause of humanity, the Civil war was more vital, more important and greater. The true interest of humanity was more vitally at stake in 1861 than in 1776. The opinion we formed in childhood, we found had to be modified as we read more widely and came to a clearer understanding of historical movements. There is another side to the story of the revolution, somewhat different to what we learned in our school histories. It was not in all its phases as simply and blindly heroic as we supposed. One figure does stand out in clearer dignity, and in more impressive grandeur, the more that age is studied, and that figure is Washington. The personality of Washington lifts into the place of greatness, much that without him would have been hopelessly commonplace and sordid. He was a patriot of that highest order, which includes not only those who were strong leaders of nations, but those who are the revered champions of humanity. To say that the revolution was a war for liberty against despotism, is a grotesque misunderstanding. It was rather a conflict between those who held different interpretations of freedom. The English then were lovers of freedom and were jealous of their rights. Nearly two centuries of history apart, with the broad Atlantic between them, so much broader than now, resulted in differences of new and even understanding of the same words, between the English in England and the English in America. It was really a family quarrel, in its nature a civil war, over matters which both held dear.

"Certainly it is true that one result of the revolution was the secession of the English people in America from all political connection with the English people in England. Perhaps there was no other way in which this great continent could have been most effectively dedicated, to the broadest freedom. If it was inevitable, it is a pity that the saparation could not have come in a peaceful way, as a daughter separates from her mother with tears of grateful affection as she goes out to set up her own home and family life. After all in the dominant influence in our lives, England is the mother of us all. We may come from Germany or Scandinavia, or Italy, or Ireland, but in our use of the English speech we are the debtors of England.

"We must be free or die, who speak the tongue that Shakespeare spoke; the faith and morals hold which Milton held.' Over 100 years ago an English poet wrote these words.

"Not only did the revolution mean the sundering of the people of English speech, but it meant also schism between two great bodies of the English in America.

Revolution Meant Schism.

"The Revolution meant infant schism, division, separation of those who ought to be together and this is one of the grounds on which I maintain that in comparison with the Civil war the resolution is not entitled to as high a place in the grateful remembrance of mankind. The Civil war forbade and forever made impossible the further schism of the English speaking people in America. The English speaking peoples of this continent were no more to split themselves into opposing fragments, but were to abide together as a union. The revolution mean division; the Civil war meant union.

"In relation to liberty the Civil war has all the advantage. Nobody with understanding of the situation will claim that had there been no Civil war there would have been no freedom in America. Without the revolution there would have been a somewhat different development and history of freedom in America and in England, but no informed reader of history supposes for a moment that freedom was born with the Declaration of Independence or would have perished from the earth had not Washington succeeded. The Revolutionary war rendered a larte service in the history of freedom, there is no doubt. Life in England, life in America, life in other countries is different from what it would have been without it, but freedom would have existed without it.

Freedom at Stake.

"But the Civil war had an essential relation to human freedom. Had it not been fought America would still be defiled by the presence of slaves. The Civil war ended human slavery. Men were no longer chattels to be bought and sold like cattle and merchandise. It becomes clearer and clearer as years go by that it was human freedom that was in danger and was really at stake in the Civil war. The soldiers of the Union fought in the good fight in which all lovers of humanity and heroes have fought. Their army was not simply the army of the Republic. It was the Grand Army of Humanity, the Host of the Lord. On these two points I should be willing to rest my plea that the Civil war holds the supreme place in American history. As a kind of spiritual instinct the people of the North saw the issue and consecrated themselves to the nation's life. There was a sudden rush and outburst of patriotic fervor. The path of duty and wisdom became clear. There was one supreme task laid upon the nation's manhood and that was to preserve the Union. Never did patriotic zeal burn with a clearer flame. Hearts of men were shaken with emotions new and strange. The armies of the North were filled with the nation's finest manhood. Sherman's army which marched through Georgia from Atlanta to the sea, was probably the finest, most capable fighting force the world ever saw. They were ready for any emergency. They were capable of mastering almost any situation. They could build a bridge or run a railroad.

"As never before America realized her high place and divine mission. 'Save America to save the world' was the cry that inspired many, a score of years ago, to give and labor for the complete Christianization of this land. This is what the men of the Grand Army of the Republic did. They saved America that she might bless and and save the world. As could not have been said of her before, it may now be said of America, this pulssant nation, like the eagle of Milton's vision, renewing her mighty youth:

"'She lifts up the manhood of the poor
She of the open soul and open door
With room about her hearth for all mankind.'"

Will Strew Flowers.

In honor of those who participated in and who gave up their lives in naval warfare in the internecine conflict, services will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Fifth avenue dock. Members of the Women's Relief Corps, veterans and others participating will strew flowers on the water from the dock at the foot of the Fifth avenue west.

Graves of former veterans will be decorated at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Beneath the green mantle of the dead sleep a few Confederate veterans and these will receive the same attention as the graves of those who wore the blue.

The rifle teams and drum corps of the Sons of Veterans did not participate in the local ceremonies as they attended the exercises at Two Harbors. For the first time in the history of Duluth the saloons were closed between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. in conformity with the new state law.

"THE DAWN OF PEACE."

Rev. John Walker Powell Preaches Memorial Sermon at Endion Church.

The Rev. John Walker Powell, pastor of the Endion Methodist Episcopal church, preached a sermon, "The Dawn of Peace," in the church yesterday morning for the benefit of about 125 members of the veterans of the Civil war, members of the two local posts of the Grand Army of the Republic; the Sons of Veterans and the Women's Relief Corps. Several other Duluth churches held memorial exercises.

Mr. Powell chose his text from Isaiah 2:24: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks: Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

"The Grand Army of the Republic," said Mr. Powell, "fought for peace. The war guaranteed the peace of the nation within its own confines, a notable contribution to the world's peace. Nearly 3,000 years have passed since the prophecy of peace was written. Nearly 2,000 years have transpired since the birth of the Prince of Peace. Yet the day of peace seems far distant. Recently the greatest American battleship was constructed—the Florida, an engine of wear nearly 600 feet in length with almost 22,000 tons burden, carrying a battery of guns equal to that of five ordinary battleships. Nations vie with each other in augmenting their naval armaments. Eleven years after the first Hague peace conference was called for the avowed purpose of securing a reduction in armed forces, nations are busily rivalling each other in the construction of fighting machines on water and in building up their armed forces on land."

Mr. Powell, while deploring the necessity of war, eulogized the man who in time of his country's need will take up arms to defend his family, his home and his nation. The speaker upheld the declarations of Col. Roosevelt, who, in his speech at Christiania, Norway, advocated the formation of a League of Peace by the principal nations and favored the securing of peace even at the end of the sword's point.

"You gentlemen of the Grand Army of the Republic," said Mr. Powell, "know better than we the need of peace for upon you fell the brunt of war.

REV. JOHN W. POWELL,
Who Delivered a Sermon to the Veterans Sunday.

This day, set apart in memory of your comrades who gave their lives for the cause of peace, is to us a perpetual reminder of the cost of a country, cost of liberty, the price of peace. The day will come when the last veteran will have been carried to his resting place beneath the sod, when the Civil war will become only a tradition and a memory.

"But while the nation endures this day should be sacredly observed lest we forget the price that has been paid and that we must ever pay that the government of the people—not of this land alone, but of the world—government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth. For when the lesson of self government shall be wholly learned and all nations shall come to know each other as neighbors, the Prince of Peace will reign and the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ."

Then the audience sang "Marching Through Georgia."

Frank Crassweller was the next speaker. He spoke of "The Future Defenders of the Nation," and his patriotic eloquence made a decided impression on the children. Bentley P. Neff was the last speaker on the program. He spoke for the Citizens' staff.

The meeting closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the audience.

The boys cheered enthusiastically at the conclusion of each speech, and waved their flags with vigor.

"VAUDEVILLIANS" ARE STRANDED

Swear Out Warrant for Arrest of Booking Agent.

Stranded in Duluth without employment because of the alleged deceit of Charles J. Ellison, a booking agent with an office at 516 Columbia building, eighteen vaudeville actors and actresses, comprising several different troupes have caused a warrant to be issued for Ellison's arrest on the grounds that he conducted a booking agency without a license. Ellison has not yet been apprehended by the police.

The theatrical people came to this city from New York May 16. Since that time they have been without employment and most of them state that they are about at the end of their rope, declaring that they hardly know where they are going to get their next meal. Some of them have obtained temporary employment and yesterday they put on a performance at Superior which netted them some cash for immediate wants.

It appears that Ellison represented that he had the booking of several theaters on the range and at the Head of the Lakes. When the several companies arrived he said that they had been too prompt. They appeared willing to wait, but when he continued to put them off from day to day with promises that never materialized, they came to the conclusion that he had "thrown the hooks into them." The warrant was sworn out Saturday afternoon by John Senzell of Senzell Bros. Other troupes are Jones & Grienes, Radcliffe & Belmont, the Three Russian Hussars and the Crescent Trio.

POLICE RAID FOUR SALOONS

The police "got" four saloons yesterday, although but one arrest was made.

A squad of six men headed by Capt. Fiskett blocked every entrance to the bar of the Sixth avenue hotel, Sixth avenue west and Michigan street. Two went to the rear entrance, two to the entrance through the hotel and two to the door leading from the restaurant. The last couple reached the door just as a man was being let out and stepping inside found about a dozen men lined up before the mahogany.

Reports were made against the Lenox hotel, L. De Santo at Seventh avenue west and Superior street, was taking care of the fairsts of a fair-sized crowd, and J. Erickson at 1627 West Superior street was running a blind pig upstairs, according to the police.

L. De Santo was the only man arrested. It is claimed that John Kerns of the Sixth avenue hotel kept on doing business until a late hour despite the fact that the raid was made about 7 o'clock.

$1,000 FOR A LEAF.

Wizard Burbank says that though some dishonest dealers both in this country and in Europe have been offering specimens of the so-called Burbank spineless cactus for two years the first genuine specimens were put on the market only last summer.

He has been experimenting with the production of a spineless opuntia, or prickly pear, for twelve years. Specimens were sent to him from all over the world and thousands of seedlings were raised every year, but most of them were grubbed up as unavailing.

The orignal successful plant has grown in three years to a height of six feet and is over six feet in diameter. The thornless varieties cannot be raised from seed, but are propagated only from cuttings, which must first be wilted in the sun for a week or two before they will grow. "After that," says Mr. Burbank in the Philadelphia Record, "they will root anywhere any end up—even in your overcoat pocket of on the floor back of the stove."

A single leaf of the best variety of the thornless cactus, the Santa Rosa, was sold for $1,000 to John M. Rutland of Melbourne, Australia, who has the right to sell in the southern hemisphere, and one leaf of another variety was disposed of to the same Auatrallan horticulturist for $500.

"The forage proposition," continued Mr. Burbank, "is by no means all there is to cactus culture. The fruits have wonderful possibilities. Many of my helpers prefer 'pear' to apricots or peaches and I myself find it delicious. There is great variety in the taste of the different sorts, and my ambition now is to produce a type that will bear distinct varieties of cactus fruit, the same as different varieties of apples are characterized by different flavors."

TEDDY'S FAVORITE HEROES

Something About Timoleon and Hampden, Whom Roosevelt Places With Washington and Lincoln.

EPICTETUS and Themistocles must now give way to Timoleon in the Hall of Fame. Ex-President Roosevelt has brought him to the front. If Mayor Gaynor and Mr. Roosevelt keep this up the time will soon come when American newspaper readers will cease to find their knowledge of great men limited to Matty, Jack Johnson and Harry Lauder, says the New York Times.

Considering the way in which Mr. Roosevelt made Bunyan's "man with a muckrake" a popular character by casually mentioning him in a speech, it is hardly too much to expect that he can make a success of Timoleon when it turns out that that statesman is much nearer to his heart than Bunyan's creation.

Mr. Roosevelt has also reintroduced John Hampden to the public. But this is not so important, for, according to the last census, there were as many as eleven or twelve American adults who knew who Hampden was, whereas an advertisement for tired business men who know something about Timoleon would not draw forth as many replies.

The Associated Press dispatches printed in last Sunday's newspapers contained the following information:

"Speaking of the late king's tact today, Mr. Roosevelt gave an illustration of what he termed the finer sense of things which the king possessed.

"'Next to the ring John Hay gave me,' he said, 'I value the miniature of John Hampden that King Edward sent me after I became president. That was a present a soverign could make with dignity, and one a democratic president could accept. All historians and royalists agree that Hampden was a good man. The king must have known that Hampden was one of my four heroes—Timoleon, Hampden, Washington, and Lincoln. Such a selection as the miniature showed extreme tact.'"

Roosevelt's Heroes.

Everybody has the instinct of hero-worship and has his heroes, from the man who tries to model his life after St. John the Divine to him who seeks to emulate Monk Eastman. It is interesting to learn who are the heroes of Theodore Roosevelt.

There is the strongest possible likeness among them, a likeness so strong as to indicate the kind of qualities which excite Mr. Roosevelt's admiration.

All four were advocates of freedom. Each fought for it in his own way. Three of them established it. The fourth died fighting for it.

All four were men devoid of show, ostentation or theatricism. All were men of consummate patience, sagacious, far-seeing, single-hearted, and devoted to an ideal.

Macaulay's description of Hampden might stand equally for a description of Timoleon or of Washington.

"The celebrated Puritan leader is an almost solitary instance of a great man who neither sought nor shunned greatness, who found glory only because glory lay in the plain path of duty."

Timoleon, Washington and Hampden fought to overthrow tyranny. Timoleon and Washington overthrew it. Timoleon and Washington presided over the erection of free institutions in place of the tyranny they overthrew. Hampden began the fight against tyranny and for free institutions, which was taken up by others and carried to victory after his death. Lincoln and Hampden died for the cause in which they were enlisted; Timoleon and Washington gave their lives for it. All four were warriors for democracy. Timoleon destroyed the tyrants of Sicily. Hampden led the movement to overthrow the tyrant of England. Washington overthrew tyranny in America.

All four were not only reformers, but statesmen. Timoleon and Washington governed the countries they freed.

In the fourth century B. C. the Greek cities in Sicily were bleeding under the terrible rule of the Tyrants, and the assaults of their Carthaginian enemies. Unable to repulse the latter, they appealed to Corinth for assistance. The Corinthians sent them a small force, and picked out Timoleon as its leader.

A Lover of Liberty.

Timoleon had already made himself famous as a lover of liberty. He had saved the life of his brother, Timophanes, in battle, but Timophanes attempted to overthrow the liberties of Corinth and make himself tyrant. Timoleon killed his brother, and saved the freedom of the city.

Timoleon had only 700 men. His first task, before engaging the Carthaginians, was to meet the Tyrants. After a hard campaign, in which he had to contend with attempted assasination as well as with open warfare, he defeated them, and established himself as undisputed master of Syracuse.

He might easily have made himself tyrant, but, as Washington rejected Knox's overtures to make himself king, so Timoleon determined that neither himself nor any other person should be a despot in Syracuse. One of his first acts was to destroy the citadel, which had ben the seat of the tyrants for so many years.

Next he adopted measures to repeople the city, which had become so deserted in the course of years of tyranny and warfare that grass was growing in the market places, and whole streets were uninhabited.

He offered free land to colonists from Corinth, and soon had 60,000 immigrants. Next he proceeded to enact laws for their government, and he established a democratic constitution in the city long given over to the irresponsible rule of the Tyrants. Under it the chief magistrate was elected annually. The democratic system put into force by him lasted for centuries—in fact, it was still in force in the reign of Augustus.

He spent the next two or three years partly in arranging the internal affairs of Syracuse, partly in destroying the remaining Tyrants, and partly in a victorious war against the hitherto invincible Carthaginians.

Refused an Office.

Having restored peace to all Sicily, Timoleon directed its affairs with wisdom and justice, although he remained a private citizen of Syracuse. He repeopled the great cities of Agrigentum and Gela, which had been desolated by the Carthaginians, and settled colonies in other cities. But he would not accept an yoffice or assume any title.

Freedom of speech and equality before the law were among the institutions established by him. The anecdotes told of him are such as might have been told of Washington or Hampden.

Once, for instance, a demagogue named Demaenetus made a speech in the popular assembly attacking Timoleon's public conduct with the utmost violence. Timoleon's comment was to offer thanks to the gods for granting his prayer that the Syracusans might enjoy freedom of speech.

On another occasion another demagogue, Laphystius, demanded that Timoleon should give bail to answer an indictment that had been brought against him. Timoleon's friends began to raise a clamor, but Timoleon himself put them down, saying that it had been the object of his whole work to make the law the same for all Syracusans, high or low.

He became blind shortly before his death, but the Syracusans continued to go to him as before for advice on all matters of difficulty. There is no blemish on his fame except his failure to protect from the wrath of his people the wife and sister of one of the conquered Tyrants.

Such is one of the men who furnishes inspiration to Theodore Roosevelt. In another, John Hampden, Macaulay sees "the sobriety, the self-command, the perfect soundness of judgment, the perfect rectitude of intention, to which history furnishes no parallel, or furnishes a parallel in Washington alone."

GOVERNMENT TO ASK INJUNCTION AGAINST FREIGHT RATE RAISE

Action Is Decided on After Conference at the White House.

Wickersham and the President Consider Protests By Shippers.

La Follette Introduces Resolutions Affecting Railroad Rate Schedules.

Washington, May 31.—A decision at a White House conference this afternoon between the president and Attorney-General Wickersham to institute at once injunction proceedings, probably at St. Louis, against the Western Traffic association to prevent a general increase in freight rates tomorrow, preceded by only half an hour the introducton in the senate of a resolution by Senator La Follette declaring it to be the sense of that body that such an injunction suit should be brought.

None of the senators in the chamber when Mr. La Follette put in his resolution knew of the decision already reached. Senator Crane of Massachusetts, who saw the president at the conclusion of the conference with the attorney-general, was the first to take the news to the capitol.

Elkins Stopped La Follette.

Senator La Follette was prevented from making a speech in support of his resolution by the determination of Senator Elkins to call by the railroad bill for immediate consideration.

Attorney General Wickersham, after attending the sitting of the United States supreme court, had a series of conferences with senators and it was decided that Senator Curtis of Kansas should make the reply to Senator La Follette if the resolution should again be called up.

The decision to institute injunction proceedings followed a conference in this city yesterday between Attorney General Wickersham and a committee representing shippers, consumers and producers in the territory affected by the proposed increase in rates.

Clapp Went With Committee.

This committee was accompanied to the department of justice by Senators Clapp of Minnesota, Cullom of Illinois and Warner of Missouri and Representatives Nye of Minnesota, Hitchcock and Norris of Nebraska, Hubbard of Iowa, Madden of Illinois and Stafford of Wisconsin. The committee

KOHLER CASE IS ON AT CLEVELAND

Promises Most Sensational and Bitter Trial Ever Held in City.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 31.—What promises to be one of the most bitter and sensational trials ever held in this city was begun before the civil service commission today when Frederick Kohler, suspended chief of police, appeared to answer charges which have been filed against him.

Kohler, who has a reputation as the "best chief" and is the originator of the Golden Rule in police matters, is accused of misconduct in office, intoxication and gross immorality. The charges against the chief were filed last Wednesday and he was suspended by Mayor Baehr on Thursday.

Acting Chief of Police Schmunk has forbidden any members of the police department from spying upon Kohler or taking any part in the trial unless subpoenaed.

Kohler today filed with the civil service commission a general denial of the twenty-three charges against him.

SUGAR FRAUD TRIAL RESUMED

Search for Men Higher Up Is Expected to Bear Fruit Soon.

New York, May 31.—With three defendants eliminated, but with the interest in the proceedings heightened rather than diminished by their withdrawal, the resumption today of the sugar conspiracy trial in the United States circuit court was accompanied by rumors that the government's long search for men "higher up" might be rewarded soon. The reports arose chiefly out of developments said to have followed the arrest of Jomes O. Brezezenski, the former special treasury agent, on a charge of perjury in connection with the sugar case.

Three Yet on Trial.

As the result of pleas of guilty last Friday by the three government checkers on trial there remained the "big man" in the case, Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, and two of his former subordinates, Ernest W. Gebracht, superintendent of the company's Williamsburg refinery, and James F. Bendernagel, the refinery cashier. Motions of their counsel to dismiss the indictments were denied by Judge Martin after the jury had been excused on the adjournment over today.

The taking of testimony in their behalf, following the formal opening by the defense, was expected to be well under way before the day's session ended.

ROOSEVELT IS GIVEN FREEDOM OF LONDON; JOLTS STAID BRITONS

GIVEN FREEDOM OF CITY OF LONDON

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Ex-President Makes Speech on British Policies in the Guild Hall.

Creates Sensation By His Remarks on Rule in Africa.

Senator Root Has Conference With Him in English Capital.

London, May 31.—Theodore Roosevelt was today presented with the freedom of the city of London and he accepted the honor with a literalism that led him into a frankness of speech that created a sensation in the old Guild hall.

The freedom of the city is an honor rarely given to foreigners, the last American on whom it was conferred being Gen. U. S. Grant.

As the former head of a country that once paid tribute to Great Britain, the American statesman today gave the motherland some bold advice as to her duty toward her most troublesome dependency in Africa. It was, Mr. Roosevelt said, either right or not right for Great Britain to be in Egypt and establish order there. If it was not right she should get out.

British Rule in Europe.

Mr. Roosevelt eulogized British rule in Uganda and the Sudan. He also declared that Great Britain had given Egypt the best government that the country had had in 2,000 years, but in certain vital points it had erred. "Timidity and sentimentality," he said, might cause more harm than violence and injustice.

"Sentimentality," he added, "is the most broken reed upon which righteousness can lean."

Mr. Roosevelt denounced the nationalist party of Egypt as neither desirous nor capable of guaranteeing primary justice. It was trying to bring murderous chaos upon the land.

Thinks England Should Rule.

Either it was or was not right for Great Britain to be in Egypt, and establish order throughout the country. If it was not right to further this purpose, then the British should get out. Some nation, said the former president,

OWEN URGES DIRECT VOTE

Oklahoma Senator Also Favors Recall in National Affairs.

Says Action Direct By People Will Help Clear Away Corruption.

Washington, May 31.—"It will be better for this country," said Senator Owen of Oklahoma today, "when senators and members of congress and state legislators and municipal legislators are chosen by the direct vote of the people and when the people have the right of recall by the nomination of a successor to their public servants. The people will never abuse their power."

The senator was speaking in the senate in favor of a resolution introduced by him, in accordance with the wishes of the legislature of the state of Oklahoma, providing for the submission of a constitutional amendment for the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

Such an amendment, he said, would prevent the corruption of legislatures, would prevent the improper use of money in the campaigns by men ambitious to obtain a seat in the senate, and would compel candidates for the senate to be subjected to the severe scrutiny of a campaign before the people and compel the selection of the best-fitted men.

Confidence in Senate.

Further, he said, it would popularize government and tend to increase the confidence of the people in the senate,

KAISER'S WRIST BOTHERS HIM

Emperor Fails to Attend Annual Review for First Time in His Reign.

Potsdam, May 31.—The abscess on the right wrist of Emperor William is healing and his majesty's physicians appear to be satisfied with the results of their treatment. The emperor remains at the new palace, where King Albert of Belgium, who arrived yesterday, is being entertained.

For the first time in his reign the emperor failed today to attend the annual review of the garrison of Potsdam. Crown Prince Frederick William, who took his place, was accompanied by Empress Auguste Victoria, King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, Prince Tsai Tao, brother of the prince regent of China, and Marquis San Guiliano, the Italian foreign minister.

Grand Jurors in Illinois Take Testimony About Lorimer Election.

Supply Bill Passage Also Under Investigation at Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., May 31.—Preparations were made today for the presentation of another chapter in the legislative bribery investigation before the Sangamon county grand jury.

With the confession of State Senator D. W. Holstlaw fresh in their minds, the jurors awaited to quiz Representative C. L. McMackin, Republican, of Salem, and H. D. McCullom, Democrat, of Louisville, who were subpoenaed several days ago. Both McMackin and McCullom are from the forty-second senatorial district, from which Senator Holstlaw comes, and both voted for William Lorimer on the day when he was elected to the United States senate.

RECORDS SHOW SEVERE QUAKE

Weather Bureau Issues Statement Without Trying to Locate Tremors.

Washington, May 31.—The weather bureau today issued the following bulletin:

"A distant earthquake, probably of considerable intensity at the origin, was recorded at the weather bureau in the early morning of May 31. The preliminary tremors began at 1 minute, 26 seconds after midnight, seventy-fifth meridian time. The second preliminary tremor began at 6 minutes, 46 seconds after midnight.

"While the amount of motion recorded was only moderate, the duration of the record exceeded an hour and apparently was produced by an earthquake of rather greater than usual intensity. The phases of the motion were fairly sharply indicated and denote a probable distance of the origin of about 3,000 miles. The record does not indicate any special direction from Washington."

PETER WRING,
Hibbing Chief of Police

Woman Claims He Tried to Force Her Into Life of Shame.

Confesses Crime to Chief of Police Wring of Hibbing.

Admits She Fabricated Story of Attack By an Unknown Man.

Hibbing, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Joseph Dillon today confessed to Chief of Police Peter Wring that she shot and killed her husband on their homestead near here yesterday.

Dillon was at first said to have been killed while resisting advances some stranger made towards his wife.

The woman, who came to town last night and told the police her husband had been murdered while trying to defend her, told a different story this morning when Chief Wring put her through a severe "sweating" process. With much weeping she admitted that she had killed her husband. She said in effect that she killed him because he sought to force her into a life of shame.

When Mrs. Dillon first told her story to the officers she claimed that a cer-

QUIZ WOMAN ABOUT CRIME

Wife of Missing Janitor Is Detained in Kellner Case.

Train of Circumstantial Evidence Points to Him as Slayer.

Louisville, Ky., May 31.—The most persistent questioning of Mrs. Joseph Wendling, who is held by the police, charged with having been an accessory to the murder of Alma Kellner, the child whose mutilated body was found in a sub-cellar of St. John's parochial school yesterday after a search lasting months, has failed to shake the woman's first declaration that she knew nothing about the crime.

She adheres to her statement that a ring and pin found in a trunk at her home, both of which have been identified as the property of the murdered child, were given her by a boy and further than her admission that she has seen nothing of her husband, who was janitor at the school, since his disappearance on Jan. 14, when he drew $100 from the bank, she will say nothing about him.

Points to Janitor.

Investigation by the police is weaving a rope of circumstantial evidence about the missing janitor. Clothing which he is known to have worn bears numerous stains, which the detectives pronounce traces of human blood. A hat recovered from an old barrel, where Mrs. Wendling said she had thrown it

Wausau, Wis., May 31. —The State Bank of Unity, this county, was robbed today of $2,000, the safe of the bank being dynamited. The robbers escaped.

VETERANS DIE AS COMRADES MARCH

Memorial Day Adds Two to List of Michigan Graves to Be Trimmed.

Detroit, Mich., May 31.—Two veterans of the Civil war died in Michigan yesterday almost at the moment their comrades were decorating the graves of those gone before.

At New Haven, Rev. A. J. Holmes, 65 years old, was taken ill while conducting the memorial services in Maccabee hall. He died in a few hours of heart disease.

At Owosso, William Skinner, 72 years old, who had not been absent from a Memorial day parade in thirty years, expressed keen regret at his inability to march, as he heard the martial music of the band passing his home. He died before the procession had returned from the cemetery.

MINERS REFUSE TO RETURN TO WORK

Italians Lead Malcontents in the Pittston Coal District.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 31.—Contrary to expectations, the 12,000 anthracite mine workers in the Pittston district, who have been on strike for nearly two weeks, did not return to work today. The Italians, who are in the majority, want the operators to sign an agreement with them at once, which the operators refuse to do until the grievances are investigated by the conciliation board. The strikers claim they are excessively docked and that coal they mine is not properly weighed.

FEAR FOR FATE OF MRS. DOXEY

Relatives of Alleged Poisoner Become Active at Her Trial.

St. Louis, Mo., May 31.—That the relatives of Mrs. Dora E. Doxey, on trial for the murder of William J. Erder, realize the seriousness of the evidence against her, was indicated during today's session of court. Frequent conferences were held with the woman's attorneys by Mrs. Morris, a sister, and Jefferson Fuller, the aged father of the defendant.

The testimony introduced by the state was mainly corroborative of that presented yesterday.

Judge Grimm today enforced a ruling which bars children and young girls from the court room.

Yesterday an attorney testified that the woman had predicted the death of a relative in a letter and sought to ascertain indebtedness held up pending the settlement of his estate.

Then the pastor of the church to which the Doxeys belonged in Columbus, Neb., told of their straightened circumstances, and just before adjournment Mrs. Katherine Erder, mother of the dead man, corroborated the testimony of her daughter, Miss Kate Erder, who is regarded as Mrs. Doxey's nemesis.

ELOPER IS SENT TO STATE'S PRISON

Man Admits Guilt But Woman Says She Acted Unconsciously.

Wahpeton, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jacob Kelly, charged with a statutory offense, appeared before Judge Allen, pleaded guilty and received a sentence of a year and a half in the state penitentiary. Sheriff Frank Heley of Richland county was the complaining witness.

This marks the close of an extremely sensational case, in which the sheriff followed Kelly and Mrs. Heley to Wyndmere, Richland county, where Kelly was arrested and the wife returned to Wahpeton.

Mrs. Heley claims that she did not know what she was doing when she left with Kelly. She is 45 years of age, and is a grandmother. At the present time she is at the home of her own parents in Minnesota.

William Thompson, charged with grand larceny, also appeared before Judge Allen, pleading guilty and receiving a sentence of eighteen months in state prison.

OAK HALL "INDUCEMENTS" ARE REAL

Good taste in clothes is a matter of good breeding and cultivation. It's the attribute that inspires the world's greatest designers—designers of "Oak Hall" clothes.

Notice the fine points of the "Oak Hall" coat—the easy, graceful drape of the lines from the collar to the skirt of the coat. There is generous breadth, but no undue fullness. The effect at the collar, the shoulder blades and back of the armpits gives the impression of fabric molded to the figure, yet under action there is not the slightest interference to the play of the muscles.

These finer points of "Oak Hall" art clothes are INDUCEMENTS that appeal to men whose habitual correctness of attire is a matter of second nature. They are the qualities they insist upon, yet the prices must not be greater on that account. So, then,

$15, $18 and $20

Suits, incorporating all that "Oak Hall" stands for, are offered you in unusual qualities of approved fabrics, affording a selection of patterns that few men expect to find out of New York.

GOOD CROP IS IN SIGHT

Agricultural Outlook in County Excellent, Says Prof. Cooper.

Is an Enthusiastic Believer in Northern Minnesota Soil.

Prof. Thomas Cooper, in charge of demonstration and extension work of the state agricultural college, who has been in Duluth and vicinity for several days, said before leaving the city that the crop outlook is very good.

At Meadowlands, where the agricultural experts are building up a model colony, he found conditions to be remarkably promising. Saturday Prof. Cooper spent at the poor farm, where he inspected the development work that is being carried on there. The potatoes, he found, are in flourishing condition, and he authorized the planting of the farm's corn acreage this week.

Prof. Cooper has made a wide study of soil and soil contents in St. Louis county, and he is an enthusiastic believer in the coming greatness of this region as an agricultural section.

"Of glacial origin, the soil of St. Louis county shows all gradations from a sand underlaid by clay subsoil to a very heavy clay soil," he says. "By the mixing and often the redepositing of soil areas, the soil has come to vary in the same township or even on the same farm.

"The subsoil is generally clay of close texture, often tenacious enough to make good brick. This is of the utmost importance. The farmer can make the surface what he will; he can do little with the subsoil. In St. Louis county, much the larger area is underlaid with excellent clay subsoil.

"Considering the surface, two types of soil are recognized—the sandy clay loam and the heavy clay soil.

"The sandy soil has usually a red or yellow hue from the presence of iron oxides. It is most common near the lake or rivers. It is rich in the elements of plant food and is easily tillable, breaking readily under the plow and responding to good tillage. It contains enough clay so that it may be moulded when damp and will hold its form, but when dry and cultivated it crumbles easily and forms an excellent seed bed.

"The several types of clay soil cover the larger area by far, varying from light clay with a considerable per cent of sand to very heavy clay. These heavier soils are harder to subdue but they can be worked by cultivation and the addition of humus. The lighter clays are easily worked and in a short time by proper treatment become excellent soil for cropping. These soils grow all forms of root or grass crops to great advantage.

"These soil types are well supplied with nitrogen, phosphorus, potash and lime. Nitrogen, phosphorus and potash are the elements in which soil is most often lacking. Their abundance here makes the land yield richly.

"Because of old forest fires the soil is apt to be deficient in humus. But that can easily be cured by manure and by growing clover. Legumes grow so luxuriantly that there is no excuse for any cultivated land lacking this mellowing influence. Clover also makes the land mellow by mechanical action, opening and airing the dense soil for easy tilth.

"Swamp lands are a separate type, covering thousands of acres in this county. They are generally composed of black muck from a few inches to some feet in thickness, lying on clay subsoil. Once drained, they should become an immensely valuable addition to the state's resources though they may require commercial fertilizers to supply a deficiency in potash and phosphorus."

Mr. Cooper will attend the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Crookston, beginning tomororw and lasting for three days.

ALLEGED HORSE THIEF BREAKS DICKINSON JAIL.

Dickinson, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carl Albrecht, whom the local officials captured only after a spirited chase, has escaped from the county jail and cannot be located. He was charged with having stolen some horses from this city, and had entered a plea of guilty. It was when he was to have been taken before the judge for sentence that his escape became known.

WILL NOT REINSTATE NORTHWESTERN CO-ED.

Chicago, May 31.—The faculty of Northwestern university has refused to reinstate Miss Louise Stolp, a co-ed, who recently was suspended for entertaining a former co-ed, Miss Stolp's graduation is delayed one year by the faculty's action. There is considerable indignation among the students because of the suspension of Miss Stolp and two petitions have been presented to the faculty in protest.

President Harris of the school favored the girl's reinstatement, but the faculty refused to even consider the case.

Mayor McCarthy Hurt.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 31.—Mayor P. H. McCarthy of San Francisco broke his ankle in an automobile accident here Monday afternoon. Mayor McCarthy was riding in the car of J. O. Carson, national secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, when the machine collided with a street car at North and Pennsylvania streets. Mr. McCarthy was taken to his room at a hotel.

LOCAL MEN TO "HOLD BAG"

That Is the Plan of Erlanger, Says Charles A. Marshall.

Claims Trust Will Not Spend a Dollar of Its Own Money.

The announcement of Klaw & Erlanger that the theatrical trust would spend $25,000,000 fighting the Independents, is nothing but a bluff, and is considered a joke in theatrical circles, according to Charles A. Marshall, owner of the Lyceum theater and a director in the National Theater Owners' association, the organization of the Independents.

"The trust is following out its old methods of using other people's money to whip its enemies" said Mr. Marshall this morning. "Klaw & Erlanger won't spend any money to build a theater in Duluth. If they can get some local capitalists to build it for them, they will go ahead with their plans. If Erlanger would put some of his own money in here in an honest fight with us, we would welcome him, and tell him to go ahead, prepared to give him a good fight. But he won't. He won't spend a dollar here. He sends his agent up here, or rather orders Mr. Scott to send his agent up here, to scout around, and try to induce some local people to build him a theator. This city isn't big enough for two first-class theaters, playing attractions of the kind the Lyceum plays. It is hardly big enough for one. What will the result be? One will have to go to the wall, or perhaps both of them, and it will be a black eye for the town. Erlanger knows that but he doesn't care. He won't lose anything, and meanwhile he will be getting his booking fees. It is the same old game that the trust has been playing for years, and astde from all selfish considerations, I would hate to see any Duluth people provide any part of his $25,000,000 fund.

Has Enough Theaters.

"Duluth has all the theaters it can support now. There is the Lyceum, the new Orpheum, the Bijou, and new $40,000 vaudeville theater going up in the West end, the new Finnish theater, and about ten or twelve picture shows. You know the history of the Metropolitan theater, and of the old Temple. It will be the history of the new Klaw & Erlanger theater if it is built, and local people who build it will be left holding the bag, while Klaw & Erlanger take in the profits. I have studied the trust's methods too long not to know them."

In view of Mr. Marshall's statement, the following statement sent out from the office of the National Theater Owners' association, is of interest here:

"The announcemen that comes from the offices of Klaw & Erlanger to the effect that they will immediately begin the building of new theaters throughout the country in opposition to the 1,600 houses under control of the National Theater Owners' association, is at least amusing, following as it does the assertions that very recently came from the heads of what was the greatest booking agency the country has known. Only a few days ago Erlanger stated that there was no money to be made in one-night stands, and he was glad to get rid of them.

"It is to be taken for granted that Erlanger, in a lapse of memory, considered the producing managers in this connection; certainly he overlooked his personal interests—the revenue he has collected from booking those same one-night stands, a matter of $200,000 yearly. Yes, surely that most magnanimous gentleman forgot himself, for now he seems willing to allow these same producers whom he showed a fleeting moment's interest in, to send their attractions into such cities as now scarcely support one first-class theater simply to gratify his personal feelings.

"In Macon, Ga., the de Gives own one of the finest theaters in the south, yet Erlanger does not propose to allow all attractions to play in that house. That would hurt his personal feelings. Macon has a population of about 45,000, of which possibly 25,000 are white. This is only an instance of what Erlanger, with his wonderful business acumen, wants to do for the producer as well as the theater owner; he would have some capitalist—not himself—build another theater in this, as well as similar cities, to satisfy a whim.

"The Open Door."

"It is this condition of affairs the National Theater Owners' association was organized to elliminate; their object is to do away with opposition theaters in towns which cannot support them, and thus enable the producer and the theater owner to reap some reward for his investment. His theater doors are open for all attractions and his effort is to supply his theater-goers with the best from all producers.

"The firm of Klaw & Erlanger is not in the true sense of the word, 'producers.' They have had more failures than any we can call to memory. Had it not been for the enormous amount of revenue they have collected yearly from the recognized producing firms and the theater owners, their prominence in the theatrical world would have been short lived. The biggest winning attraction they have ever had is 'Ben Hur,' and they extracted such exorbitant terms from theater owners —such as taking 85 per cent of the gross receipts making the theater owner pay on an average of $360 per week for extra musicians, etc.—that at the end of the engagement the owner was a considerable amount in his own debt. And now Erlanger is trying to tell owners and producers how to manage their business—for Erlanger. But there is an excuse for all this; he has been able to take his annual trips to Europe while the majority of owners and producers have had to stay home and kalsomine the kitchen.

"An instance is given as to Erlanger's stated ability to furnish ample attractions without the aid of independent producers. Last season he supplied Richmond with one performance, that of "the Time, the Place and the Girl," between the dates of Jan. 22 and March 1. Norfolk, however, fared a great deal better. Between the dates of Jan. 22, and Feb. 28, amusement seekers in that city were blessed with "The Girl from Rectors" on Feb. 18, and "The Time, the Place and the Girl" on Feb. 19, and these cities are acknowledged as among the best one or two-night stands in the country.

"And yet Abraham Lincoln Erlanger would unblushingly encourage some capitalist to invest in the building of more theaters so that he will have playhouses for the trust's great abundance of attractions."

MANY LAUGHS IN NEW BIJOU BILL

Vaudeville Program Makes Big Hit With Memorial Day Crowds.

This is bargain week in laughs at the Bijou theater.

The sale began yesterday afternoon, before a big holiday crowd, and will continue all week, with matinees every day. It is seldom that laughs can be purchased so cheaply.

The feature of the bill this week is the act put on by Dorsch & Russell, known as "The Musical Railroaders." The act is one of the best and most elaborately mounted musical turns ever seen at the Bijou. The setting is a switch tower in the mountains, and the boxcar, the switch tower handles, and many other fixtures prove to be musical instruments, which are well played.

One of the members of the team is a tramp, and a clever comedian.

Viola Crane and a company of two present a clever playlet entitled: "The Third Race." The story hinges on a little race track incident. It has a good plot, and is presented in a most satisfactory manner.

Alfaretta Symonds and Ryan and Worth have a singing and dancing act that is above the average. The act is exceptionally well dressed, and the two men have some dancing steps that have not been seen in Duluth before.

The program opens with the usual pictures after which Rose and Ellis, barrel jumpers, put on an act that is both unique and clever. One of the pair, a clown, is apparently a man but towards the end of the act she surprises the audience by removing her wig and showing a very feminine head of hair.

"Just Kids" is the title of the sketch put on by Guy Hawson and Frances Ciare. It is a clean and pretty little musical sketch, well presented.

James B Morse sings "Shaky Eyes" this week and the song seems to please. The pictures which end the performance are interesting.

Perils of 12-Inch Turret.

To venture where others "fear to tread" was the task Lyman H. Howe's photographer faced when he went with the gun crew into the twelve-inch turret of a modern battleship to get the remarkable scenes to be shown in the Lyceum again tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night.

Of course gun crews are so familiar with the dangers and perils of the twelve-inch turret that they are indifferent. Moreover it's their work and duty to be there. If they are killed they are heralded as heroes far and wide, and their families receive pensions. But they could not understand any one so daring as to go into that steel cage, as they said, "merely to take pictures." However, Mr. Howe's photographer explained that it was his business to gratify public curiosity by securing pictures showing how the huge guns were fired, just as it was their business to fire them. They told him he was going into just such a place where a whole gun crew of the battleship "Georgia" and twenty-nine men of the "Missouri" were annihilated in an instant and no one ever knew how or why—no one ever would know. In telling him this they were testing the photographer's courage, but he stood the test. Like a surgeon who stands ready to risk his life on some experiment, this photographer was ready to risk his life to get some scenes which are indeed remarkable.

He risked it—but nearly lost it.

He was not quite prepared for such a harrowing experience, and after securing the pictures to be shown here he was suddenly caught unawares, for a shot was fired before he anticipated it. The concussion threw him off his feet with such a force as to render him unconscious for a long time and he was confined to the hospital for over two weeks—a nervous wreck. He is still hard of hearing and may never recover fully; but the pictures he secured are a triumph. Naturally they are spectacular. That is because the reality is spectacular.

The other features of the new program reveal the glories of sunset and moonlight on land and sea; a tour through picturesque Algeria to the edge of the Great Desert, dissolving portraits of English statesmen, the ice palace and winter carnival in Montreal, through the snow-bound Rockies in Canada and the rock-bound Gorge du Var in France and many others.

"Anti-Matrimony" at Reno.

Attracted by the title, "Anti-Matrimony," the divorce colony at Reno, Nev., has sent a request to Maurice Campbell, Henrietta Crossman's manager, for that star to present her comedy success at the Reno opera house on her way to the Pacific coast. That town had already been included in her list of bookings this spring and the real and semi-residents of that Cupidless spot are anxiously awaiting her appearance. But whether the play is just what they expect it to be or not is a question, for every effort is being made to prevent the story of the play from reaching Reno before Miss Crossman's engagement there. The fact is, "Anti-Matrimony" is not altogether what the title would indicate. It sounds like a problem play, or a plea against the marriage state; in fact, it is one of the jolliest comedies seen on the stage in years, as will be noticed when it is presented here by Miss Crosman at the Lyceum theater next Thursday evening.

WHO'S GOT MY KITE?

If some one on the south shore about three miles below Allouez finds a brown paper kite with the white letters "Lester Park" across its face there is a small boy in Duluth who would like to hear from it.

Master Clinton Lee Brooke has been very proud of his two stieker kite since it pulled down some good prizes by its ability to outfly the other kites in the boys' tournament given by the manual training department of the public schools on May 14.

He has had it in the air every day since, not even barring Sundays or holidays, but Monday afternoon came its undoing.

With a thousand feet of broken cord dragging in the lake it sailed away from Lester Park in a bee line for the south shore.

Strong glasses followed it and when last seen it was still flying high for Wisconsin, so this small boy is asking the question to himself: "Who's got my kite?"

COUNTY WILL HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Those Interested Will Be Shown Through New Building Wednesday.

Wednesday night of this week from 8 to 10 the county will be at home. Everybody is invited to inspect the new courthouse at that time.

All the clerks will be in their places and to those who desire, they will explain the details of the way the county requires its work to be done.

The open house idea was thought of some time ago, but after the removal to the new courthouse, the work piled up to such an extent in the offices that it has been postponed from time to time.

The whole building will be lighted up so that the visitors may investigate every nook and corner. But few have up to this time visited the new building. So many have been heard to remark that they have never been inside the new structure that the county officials determined to postpone the opening no longer.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Walter J. Smith of Eveleth continues to grace that part of the political stage where the spotlight lingers longest, and on the ranges there is unanimous enjoyment of this circumstance. As the Eveleth News remarks: "Even though Mayor Smith does not land that state treasurership, Eveleth and the range has received more free advertising through the medium of his candidacy than it has ever before had in its history." Which same must be gratifying to the mayor of that enterprising town, even though such a consideration might prove small consolation in the event that there's a slip 'tween cup and lip.

Range Plans a Noisy Invasion

Mr. Smith's whirlwind campaign has aroused the enthusiasm of the range people to a high pitch, apparently, and plans are being made to boost the Eveleth man to the limit when the convention date rolls 'round. Messrs. McIntyre, Kent, Glode and Tredinnick of Eveleth are in charge of the arrangements for a descent upon St. Paul that will wake that town up if nothing else does on convention day. Funds are being raised to hire a band and thoroughly organize a large delegation of boosters and rooters to go to St. Paul for the event on June 21, and the scheme is being adopted enthusiastically.

He has them all guessing, says the Ely Miner, running his campaign "in the hustle and push manner characteristic of the ranges, and is giving the sleepy south enders of the state something to talk about. Walter is all right and the man for the place."

The Mesaba Ore seems fearful that the putting forward of Judge Dibell for a place on the supreme court will work harm to the candidacy of Mr. Smith, overlooking the fact that in other parts of the state Judge Lewis is charged against St. Louis county and that this district is entitled to one of the judgeships by custom and practice. There was no talk of this phase of the situation before Judge Dibell was mentioned for the place.

The Mesaba Ore is not laggard in the game of boosting the Eveleth mayor, saying that "he stands a mighty good chance of gaining the nomination."

"Mr. Smith is a range man, and one of the very best men in the state, and would grace the Republican ticket," says the ore. "He was first in the field, has made a canvass of the state and has secured promise of much support, so much in fact, that he is already looked upon as the nominee of the convention."

Saturday evening in the West Duluth Commercial club rooms there will be a meeting of the West Duluth Republican club, when a general committee will be appointed to have charge of arrangements for the annual banquet of the club. Among the prominent Republicans who will be invited to speak will probably be Senators Nelson and Clapp, Governor Eberhart and Representative Miller. The date of the banquet has not been decided upon.

Former Attorney General Edward T. Young has taken exception to the charge made by the St. Paul Dispatch that Judge Homer B. Dibell has been brought out as the candidate of the "steel trust" for the state supreme court. In a communication to that paper, carrying the headlines—"Praises Judge Dibell—But former attorney general in error on 'You expressed the belief,'" Mr. Young says:

Judge Dibell Praised By E. T. Young.

"I noticed in your issue of yesterday an editorial comment on the action of the Bar Association of the Eleventh judicial district in bringing out Judge Homer B. Dibell of Duluth as a Republican candidate for associate justice of the supreme court. You expressed the belief that he is the candidate of the 'steel trust.'

"The statement, appearing in such an influential and widely read paper as the Dispatch, cannot fail to injure Judge Dibell's standing in portions of the state where he is not personally known, because the people do not want either their judges or other public officials selected by any special interest, nor do they want public officials who would, in office, be subservient to any special interest.

"I have no interest whatever in Judge Dibell's candidacy, but I assume you do not want to do him an injustice. Neither the judge himself, nor his friends who brought him out, are in a position to challenge your statement, and I only speak in the interest of common fairness.

"I became well acquainted with Judge Dibell while I was attorney general, and know his standing among the people and the profession, where he is best known. I can say unhesitatingly, that he is one of the most learned and honorable district judges of this state, and would rank with any of the distinguished men who now grace our supreme court. As a district judge he is, and always has been, absolutely above subserviency to any special interest, and in my opinion, your comment was founded on a mistaken view of the situation."

Mr. Young's disinterestedness is obvious, for he was an active friend of the tonnage tax bill and also favored the wide open tax amendment.

V. B. Seward of Marshall, state senator from the Seventeenth district, which comprises Lyon, Lincoln and Yellow Medicine counties, has issued a lengthy statement of his views and record as a candidate for re-election to the state senate, in the statement seems to have failed to please a large section of the constituency. The Minnesota Mascot, of which G. B. Bjornson is the editor, devotes a couple of columns to a consideration and discussion of the statement. "He seems really to be very anxious to go back," is the conclusion of Mr. Bjornson.

The Mascot points out that the things for which Mr. Seward stands are issues of the past and asserts that he makes no statement of his attitude on issues that are expected to be presented to the next legislature for decision. County option is the big question, says the Mascot, and on that subject Mr. Seward is intensely silent, except to say that the district has not declared for it.

C. K. Melby of Minnesota has served the lower house of the last two legislatures and he has been a consistent county optionist, and the fact of his election and re-election the Mascot considers sufficient evidence of the predominance of county option sentiment in the district. The Minnesota paper is especially emphatic in rebuking Senator Seward for refusing to accept an invitation to address a county option meeting recently.

Editor Bjornson has been mentioned as a possible candidate for one of the houses, but he has not indicated whether he is giving the proposition serious consideration. Mr. Seward has been a member of the senate since 1907.

"If there is any one who wants to get an office it is a good time to get into the game right now," remarks the Biwabik Times, commenting on the apparent forgetfulness of range people of their aforetime determination that range men should be supported for the office by the range voters.

Legislative candidacies are the subject of much discussion in the state press each succeeding week, with the comment growing a bit more decided and emphatic in tone and the number of candidates steadily growing in number. In the south and west county option seems to be the most engrossing issue, while in the north there seems to be a disposition to pick men who will be effective workers for the cause of the greater Northern Minnesota, with reapportionment largely to the fore as an issue.

In the Sixty-first district, Red Lake county is getting its back up and demanding that it being given one of the two house members. A. L. Hanson of Ada, Norman county, was the senate member in the last legislature and he is a candidate for re-election, but will be opposed for the nomination. J. J. Ispahi of Foy, Beltrami county, and C. L. Sulerud of Halstead, Norman county, were the house members. It is said that neither of them has anything like a walk-away in their contests this year. Clearwater county is said to have united with Red Lake county in a campaign to deprive one of the other counties of a house member. Andrew Hanson of Lillo, Red Lake county, is the man proposed by the insurgent allies for the seat. A. K. Strand and A. L. Thompson of Norman county are listed as Barkises. Senator Hanson is being opposed for the upper house nomination by Albert Berg and Al Jester, and that three-corner fight promises to be an interesting one.

In the Fifty-eighth district Senator Gunderson is in the limelight in an unusual degree. He has announced that he will be a candidate for return to the legislature but he refrained from making announcement until after there had been circulated a monster petition which is said to have been signed by men of all parties, asking him to be a candidate. He had previously let it be known that he did not care to make the run again. Mr. Gunderson's home is at Alexandria.

E. E. Lobeck, also of Alexandria, who was a member of the last house, had planned to go after the senatorship, but has decided to seek re-election to the house.

George C. Carpenter of Buffalo, Wright county, is a candidate for re-election and is likely to have opposition at the primaries. John McGrath of Clay county and W. J. Pett of Wilkin county are touted as probable victors in the fights for house seats. Mr. McGrath was a member of the last legislature. S. N. Lee of Clay county is another aspirant. He is a prosperous farmer.

Every now and then there pops up a suggestion that Minnesota needs Bob Dunn in the legislature. His good work for good roads and other important projects has made him a greater favorite, apparently, than he ever was before.

C. H. McKenzie, editor of the Onamia Lake Breeze, who is a candidate for the legislature from Mille Lacs county, has been encouraged in his ambition to serve as a lawmaker by many of his brother editors, and advices from Mille Lacs are favorable to his cause. He formerly lived at Gayhlord and is a son of George A. McKenzie of Sibley county, who was a member of the lower house last year and in the thirty-fourth legislature. C. H. McKenzie has a wide acquaintance in the state and is popular.

Eczema Broke Out on Baby's Head Causing All Her Hair to Fall Out —Could Not Sleep—Spread of Fearful Disease Averted and Easy, Economical Cure Effected, for

A FRIEND ADVISED USE OF CUTICURA

"When my little girl was four months old her head broke out with eczema. I tried everything but nothing did her any good. She could not sleep at night and she did nothing but scratch her head, which was like a raw piece of meat. All of her hair fell out. A friend of mine told me about Cuticura and the good it did for her little boy. After the first cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment I used I could see a change. I used just two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and my little girl's head is cured. Her hair is growing fine and long and her skin is like velvet. Friends say that my quick action in using the Cuticura Remedies kept the eczema from spreading all over her body.

"I still use the Cuticura Soap and always keep a box of Cuticura Ointment in the house. I used them for my hands, which were so badly chapped that the skin would crack and bleed. I would cry with pain. My hands are entirely cured now. You certainly have my permission to publish this letter in any paper, for I know how wonderful Cuticura is. Mrs. F. Davis, 209 E. Indiana St., Chicago, Ill., Jan. 18, 1909."

FAIR

The weather man favored Duluth with an extraordinarily beautiful Memorial day, and Duluthians enjoyed the holiday immensely. Today is another beautiful spring day. There was a cold touch in the air last night, and frost is promised again for tonight.

Rain fell a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 5:17, and it will set at 7:54, giving fifteen hours and thirty-five minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"A storm of moderate intensity is central off the North Atlantic coast. During the last twenty-four hours rains were the result there and over portions of the Lake region. In the latter district brisk northwesterly winds were the rule Monday. The barometer is also low over Western Mexico. This disturbance has caused light to copious rains over Louisiana, Western Tennessee, Arkansas and portions of Kansas. Temperatures are moderate to cool in Northern states, but in the Southwest the weather was very warm Monday. A high pressure area, central over Alberta, is causing a turn to cooler throughout the Northwest."

General Forecasts.

Upper lakes: Moderate northwest winds; partly cloudy tonight. Wednesday fair. Slightly warmer tonight.

Chicago, May 31.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Upper Michigan—Fair and continued cold tonight with frost; Wednesday fair and slightly warmer tonight.

Minnesota — Fair tonight and Wednesday; cooler in north portion tonight; light frost tonight in lowlands.

must govern Egypt. He hoped and believed that the English would decide that the duty was theirs.

As a whole the speech constituted the most forcible expression on foreign topics that the distinguished visitor has made during his European tour. He dealt principally with the British policy in Egypt, which is today one of the most discussed of Great Britain's colonial questions. His outspoken views sent a thrill through the 1,000 auditors which is likely to be felt outside the walls of the ancient council hall.

Scene of Stirring Events.

Guild hall has been the scene of many stirring events since its erection early in the fifteenth century. It was there that the trials of Anne Askew, the Earl of Surrey and Lady Jane Gray were held, but no audience of modern times has listened more intently to the proceedings therein than did those who gathered today to hear the former president of the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt was driven in state from Ambassador Reid's home to the guild hall, but the weather was not propitious and comparatively few persons witnessed the procession. Rain fell throughout the morning. Keeping most people indoors, and only a few hundred persons were gathered in the vicinity of Dorchester house to witness the departure, or in King street when the ex-president arrived at the hall. He and the lord mayor's coach, and this was followed by the coaches of the sheriffs, who wore their uniforms of office.

The guests of the city government at Guild hall included many American and English business men, besides the officials of the city. The latter were in uniform and occupied seats on the platform to which Mr. Roosevelt was escorted.

Given Gold Casket.

The parchment conveying to Mr. Roosevelt the freedom of the city was contained in a beautiful gold casket. The presentation was made by Sir Joseph Cockfield Dimsdale, the city chamberlain, who, extending his hand to the city's guest, spoke briefly. Sir Joseph dwelt particularly upon Great Britain's friendship toward the United States.

Following the exercises Sir John Knill, the lord mayor of London, entertained Mr. Roosevelt at a private lunch at which many prominent personages were present.

The casket presented to Mr. Roosevelt was oblong, the front and reverse side being divided into four panels bearing enamel-painted views of Guild hall, the mansion house, St. Paul's cathedral and the Tower bridge. The center was occupied by a full blazon of the city arms enamelled with an ornamental shield below, containing the inscription; the four corners were enamelled with the arms of England, the United States, the city shield and the Union Jack. The base was of solid silver, having at one end a carefully modelled American bison and at the other the British lion. The base stood upon eight bold feet, with a lower pedestal of oak and velvet.

Interview With Root.

Ex-President Roosevelt had an opportunity yesterday to hear something of affairs in the United States. By appointment he met Senator Elihu Root, who was passing through London on his way to The Hague. Mr. Roosevelt and his former secretary of state had a long talk at Ambassador Reid's residence, Dorchester house. Asked later what interesting subject kept them together for so long a time, Mr. Roosevelt laughingly replied:

"This is one of the cases in which I must observe my usual reticence."

Mr. Roosevelt early in the evening made a call on Mrs. Humphrey Ward, with whom he took tea. He dined with Lord Charles Beresford, whose guests included many prominent members of the Unionist party. Ambassador Reid also was present, as were Admiral Sir Edward Hobart Seymour, Admiral Sir Gerard Henry Noel, Vice Admiral Hedworth Lambton, Lord Roberts, Lord Alverstone and Lord Rothschild.

OWEN URGES DIRECT VOTE

"which has been to some extent impaired in recent years." It would also prevent deadlocks, he continued, due to political contests, during which various states from time to time had been left unrepresented."

"I cannot believe," said Senator Owen, "that the senate is conscious of the widespread public demand for the election of senators by direct vote of the people. I therefore submit evidence of action taken by the various states, showing that thirty-six of them have expressed themselves, in one form or another, favorably to the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

Will of the People.

"I believe," he declared, "that the will of the people is far more nearly right in the main than the will of any individual statesman who is apt to be honored by them with a seat in the senate; that the whole people are more apt to be safe and sane, more apt to be sound and honest than a single individual. At all events I feel not only willing, but I really desire to make effective the will of the people of my state.

"Democratic and Republican states alike west of the Hudson river have acted favorably in this matter almost without exception. Only eight or nine states have failed to act, and I do not doubt that if the voices of the people of these states of New England, of New York, Maryland and Delaware could find convenient expression, free from machine politics, every one of them would favor the election of senators by direct vote and would favor the right of the people to instruct their representatives in congress and the senate.

Republicans Left Behind.

"Not only the states have acted almost unanimously in favor of this right of the people, but all the great parties of the country, except the Republican party, have done so, and that party would have declared for it except for the overwhelming influence and domination of machine politics in its management and the prevalence of so-called boss influence."

Senator Owen maintained that "the great evil from which the American people have suffered in recent years has been the secret but well-known alliance between commercial interests and machine politics, by which commercial interests have endeavored and often succeeded in obtaining legislation giving them special advantages in nation, states and municipalities, and obtained administrative and judicial immunity so that the laws have not been properly enforced against them.

"I have no desire," he continued, "to seek partisan advantage by pointing out the weaknesses of government under present methods. It will require the most vigorous efforts of honest men of both parties to restore the government to a condition of integrity, where high purposes, honor and the common good exclusively shall rule."

MRS. JOSEPH DILLON ADMITS THAT SHE IS SLAYER OF HUSBAND

tain "unknown" man had killed her husband when the latter was defending her honor. She gave a vague description of the alleged slayer, and Deputy Sheriff Donahue, Chief of Police Wring and other officers rounded up three men—Charles Lemon, Alexander Henderson and Charles Scargen—who were alleged to have been loitering about the Dillon place. As there is no charge against them in the light of the woman's confession, they will be released.

Were Running Blind Pig.

Dillon, who was a cook and had lived in this locality about ten years was about 45 years old and Mrs. Dillon was as old as 28. She says her home was in Chicago and that she married Dillon there about three years ago, a justice of the peace performing the ceremony. Dillon and his wife have been running a sort of blind pig about six miles south of town.

The woman claims that yesterday noon her husband repeated former demands as to her conduct toward patrons. The woman resisted, a fight ensued and she seized a rifle and fired, killing him instantly. Then she came to town and told the story about her husband having been murdered by an unknown man.

Chief of Police Wring is being congratulated on his cleverness in inducing the woman to confess thereby saving suspects from suspicion and incidentally saving the county the expense of trials.

Coroner Butchart probably will hold an inquest. The woman will have a preliminary hearing and be bound over to the grand jury.

HEAR MORE OF BRIBERY

and gave bonds. Senator Pemberton arrived a little earlier in the day from his home in Oakland, and Representative Clark had been here over night. The bond of Senator Broderick was fixed at $10,000 and was promptly signed by Benjamin F. Kirlin, a Springfield liveryman, and Richard Egan, a contractor of Springfield. The same bondsmen presented themselves as sureties for Representative Clark in the sum of $5,000 and Senator Pemberton's bond of $5,000 was signed by J. F. Crawford and C. C. Ashmore of Oakland, Ill., and Hillis Buckley of Mattoon. No date was set for trials of the indicted men, their sureties being for appearance at the order of the court.

More Subpoenas Issued.

Subpoenas for more state representatives who are to be questioned in the bribery investigation were issued this morning, summoning the men sought for to appear before the grand jury in Springfield. The men named are Representatives A. W. Foster of Louisville and Representative B. F. Staymates of Clinton. Both legislators are Democrats, and voted for William Lorimer for United States senator.

Another subpoena has been issued for Nathaniel Cohen, state fish commissioner. Representative Foster was chairman of the fish and game commission of the forty-sixth general assembly, which drafted a new fish and game law.

State's Attorney Burke went to Chicago today to confer with State's Attorney Wayman of Cook county.

about the time of the janitor's flight, also bears numerous similar discolorations.

The trap door to the sub-cellar was so effectively hidden that its existence could have been known to no one not intimately acquainted with the building. The keys to the building, say the police, were always in Wendling's possession. The carpet in which the body was wrapped for its hasty burial is identical with some which was found in the school storeroom.

Reward Is Offered.

The Kellner family today offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Alma.

Mrs. Joseph Wendling was present in police court this morning, and her case was continued until June 6. Mrs. Wendling denies all knowledge of the murder of the little girl. The matter of bail was deferred until tomorrow.

YOUNG GOULD RUNS AWAY FROM SCHOOL.

New Britain, Conn., May 31.—Edwin Gould, Jr., son of Edwin Gould, who ran away from school at Pomfret Center Friday night, left here last night for New Haven and will be taken back to his school.

Young Gould, when found by a policeman at 2 o'clock in the morning, was resting on a veranda. He was all but exhausted from the long tramp from Pomfret to New Britain. He was taken to police headquarters and placed in a cell where he spent the night sleeping on a board which served as a bed.

Young Gould said it would be very nice to get back to his school once more. He seemed to enjoy the station house fare and said that 15-cent meals were all right. Mr. Campbell, the Gould secretary who came here for the lad, said that Edwin had been in the habit of taking long walks.

Work That Tells

Plenty of It Has Been Done Right Here in Duluth.

Cures that last are cures that tell. To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate the cures and see if they prove permanent. Doan's Kidney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Duluth. People who testified years ago to relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now declare that relief was permanent and the cure perfect. How can any Duluth sufferer longer doubt the evidence?

Capt. M. McLean, 4324 Gilliat St., Duluth, Minn., says: "Time has only strengthened my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I publicly recommended this remedy in 1898 after they had freed me from a dull, heavy ache across the small of my back and other symptoms of kidney complaint. There has been no return of my trouble, convincing me that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanantly. I shall advise the use of this remedy at every opportunity."

FAWN IS SEEN AT LAKESIDE

Deer Passes Through Suburb and Jumps From Cliff on Shore.

A fawn created great excitement in Lakeside yesterday afternoon, when, after roaming about the lake shore suburbs for some time, it became frightened and jumped through the fence into Theodore Hollister's yard, where it remained for a time. Civilization was so new and so many people gathered to look at the pretty little animal, that it became excited and, after running through L. N. Case's yard, jumped off a cliff, and was lost to view. Later it was seen coming along the railroad tracks, and turned up Fifty-second avenue, disappearing in the woods.

The fawn was probably about 1 year old, according to those who saw it.

This is not the first time Lakeside people have been treated to unusual sights from the forest. Deer quite frequently stroll into town, and sometimes a stray bear will wander down London road, and have a look around.

LIGHTNING KILLS ONE OF THIRTEEN

Five Other Fatalities Mark Memorial Day About New York.

New York, May 31.—Charles Herbert, one of a pleasure party of thirteen out for a sail on the Hudson river, was struck and instantly killed by lightning yesterday afternoon.

The river tragedy was only one of a long list of casualties that marked Memorial day. Emil Anderson, 8 years old, was run down and killed by an automobile in Brooklyn, and at Staple-ton, State Island, John Spicer, a driver, fell from his high seat and was crushed to death under his own truck. Thomas Clifton was killed by a fall on the steps of the Pennsylvania station.

Two suicides raised the violent death list to six. Isaac Finkelstein, 55 years old, shot himself while in Central park, and Mrs. Amelia Maring ended her life by inhaling gas.

Motorcycles figured in two of the accidents reported as fatal. Mrs. Harriet Sherwood was knocked down by a rider in Brooklyn and Frederick Harrington was run over at Newark.

Menominee Boy Electrocuted.

Menominee, Mich., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Meyers, age 12, living on Merriman's island, at the Mouth of the river, while playing on a high lumber stack grabbed a live electric light wire and was instantaneously electrocuted.

ATTEMPT AT KIDNAPING?

Elderly Man Arrested for Enticing Young Girl From Home.

Child Rescued By Passenger on the Bayview Heights Car.

What is believed to be an attempt at kidnaping came to light Sunday night, when Charles Herbog, about 60 years old, is said to have enticed 7-year-old Phyllis Cranston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Cranston of West Duluth, on to a car of the Bayview Heights incline with offers of money.

An attempt to take the girl to Proctor from Bayview Heights was prevented by other passengers on the car. When the man realized the situation he was in, he boarded a bus with two other younger companions, both men, and rode to Proctor. He was arrested Sunday night at Proctor, upon information furnished by the West Duluth police.

Phyllis Cranston, her 9-year-old sister, Helen, and Marguret Kilby, aged 9 years, were playing in the vicinity of the incline road station, near Sixtieth avenue west. According to the story told by the three girls, Herbog made friends with the younger Cranston child and when the car came, picked her up and went inside.

The other two little girls, acting under the impression that he was going to give them all a ride, also started to get on the car, but the conductor would not let them on. The conductor told the police that he did not see the little girl with the man, until he came to collect a fare, half way up the hill. He said then that he did not pay any particular attention to it at that time, supposing that they were relatives.

Herbog, who was arrested at Proctor, tallies with the description given by the girl. He is an elderly man, his hair is gray, almost white and he wears a mustache. The child says that he gave her fifty cents and told her that she might have "lots of rides." If she would come with him. The little girl said that she supposed that he was a friend of her father.

A passenger on the car had his suspicions aroused and when the man picked up the little girl to put her in the bus with him, he protested and asked him what right he had to do it. Before Herbog was given an opportunity to explain, he was hustled into a bus by two friends and the trio went to Proctor.

The two little girls who were left at the station, alarmed because a stranger had taken away their playmate, ran to the residence of Charles Cranston, the girl's father, who resides at 427 South Seventy-first avenue west. Cranston took the matter up with the police, who instigated a search and notified the Proctor authorities to be on a lookout for the pair.

The girl, however, was brought back on the next car by the conductor on the incline car. The police at Proctor are investigating the motives of the man. He is said to be no relative of the girl and explained to Gus Schroeder, the marshal at Proctor, that he was taking the little girl for a street car ride and that his intentions were good.

The police are looking up his record.

PAID HALF OF PRISONER'S FINE.

After George M. Hyatt had caused the arrest of a special officer, Joseph Gague, 65 years old, stationed at the ball park, on a charge of assaulting his son, he paid half of his fine, when Gague pleaded guilty.

Gague admitted last evening in West Duluth justice court that he had slapped the boy because he had provoked him. Gague was arrested on a warrant. He was assessed $3.50 to cover the costs of the case.

NEIGHBORS QUARREL OVER A FENCE.

Because he interceded for his brother-in-law, James McCarten, in a neighborhood quarrel, James Moore, who conducts a backsmith shop at Central and Grand avenues, is under arrest, charged with assault.

The affair resulted from a quarrel over a fence. McCarten attempted to build a fence on a disputed piece of ground and N. P. Grahn, a neighbor, pulled out the posts on the claim that he was fencing up a public highway. Words led to blows. It is claimed that Moore, who was present when the quarrel occurred last evening struck Grahn with sufficient force to cause him to be laid up for several days. Mrs. Grahn came to Judge Flack of the West Duluth justice court last evening and asked for a warrant.

Moore will have a hearing in the West Duluth justice court this evening. The Grahn family lives on Mel-ford street near Seventy-first avenue west.

Morsen Is Released.

Hans Morsen, a West Duluth tailor, who was arrested about two months ago for taking liberties with Hazel and Lillian Watts, 11 and 13 years old, and who was sent to Fergus Falls, after being adjudged insane, is a free man.

Morsen has returned from the state institution, where it is said, he had been cured of his insanity. The case against Morsen never came to trial in the district court.

WEST DULUTH WAS ORDERLY IN MAY.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKelg of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when 9 months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists

TUGMEN QUIT AT CLEVELAND

Trouble Is Not Expected to Spread to Duluth.

A dispatch from Cleveland today says that 100 employes f the Great Lakes Towing company at that port have quit work, demanding a twelve-hour day and holidays off. Navigation at Cleveland is practically at a standstill as a result of the walkout.

The dispatch intimates that the strike will become general all along the lakes. At the office of the Union Towing & Wrecking company here, the Duluth branch of the Great Lakes company, nothing had been heard of the trouble until the officers were informed by The Herald of the developments at Cleveland. The local officers say that if Duluth is to be involved in the walkout they do not know anything of it yet.

ROCKWELL'S REASONS Why it Pays to Shop in West Duluth.....

We have made a specialty of manufacturers' samples since opening the new store. Every year the manufacturers have lines of samples which are carried by their salesmen. These samples are the regular goods, of course, but there is only one size in each variety. The result is the manufacturer is glad to sell them at a reduction of from 30 to 50 per cent from the usual price. We have bought all the good lines we could get. These goods are sold at the usual wholesale cost and less, still giving us a profit. Watch for the advertisements of these sales. You may get what you are looking for at a big bargain if you can find your size. For tomorrow we have a line of Ladies Skirts worth from $5 to $10 which we are offering at $3.48. In the shoe department there is a lot of Ladies' Shoes and Oxfords worth up to $2.50, which we will clean out at $1.48.

Friday is our bargain day. Watch for next Friday's offer in The Herald, and in our window Thursday. We pay car fare for uptown purchasers.

CONVENTION OF DIOCESE

Delegates Gather for Annual Meeting of Episcopal Church.

Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D. D., Bishop of North Dakota, Principal Speaker.

Clerical and lay delegates to the fifteenth annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth are arriving in Duluth today and the first session of the convention will be held tomorrow morning at Trinity pro--cathedral. About fifty delegates, representing the parishes, missions and communities of the diocese, will attend the convention.

The convention will open with a service of holy communion at Trinity pro-cathedral at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The service will be open to the public. The choir of the cathedral will be assisted by singers from out of the city. The sermon will be delivered by Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D. D., missionary bishop of North Dakota.

Bishop Mann's address will be one of the features of the convention. He stands high in the Episcopal church as a pulpit orator and a successful churchman. He has been bishop of North Dakota since 1901, with his see at Fargo, and prior to his elevation, he was rector of Grace church at Kansas City. He is a graduate of Hobart college, New York, in the class of 1870 and was ordained a priest of the Episcopal church in 1873 by Bishop Cox.

After Bishop Mann's sermon, Bishop Morrison will call the convention to order and he will make his annual report. At noon, an adjournment will be taken for prayer. At 12:30 luncheon will be served to the visiting clergy and delegates by the united ladies' guilds of Lakeside and Park Point. At 2 o'clock, the convention will be reconvened and the reports of the archdeacons, the Sunday school commission, the committee on the state of the church, the standing committee of the diocese, the board of missions and the trustees of the diocese will be received. The members of the standing committee will be elected and also delegates to the general convention of the Episcopal church to be held in Cincinnati, Ohio, in October of this year. The diocese of Duluth is entitled to four clerical and four lay delegates.

During the afternoon session tomorrow, the question of a revision of the prayer book of the church will be discussed and a memorial will be prepared on the subject to be presented to the general convention by the delegates from this diocese.

Sunday School Banquet.

Tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock, the Sunday school banquet will be held at Trinity hall. The combined guilds of St. Paul's church and Trinity procathedral will serve the banquet. Following is the program to follow the banquet:

Opening address, Archdeacon Parshall.

"The Sunday School as an Educational Agency," Richard Close of Duluth.

"The Sunday School as a Brotherhood Agency," A. V. Snell of Duluth.

"The Sunday School as a Missionary Agency," Bishop Mann.

The diocesan honor roll will then be read. The Sunday schools which have raised more money for missions during the past year than during the preceding year are entitled to places on the honor roll. Twenty-nine schools have earned places on the honor roll during the past year and the sum total of their contributions is over $1,000.

The Sunday school banner will be presented by Bishop Morrison to the Sunday school which has raised the greatest amount, per capita, for missions during the past year.

The banquet program will end with remarks and reminiscences by Rec. F. C. Coolbaugh of Cloquet.

Woman's Auxiliary.

Thursday morning, the women's auxiliary meeting will be held in the crypt chapel of Trinity pro-cathedral, beginning at 9:30. Bishop Morrison will make a short address and the principal address will be delivered by Deaconess Routledge, missionary to the Philippines with headquarters at Manila. Luncheon will be served at noon and the afternoon session will be devoted to receiving reports. During the afternoon, the visiting clerical and lay delegates will be entertained at a pleasure trip.

Thursday evening, the convention will be brought to a close and Bishop and Mrs. Morrison will hold a reception at the Episcopal residence.

STATE WINS TIMBER CASE

Federal Supreme Court Decides in Favor of Minnesota Claim.

Irwin, who cut certain timber from land owned by the state. The judgment of the lower court as today affirmed by the supreme court, amounts to $26,995, with the costs of the suit added.

COPPER SHARES HAVE A SLUMP

Heavy Declines in Sympathy With Railroads and Industrials.

In the face of several bearish factors of decisive character the market slumped today, declines in some instances being evident. The downturn was led by the railroad list and the coppers and industrials were weak in sympathy.

The London market was higher but this had little effect except at the opening, which was strong and fractionally higher than Saturday's close. Early in the day a drive against Reading and heavy selling in Union Pacific unsettled the railroad list and the feeling was quickly communicated to the coppers. President Taft, it was announced, instructed the attorney general to invoke the power of injunction against twenty-five railroads in the Middle West to prevent them from advancing freight rates. This completed the demoralization of the market and values struck the toboggan and kept on the speedy downturn until toward the close, when short profit taking caused a slight rally in some of the leaders.

Trading here was heavy and the local market had a moderately good undertone although those stocks which are also traded in actively in the East suffered from the weakness in the Eastern markets. Butte Alex Scott was the strongest on the local list, the full paid selling up to $8 after being traded in at $7.75 and $7.50. The part paid sold at $3.56¼, $3.50, $3.38½ and $3.56¼. Butte Ballaklava sold at $17.25, $18, $17.75 and back to $17.25. In the East the stock sold at $17.25 to $17.75, $16.50 and $16.62½. Live Oak sold at $20.81¼; North Butte at $32.87½ and $32.25; Shattuck at $26.75, $26.62½ and $26.50; Butte & Superior at $1.75; Calumet & Montana at $1.25; Calumet & Sonora at $18.12½; Carman at $1.25 to $1.12½; St. Mary's at 19c and 17c; Tuolumne at $3.62½; North American at $3.06¼, $3.25, $3.37½ and $3.12½; Amazon at $3.25.

Amalgamated sold at $70.25 to $67.87½ and rallied to $68.87½; Steel common at $82.75 to $79.50, and rallied to $79.87½; Butte Coalition was $19 bid and at the close was $19.50 bid. Giroux sold at $7.75 to $7.50; Greene at $8.12½ to $8; North Butte at $33 to $31.75 to $32; Superior Pittsburg at $12 to $11.75 and back to $12; Calumet & Arizona at $64 to $63.25.

The Boston Financial News said today: "The output of the Butte mines for the month of May was slightly under that of April, although not to an extent which would indicate that a policy of curtailment has been adopted. The output is far from that which was considered normal several years ago when the average monthly output was close to 35,000,000 pounds of blister copper. The present output is therefore about 75 per cent of normal or of the capacity of the mines and smelters. The Butte & Ballaklava and Tuolumne are now regular producers and by their production have increased the total output of the camp from previous months by more than 1,500,000 pounds."

EVERYBODY HAD A RIDE

That Memorial day was a busy day for the street car employes at the Head of the Lakes, is best shown by the fact that 51,000 fares were rung up in Duluth and Superior yesterday. Of this number, Duluth alone claims 75,000.

The former records for carrying big crowds were broken, with but one exception. This was on July 4, 1904, when Ringling Bros. circus visited Duluth on that date. At that time, 81,000 fares were registered on Duluth cars alone.

JAPAN'S LUXURIOUS PRISON.

Tit Bits: The most luxurious prison in the world is in Japan, about fifteen miles from Tokio. In the midst of gardens were flourish medlars and cherry trees, where are some ornamental ponds with water lilies, arises the palatial prison.

The cells are spacious and airy. The lighting throughout is by electricity, and the apartments are furnished luxuriously. Bathrooms with marble baths, hot and cold water being laid on, dressing rooms and reading rooms—nothing seems to be wanting to make the sojourn in this prison pleasant. In fact it seems an ideal country residence, scarcely calculated to reduce crime.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

JOBBERS GIVEN FALSE ALARM

About ten days ago an Associated Press dispatch from Washington said that the railroads had withdrawn certain coffee and sugar tariffs, the sugar schedule in question being one of 36 cents from New York to Duluth.

The class rate is 42 cents, and local business men jumped to the conclusion that the withdrawal meant they would be required to pay the class rate. It developed, however, that such is not the case. The class rate is 33 cents, and in withdrawing the 36 cent rate the roads merely were disposing of rate deadwood. The same applies to the coffee tariff withdrawn.

Duluth merchants were glad to learn that this scare was a needless one, but their vigilance is not slackened and they are as determined as ever to fight to the last ditch against the pending general advance in freights. Efforts are being made to enlist the government on the shippers' side.

TO RUSH ESMOND BRANCH.

Reported Great Northern Will Hurry Construction of Line.

Esmond, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Esmond branch to Towner or Rugby will be built this summer and traffic is due to start by Oct. 1, according to present calculations. The surveyors are at work and it is claimed that they have orders to do everything with a big rush.

This special branch of the Great Northern, one of the late developments in the North Dakota railroad constructing situation, promises to become a very important one, as it will furnish the means for a through Canadian line.

NEILL FAILS TO FIX THINGS.

The Harriman Line Telegraphers' Grievances Not Yet Settled.

Houston, Tex., May 31.—Charles P. Neill of the bureau of commerce and labor, who has been in Houston several days endeavoring to adjust the differences between the Atlanta system of the Harriman lines and their telegraphers, left today for Washington, having failed to effect a settlement. Negotiations looking toward a peaceable adjustment are, however, continuing.

SUMMER VACATION WILL BEGIN JUNE 17.

The summer vacation will be eleven weeks and school will reopen Sept. 6, the day after Labor day.

BOGUS ANTIQUE FLAGS.

Vogue: A London tourist is warning the world that the Swiss meet the desire of travelers from England and this country for one class of antiquities by manufacturing the Swiss flag of a hundred years ago so that it looks ancient enough to entrall and deceive the tourist collector. A new flag is made to look like a centenarian by a process which includes fading the colors in the sun, bespattering it with tallow and laying it in the granary, where the mice soon give it a tattered appearance. Finally it is exposed to the rays of the sun and mounted on a wormeaten broken staff.

PHEASANTS FOR HUNTERS.

Hammondsport Herald: A specialty will be made on Hungarian partridge at the new state game bird farm at Sherburne, thirty miles south of Utica. They are a hardy game bird about half the size of the native partridge and are prolific breeders. The Oneida County Game club has experimented with them and five hen birds produced sixty-five young this season. State Game Commissioner Whipple says that the department will be able to turn out into game covers of the state next year about 10,000 birds and furnish 100 dozens of eggs for settings.

A $10,000 Purchase of South African Ostrich Plumes Direct From the Grower at Just Half Price

WEDNESDAY we inaugurate an ostrich feather sale that will far eclipse any event of the kind ever attempted in Duluth. Direct from the grower comes this $10,000 shipment of genuine African feathers, eliminating the commission man's profit, the dyers' and curlers' commission, totaling a saving of fully 50 per cent. The feathers are good full head stock, plucked at the right season from only the healthiest birds. They are of every length and various colors, taken mostly from the male birds, which insures the finest quality.

With plumes much evidenced in mid-summer millinery and their increased use this fall, few women indeed will pass this great saving opportunity, and it behooves those who wish choicest feathers to be here promptly Wednesday at 8 o'clock. Be ready!

The HALF-PRICE SALES

Are They Genuine, or Just Euphonious Names Rapidly Becoming Popular?

Look over the advertising columns of the daily papers and three words in particular greet your eye on most very page—"Half Price Sale." From the little "kike" dealer—who rents a storeroom temporarily at so much per week, and who, like the Arab, soon folds his tent and passes away—to the older and supposedly more reputable houses, the euphonious cry "half price sale" is daily sounded.

What Is the Matter?

Are our merchants taking up the plan of the nomad dealers in rugs, laces, water-proof fabrics, etc., etc., or is it an attempt to disprove the saying of Abraham Lincoln about fooling the people.

Half Price Sales on millinery, suits, linens, dress goods, laces and in fact most everything in a retail store are rife. How can merchants do this and pay rent, light, salaries, water, freight, express and advertising.

A Problem in Mathematics

How can a business exist when goods are sold at such prices right at a season when the merchant must get his profit or lose money. As an example, merchandise that

Cost	Retails at	Sold at 50%	Loss
19c yd. or ea.	25c	12½c	6½c
35c yd. or ea.	50c	25c	10c
55c yd. or ea.	75c	37½c	17½c
75c yd. or ea.	$1.00	50c	25c

Just how merchants pay their legitimate expenses on this play of selling we would like to know. We would pay a good price for the combination. Is the half price sale real or just a mirage.

Manufacturers' Sales

Now, jobbers, manufacturers and commission houses have house cleaning and other sales at certain intervals. Frequently they get "stuck" on a article of merit that does not sell so quickly as it should and they dispose of it at a sacrifice to clean up.

We are constantly on the alert for these events and always have the ready cash to take advantage of them. They are good trade producers and mix well with our carefully watched and well selected stocks. Only recently we have secured a number of the greatest bargains on the market and each of which will be offered at corresponding savings as soon as they arrive.

This Is Our Sixth Annual Sale of Ostrich Feathers

We were first to inaugurate real ostrich feather sales in Duluth, commencing in a small way six years ago. Year by year these sales have increased in volume and importance until today, in order to give our patrons the biggest bargains possible, we go direct to the grower and buy tremendous lots.

$10,000 worth of plumes may seem a great quantity, but when it is considered these are the South African hard male stock and so far superior to those plucked from the delicate domesticated birds, the rush at the sale opening will be great. Prices are just half what they will be in September.

BROWN PLAN VOTED DOWN

Senate Rejects Clause Prohibiting Merger of Competing Railroad Lines.

Cummins Says He Will Vote for Railroad Bill as Amended.

Washington, May 31.—The amendment to the railroad bill introduced by Senator Brown, to prevent mergers of competing lines, was defeated today in the senate, 20 to 41.

In a statement on the floor of the senate Senator Cummins today announced he would vote for the administration bill in view of amendments adopted.

It was evident at the beginning of the session today that, notwithstanding its two days of rest, the senate was in a "scrappy" humor. It has been hoped that an early start on the railroad bill would be obtained and Mr. Elkins was promptly on hand with the avowed determination of keeping all other subjects except a speech by Senator Owen of Oklahoma, out of "his right-of-way." He encountered obstacles from the beginning.

Elkins Has Troubles.

The first came from his colleague, Senator Scott, and it was apparent that the latter felt hurt when Elkins made objection to a request for the consideration of a private pension bill.

"Very well," said the junior West Virginia senator, "I will be heard later."

Senator Bradley also was pushed out of the way when he undertook to obtain consideration for a measure of importance to his constituents. By the time Senator La Follette came in with his rate resolutions Mr. Elkins appeared much ruffled.

After Mr. Owen had spoken for two hours the railroad bill was formally laid before the senate. The Brown amendment to prohibit the consolidation of competitive lines was taken up and Mr. Burton took the floor against it.

SUPERIOR

ASSAULT CHARGE AGAINST OFFICER

Patrolman Nason Accused of Hitting Supposed Vagrant With Club.

D. Shapiro and his son, I. Shapiro, well-known dealers in second-hand goods in Duluth and Superior, who were arrested Saturday night at Tower avenue and Fourth street by Officer Nason and charged with vagrancy, have brought a charge of assault against the officer. He will be arrested today.

He is charged with having struck the younger Shapiro with a club over the head with sufficient force to inflict a bad wound. They will lay their case before the police commission and in this instance they will make the specific charge that Nason was intoxicated when the arrest was made.

The Shapiros had been working at their Superior store during the afternoon. The officer seeing them walking down the street rather shabbily attired, placed them under arrest. Despite their protests, they were taken to the station house.

The men have a well-paying business both in Superior and Duluth.

CRUSHED BETWEEN CARS; BRAKEMAN MAY SURVIVE.

Charles Kuhnsen, 23 years old, unmarried, a brakeman from Lake Nebagamon was injured while coupling cars yesterday afternoon about 4:45 o'clock and was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Superior where he is suffering from injuries to his spine and other parts of the body.

It is not thought that the injuries will be fatal.

Part of the itinerary has been arranged as follows: Thursday night at Osceola; Friday night at Shell Lake; Saturday afternoon at the rural school at Spooner; Saturday night at Spooner high school. Next Monday night, Bayfield and Friday at the county training school at Rice Lake.

Use Gumshoe Method.

Today, a house-to-house canvass is being made by the police officials for unlicensed dogs. The animals found without a tag will be put into the pound until redeemed by their owners, or, if they are not claimed within a reasonable length of time, they will be killed. Owners refusing to pay a dog tax will be arrested.

COLORED WOMAN USES KNIFE ON PARAMOUR

George Amos, a colored porter, was seriously wounded this afternoon at the Central house, 202 Lake avenue south, by May Humphrey, aged 32, also colored. Assailant and victim had been living together at 216 Lake avenue south.

The woman wielded a knife with telling effect. Amos received a bad cut over the eye, another over the wrist, and a third, the most serious, over the heart. The knife was evidently directed at Amos' heart, but was deflected by a rib.

According to the woman's story, she gave Amos $5 this morning to engage rooms at the Central house. He went out, and on his return to their rooms in the rear of 216 Lake avenue south, she says she smelled liquor on his breath. Fearing him when he was drinking, she left him and went to the Central house. He followed her, and she says he broke in the door of her room with a heavy iron bar. She says in self-defense she snatched the knife from the dresser and cut him.

Amos and the woman had been living together for some time. March 16 she swore out a warrant for his arrest on a charge of assault. He left the city, but returned in about three weeks. The warrant was never served, and the two have been living together since his return.

The woman is under arrest at the police station, and Amos was also taken to the station, where his wounds were dressed by Dr. Abbott.

TAX CASES NOT DECIDED

Supreme Court Sets Corporation Tax Fight for Re-Arrangement.

Big Question Is to Be Reviewed at Next Term of Court.

Washington, May 31.—The supreme court of the United States today set the corporation tax cases for reargument at the beginning of the next term, before a full bench.

Fathered by Taft.

President Taft is regarded as the father of the corporation tax idea as represented in this statute. He evolved it during the discussion of tariff legislation and income and inheritance taxes in 1908-1909. As a result, congress inserted the "Corporation Tax Law" into the Payne-Aldrich tariff act passed by congress last summer. It became section 38 of that statute.

The law subjected to the tax in a general way every corporation, joint stock company, or association, organized for profit and having a capital stock represented by shares, and every insurance company. The tax was designated as "a special excise tax, with respect to the carrying on or doing business" and it was provided that it should be "equivalent to 1 per cent upon the entire net income" over and above $5,000 received "from all sources" during the year. There were to be excluded from the income, however, amounts received as dividends upon stock of other organizations subjected to the tax. Exempted from the tax were certain organizations, such as labor, agricultural, horticultural and fraternal beneficiary societies.

Provided for Publicity.

One paragraph of the law provided for the publicity of the returns required as a basis of fixing the tax.

The tax was to be paid on or before June 30 of each year and the returns for each year were to be made by March 1. It was provided that the tax should be paid for the year ending June 30, 1910, although the law was not passed until Aug. 5 1909.

Not until shortly before the expiration of the time for the making of the returns was the first move made to test the validity of the tax. This movement to test the great question about corporation law started in the little town of Windsor, Vt.

There Maxwell Evarts a New York lawyer, son of the late William M. Evarts has a summer home. He had often noticed the keen competition between the two general merchandise stores in the town, the Stone-Tracy company, a corporation, and Dwight Tuxbury & Sons, a partnership concern. He saw what he believed was a discrimination against the corporation in it were compelled to pay the tax and make public its business arrangements, and so accepted the position of counsel for Stella P. Flint, as general guardian of the property for Samuel N. Stone, Jr., a minor, who owned stock in the Stone-Tracy company.

Suit in Vermont.

Suit was brought in the federal court by Mr. Evarts to enjoin the corporation from making the returns and paying the tax, on the ground that the law was unconstitutional. The corporation filed a demurrer, which was sustained and the bill dismissed. An appeal was taken to the supreme court.

The institution of the Flint-Stone-Tracy case was the signal for the bringing of suits in many sections of the United States. All were decided in exactly the same way, and almost invariably appeals were taken to the supreme court. The government was allowed to intervene.

Fifteen cases, headed by the Flint-Stone-Tracy suit, were set for argument on March 14.

Cases Included in Suit.

Besides the Vermont case, those heard were:

Wyckoff Van Derhoef vs. The Coney Island and Brooklyn railroad company.

Francis L. Hine vs. Home Life Insurance comapny of New York.

Fred M. Smith vs. The Northern Trust company of Chicago.

William H. Miner vs. The Corn Exchange National bank of Chicago.

Cedar Street company vs. Park Realty company of New York.

Lewis W. Jared vs. the American Multigraph company of Cleveland.

Joseph E. Gay vs. the Baltic Mining company, a Michigan corporation.

Percy H. Brundage vs. Broadway Railty company of New York.

Paul Lacroix vs. Motor Taximeter Cab company of New York.

Arthur Lyman vs. Interborough Rapid Transit company of New York.

George Wendell Phillips vs. Fifty Associates of Boston.

One Minnesota Case.

Oscar Mitchell vs. Clark Iron company, a Minnesota corporation.

Katherine Cary Cook vs. Boston Wharf company.

Two days were consumed in the argument of the case in the supreme court. William D. Guthrie of New York, counsel for the Home Life Insurance company, argued that if the court would interpret the law so as not to include in the net income the income derived directly from federal, state, county, or municipal securities and real and personal property not used or employed in business, there would be no question about the constitutionality of the law.

Solicitor General Bowers defended the constitutionality of the law without qualification. He contended that the tax was not a direct tax upon property, real or personal, but on the contrary, was an excise tax upon "the carrying on or doing business."

"Not Direct Tax."

The tax, he contended, was not a direct tax upon shares of the stockholders in the companies to the business of which the tax attaches, or upon the income of such stockholders from their shares. It did not become a direct tax, he added, because the company engaged mainly or even solely in the business of handling or dealing in real estate.

The various objections to the law were taken up in turn by the solicitor.

Mr. Evarts opened the argument against the law. He contended that the law invaded the sovereignty of the state of Vermont; that it would deprive the corporation of property without due process of law, and that its publicity feature would take private property for public use without just compensation. Throughout he emphasized the point that the tax was upon franchises of a state and therefore unconstitutional.

Former Senator Foraker of Ohio argued that it was an income tax. John G. Johnson of Philadelphia made a general attack on the law. Richard V. Lindabury of New York and other counsel addressed the court in explanation of features of individual cases.

STRIKE ORDERED ON THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

Houston, Tex., May 31.—A strike of all members of the International Order of Maintenance of Ways of the Southern Pacific lines has been ordered by President A. B. Lowe of Chicago, the order to go into effect Wednesday. Lowe will make a final effort to effect a compromise of the order's demands with President Fay of the railroad, but does not expect to succeed. The company, according to Lowe, has refused to recognize the order and also refused to grant a demand for higher wages.

OBITUARY

Charles Henry Treat, until a few months ago treasurer of the United States, to which position he was appointed by President Roosevelt, died of apoplexy in his apartment at the Hotel Victoria in New York at midnight May 30. He was stricken an hour before his death, and did not regain consciousness.

Mr. Treat was born in Frankfort, Me., about sixty-eight years ago. Among his ancestors were Robert Treat Paine, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and Robert Treat, a colonial governor of Connecticut. He was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1865, and at once entered business with his father and brothers, who operated a fleet of twenty-eight vessels engaged in the import and export trade. He was for many years active in Maine politics, and upon his removal to Delaware, in 1877, became a prominent figure in the Republican party in that state.

In 1888 he was chosen one of the delegates at large to the Chicago convention and was credited with solidifying the Delaware delegation in the convention for Benjamin Harrison. In the same year Mr. Treat was an aspirant for election to the United States senate but was defeated by two votes and soon afterwards removed to New York. Here he became a member of the republican county committee and managed the local campaign in 1895. He was an ardent supporter of McKinley for the presidency, and soon after McKinley's election was appointed collector of internal revenue for the Wall street district, serving during the Spanish-American war. His appointment as treasurer of the United States was made by Mr. Roosevelt in 1905. He is survived by his widow and two daughters.

Sidney Webster, an authority on corporation and international law and private secretary of President Franklin Pierce, died at Newport, R. I., May 30, after a brief illness. He was born in 1828, graduated from Yale in 1848 and from the Harvard law school in 1850. He married Miss Sarah Morris Fish, a daughter of Hamilton Fish, in 1860, by whom he had one son.

VICTORY FOR WESTERNERS

Injunction Proceedings Are a Result of Shippers' Fight.

The decision of the administration at Washington to ask the courts to enjoin the railroads of the Western Traffic association from putting into effect increased freight rates cames as the direct result of the efforts of the shippers in the Western territory to balk the plans of the roads, according to local shippers.

The movement to prevent the boosting of freight tariffs was formally launched at Chicago some weeks ago at a meeting which was attended by C. R. Rust as a representative of Duluth shippers. Following the Chicago meeting, at which an executive committee was named, the men having charge of the immediate work held a session in Omaha last week, which was attended by Secretary Hall of the Duluth Traffic association. Then another meeting of representatives of the shippers was held yesterday at Washington and the action of today followed.

The decision of the federal government to intervene in behalf of the shippers is a distinct victory for the organization with which the Duluth shippers are affiliated. More than a dozen men prominent in Duluth commercial activities and interested in five or more of the larger jobbing houses, sent telegrams to Congressman Miller and the Minnesota senators calling upon them to help the shippers in their efforts to bring about the condition that confronts the Western Traffic association today with the federal government allied with the shippers against the roads.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

NO POLITICS IN MEETING

Crookston Gathering Will Work for Advancement of This Section.

Reapportionment, Dairying, and Kindred Subjects to Be Discussed.

Bemidji, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—"No politics will be allowed to be injected in the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Crookston this week, and any attempt made by any candidate for office, no matter in what section of the state he may reside, to further his own or others' interests will be sat down upon," said W. R. Mackenzie of Bemidji, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Development association, prior to departing this morning for Crookston, where he will be on the ground early before the delegates begin to arrive.

Politics Is Tabooed.

"The officers of the association are determined that politics shall not get into the affairs of the association, well knowing that any political manipulating in connection with the purposes of these conventions would be fatal to the very movement that is the most vital to us—reapportionment, as well as development of this section of the state.

"While it will be impossible, of course, to prevent candidates for office and politicians generally from attending the convention and buttonholing to their hearts' content, yet it will have to be done pretty much on the 'gum shoe' order, as we will not tolerate any semblance of political wire-pulling of any nature in the convention.

To Be Great Convention.

"I believe that this will be one of the greatest conventions ever held in the state, and will be very far-reaching in its effects, and more particularly will it serve to bring the attention of the southern part of the state to the imporance of this north country, and the justness of the demands which are being made for reapportionment.

"Besides the reapportionment feature of the convention, there will be much that will interest and instruct the delegates who are watching dairying, stockraising and the up-to-date methods for farming here."

CASS LAKE'S FIRST MEMORIAL SUCCESS

Judge Lange, Senator O'Neil, Senator Wood and Others Pay Tribute.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The citizens of Cass Lake yesterday, for the first time in its history, appropriately observed Memorial day, and the celebration was one marked with patriotism and loyalty to the dead.

Judge L. M. Lange was the marshal of the day, and at 10 a. m. he commanded the long parade to start for the cemetery. The band lead, followed by the several hundred school children, each one of whom carried a wreath of flowers. The fire department, the Cass Lake survivors of the great Civil war and many citizens fell in line. On arriving at the cemetery the large crowd surrounded the different graves and listened to the impressive words of Judge Lange, while the school children and many others dropped their wreaths of flowers on the graves of the veterans. There are three of the old soldier boys lying underneath the sod in the Cass Lake cemetery, and each one was remembered with many garlands of flowers.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the large audience gathered at the Unique theater to listen to the program. Judge Lange presided, and called upon Rev. L. F. McDonald to invoke the Divine blessing. Supt. Larsen told why the great national day was being celebrated. Judge Lange then related some of his experiences while a fighter in the Civil war. The judge told how the old veterans were fast dropping off, and that it would be only a few years when all those who fought in that war would have passed into eternity. Harold Gorenflo of the local school gave a very touching recitation on the soldier boys.

Senator O'Neil Pays Tribute.

Senator O'Neil told of many of the difficulties the old boys in blue went through that this nation might live; how the boys in their teens were called upon and responded; how they were loaded in box cars and for four long years slept in trenches and ditches, or wherever they happened to drop; how hunger and thirst overcame them; how they fought for the honor and glory of this great nation, and how many hundred thousand of them gave their lives in the great battle. The senator concluded by saying that although there may never be a war such as this one, yet the people of this country could still fight many battles for the betterment of the nation. He referred especially to the liquor traffic and the employment of children in factories.

Senator Wood of the local land office succeeded Senator O'Neil and spoke in a very feeling and touching manner on the observance of the day. The senator told how the farmers, laborers of all kinds, bankers, etc., threw up their work to go out and fight and how they startled the world by showing their ability and how all the nations from one end of the globe to the other have profited by their work. Rev. G. O. Parish was called upon to give the closing prayer.

The orchestra rendered several of the national hymns during the program.

DISQUALIFIES A JUDGE.

Accused Bismarck Blindpigger Claims Regular Judge Prejudiced.

Pembina, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge W. J. Kneeshaw has gone to Bismarck where he is sitting for Judge Winchester who has been disqualified in a case. White, the accused, claims that because of the sentiment among the people of Burleigh county, and because of the personal opinion of Judge Winchester, he could not receive a fair trial on the charge of violating the prohibition law, which has been lodged against him. The information and complaint were filed by Attorney General Andrew Miller, and that fact in itself, the defendant claims, is sufficient to prejudice the minds of Burleigh county jurors against him.

CLOQUET PASTOR IS SPEAKER AT MOTLEY

Rev. C. H. Blake Addresses Large Memorial Day Audience at Motley.

Motley, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the largest crowds in years attended the Memorial exercises here yesterday. The ideal weather brought out practically every veteran for miles around. Led by the band they were followed to the cemetery by the Women's Relief Corps, civic organizations and the school children, the line being the longest ever seen here on this occasion. On their return from the exercises at the cemetery the W. R. C. served a splendid dinner to the old soldiers and others.

In the afternoon a splendid program was given at the M. E. church before a crowd that packed the building. Rev. Charles Blake of Cloquet delivered the address of the day. Te was met at the train by the old soldiers and the Odd Fellows in a body. From there they escorted him to the banquet hall. At the church he delivered one of the most eloquent addresses ever listened to here.

HURLED THIRTY FEET.

North Dakota Deaf and Dumb Child Breaks a Leg.

Kenmare, N. D., May 31.—The little deaf and dumb child of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Frazier, residing near this city, was thrown thirty feet through the air, receiving a double fracture of the leg, in a runaway. The horses were attached to a lumber wagon, and the child was riding with her father when the accident occurred. The horses in running away smashed things up badly, and, finally, the pole dropped, becoming stuck in the dirt road, and threw the wagon over in such a manner as to pitch the child high in the air.

BRAINERD MOULDERS WIN.

Defeat Deerwood Nine at Brainerd Monday Before Large Crowd.

Brainerd, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Brainerd molders ball team played the Deerwood Deerwood team here yesterday and won a score of 7 to 4. Batteries for the molders were Anderson and Willis; for the Deerwoods, Brindos and Lough. A fair day brought out an attendance of 700. Umpires were Ed James of Deerwood and Kylo of Brainerd. The features of the game were a pretty one-hand catch of a hard drive by Kresal of Deerwood and a catch of a line drive by Brainerd's pitcher, Anderson. Rice of the Deerwoods made a long hit.

On Sunday Deerwood played Cuyuna at Cuyuna and lost by a score of 1 to 5. The Brainerd Pickets team played Atkin at Aitkin Sunday and won by a score of 11 to 10. The South Side Cubs of Brainerd played Fort Ripley at Fort Ripley Sunday and lost by a score of 15 to 3. On June 5 the Brainerd molders will play Deerwood at Deerwood.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 31.—After two years of servitude in the state's prison at Waupun, John Tarasinski, sentenced to twenty-five years in the penitentiary for being implicated in the robbery of the Skarb-Sobieski Loan & Building association, and the murder of Dominic Gapinski, one of its directors, has been declared innocent by three men whose confession two years ago sent the four to prison.

The three are JJoseph Marrusik, T. Frank Scymczak, and Jacob Zabackowsby. Two former are serving twenty-five years and the latter a fourteen-year sentence for their implication in the murder and robbery.

FIREMAN BADLY SCALDED BY THE ESCAPING STEAM.

Enderlin, N. D., May 31.—Although James Barton, a Northern Pacific fireman, was practically parboiled by escaping steam, strong hopes are held out for his recovery. Barton was in the cab when the washout plug flew out of the boiler, completely filling the cab. In his efforts to escape, he stumbled and fell, and before he was again able to help himself the skin on his arms and legs was almost cooked out. His condition is still quite critical.

Minnewaukan, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—By the payment of $20,000 of courthouse bonds, Benson county is now free of debt so far as its courthouse is concerned. In addition thereto, the county has a balance on hand of about $40,000. The bonds were issued in 1900 running for twenty years, with the privilege of making payment at the end of ten years. This the board of commissioners decided to do, thus saving the interest and clearing of the county debt.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed, the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeter, and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by the fathers and mothers.

If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines when medicines are not needed, and when nature requires assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. As you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package. To get its beneficial effects it is necessary to purchase the genuine only. Buy a bottle today to have in the house when needed. Put up in one size only. Regular price 50c a bottle and for sale by all leading druggists.

Beer and Temperance

DR. JOSEPH ZEISLER, of the Northwestern University of Chicago, says:—"I fully believe that the moderate use of good beer at mealtime, acts as a tonic and is, therefore, useful to adult persons. The chief point in favor of beer as compared with other alcoholic beverages is in the small percentage of alcohol, and in the fact that it is responsible for few drunkards, if any."

ANDREW D. WHITE says in his Autobiography: "The best temperance workers among us that I know are the men who brew our light, pure, American beer." Such a beer conscientiously and scientifically brewed by one of the world's best brewers is

"ON TO CROOKSTON!"

Tomorrow the delegates from this corner of the state will leave for Crookston to attend the second meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association.

St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties should be well represented at this meeting, and present indications are that they will be.

It is not that Duluth or St. Louis county expect to wrest any favors from the convention. It is not that they will ask any or, for that matter, that they will accept any.

But Northern Minnesota will be hampered in its development until it joins its forces in a common and concerted effort to take what belongs to it. Duluth, as the commercial capital of Northern Minnesota, must join hands with Crookston, the commercial capital of the Red River valley, and with every other community in Northern Minnesota, for their good and for its own good. Duluth's growth and prosperity wait upon the growth and prosperity of all Northern Minnesota. Every settler brought in, every present settler helped and encouraged, is so much to the good for all Northern Minnesota and for Duluth. The greater the growth of Northern Minnesota, the larger the field from which Duluth will buy and to which it will sell.

To that extent, and to no further extent, Duluth's purpose in getting into the game for Northern Minnesota is selfish. Recognizing that its prosperity is bound up with the prosperity of all Northern Minnesota, it gladly takes up whatever burden may fall to it as its share of the splendid work of realizing the enormous potentialities for growth and prosperity that lie latent in Northern Minnesota.

That is why Duluth is interested in the Crookston convention. That is why it is sending a large delegation there; not that it will ask a single thing for itself, more than it hopes to get out of its due share of the benefits of state development. It asks only the opportunity to do its part in the work, to contribute its share of the energy and enthusiasm needed to make the fight a success.

What is chiefly needed, not only in the Duluth end of the district covered by the Northern Minnesota Development association but in the Crookston end, not only on the Roseau county side but on the Isanti county side, is reapportionment of legislative representation. That is the main issue, the one upon which all other issues hinge.

Grossly under-represented, Northern Minnesota taps in vain at the doors of legislative halls, asking for its due share of consideration. Properly represented in the legislature, it need not humbly knock at the door; it can walk in and take its proper seat in the councils of the state. Then greater attention will be paid to the needs of Northern Minnesota, and public funds invested in the development of the northern two-thirds of the state will return handsome dividends to every citizen, to the greater glory and strength and prosperity of every section of the commonwealth.

At Bemidji the Northern Minnesota Development association decided, most emphatically, to scrutinize with particular care the legislative candidates from Northern Minnesota, and to support only those who announce their determination to make reapportionment the leading issue in the legislature, and to press it at the coming session even though, as in the case of the senators, success involves cutting their terms of office in half. At Crookston, naturally, there should be a survey of the situation to ascertain to what degree the platforms of legislative candidates square with the Bemidji platform.

Those who have announced their intention to go to Crookston should let nothing interfere with the trip. They will enjoy every minute of it. They will enjoy getting acquainted with our friends of Northern Minnesota. They will enjoy participating in the new spirit of unison that is to redeem Northern Minnesota from neglect. They will enjoy the atmosphere of purpose, energy and determination that will prevail there. They will return to their homes imbued with a new realization of the splendid cause to which this association is dedicated, and of the great good to all parts of the state that will be born of its activities.

COMETS NOW AND IN OTHER DAYS.

Either comets are not what they used to be, or the art of lying has suffered a decline.

Or is it that comet stories, like the stories our elders tell us about the weather they had when they were young, have a tendency to grow larger as remoteness from the event increases?

Anywhere you go, the oldest inhabitants will inform you that the weather nowadays is nothing like what it was when they were young. It doesn't snow so much, rain so much or blow so much. The lightning has no such vividness, the thunder no such portentous sounds, as they had in days of old.

Thomas Jefferson, writing in the beginning of the nineteenth century, said that the oldest inhabitants of Virginia informed him that the weather had moderated greatly since their youth, and that there were no such storms then as there used to be when they were young. If you should go to Virginia now and talk with the oldest inhabitants, doubtless they would tell you the same thing.

If the weather was moderating in the beginning of the nineteenth century, and still is moderating now, what must it have been a few centuries ago? And what a condition of ineffable calm and unrufiled delight must be at hand!

Maybe it is the same way about comets. Maybe those who saw Halley's feeble show this year will be telling their grand-children, half a century hence, what a fearful and portentous sight his comet was in the year 1910.

For purposes of comparison, here is a most interesting report of an earlier appearance of Halley's comet, written in 1528 by a French surgeon and savant, Ambroise Pare:

> The comet was horrible and so terrible that some folks died of fear and others fell sick. It appeared to be of excessive length, and was the color of blood. At the summit of it was seen the figure of a bent arm, holding in its hand a great sword, as if about to strike. At the end of the point there were three stars. On both sides of the rays of the comet were seen a number of axes, knives, blood-colored swords, among which were a great number of hideous, human faces, with beards and bristling hair.

So you see that Halley's comet isn't what it used to be. What, do you suppose, has it done with those alarming appendages? Where, in the mysterious abyss through which it marches its beat, did it drop those axes, knives and swords? What did it do with that bent arm, threatening all humanity with its great sword? Where did it deposit that picture gallery, that chamber of horrors?

Nothing could be less alarming, more meek, more humble, more tame than the comet today.

Being a great surgeon and savant, obviously Ambroise Pare must have been telling the truth.

Maybe if we wait half a century or so we may hear similarly entertaining stories about the 1910 appearance of Halley's comet, unless, perchance, the art of lying died with Pare.

PROCRASTINATION AND FOLLY.

Says the Foley Independent: "The Duluth Herald thinks it would be a good idea to wait until a new legislature is elected before the matter of reapportionment is taken up. This would delay matters at least another four years, which is too long to wait. Immediately the official census figures are announced the governor should convene the legislature for the specific purpose of taking up reapportionment and submitting to the people at the fall election an amendment to the constitution permitting a one-mill tax to be devoted to good roads. Procrastination is the thief of time and now is the time to go after this. Northern Minnesota has been put off with fair promises too long, as it is."

Though it may seem like procrastination to put off reapportionment until the new legislature is elected, it would be folly to put the fate of Northern Minnesota before the present legislature again.

The Herald's reluctance to approve the idea of a special session for the consideration of reapportionment is based upon an utter lack of confidence that any good thing for Northern Minnesota could come out of the present legislature.

It has been tried through nearly four months of a regular session, and it is no exaggeration to say that for incompetence, lack of aim, absence of purpose, and general inefficiency, the state of Minnesota never saw its equal. If any of the newspapers of Minnesota doubt this, let them turn back in their own files to their own comments upon the session, made just after it closed.

As to reapportionment, in a special session it would come before the same committees that considered in 1909; and that would mean that the attempt to get justice would be utterly hopeless.

That it is not possible to get justice for Northern Minnesota from the present legislature was amply proved at the regular session, and a special session would only confirm this impossibility.

Besides, it is not at all probable that the complete population figures for Minnesota will be available in time to do any good. If they were available, and a special session were called, it would come in the heat of the campaign, and the session would be nothing but a stage for political jockeying. Every member would be acting with his political fortunes wholly occupying his mind, and the good of the state would be lost in a selfish political scramble.

The Herald has no patience with those who profess to believe that reapportionment is impossible in the regular session of the new legislature to be held next January. It is true that the fact that reapportionment then will cut the senatorial terms in two will make it more difficult; but those who go into a fight with the conviction that their cause is hopeless are beaten already. With the issue made prominent by the action of the Northern Minnesota Development association, with the political parties declaring for reapportionment in their platforms, and with the candidates for the legislature from Northern Minnesota pledged to make reapportionment the leading issue of the next session without regard to its effect on their own political fortunes, the cause is not hopeless by any means.

There will be no special session, but there will be a regular session next January, and the people will have a chance in the election of the new legislature to correct the weakness in the north and the indifference in the south that have delayed reapportionment.

MEMORIAL DAY PARADES.

Though it is a gallant spectacle to watch the remaining battalions of the "boys in blue," who fought for their country in their splendid youth, marching on Memorial day as they have marched these many years, it is also a spectacle seen through misty eyes. Though the spirits of the veterans are as gallant and as willing as they ever were, age must have its say, and every year the Memorial day march becomes more difficult. In New York, it is related in the press reports, the parade was nearly three hours in passing the reviewing stand. Now three hours of marching is hard work. It is hard for young legs as well as for old. Let any young man, not used to being on his feet, get out on a hard pavement and trudge for three hours. He will find it no easy task. And in New York, as it no doubt was elsewhere, "the blue lines wavered; old feet shuffled over the roadway, and some of the men who marched behind the ragged flags, riddled with shot, spent quickly what strength they had and kept their places only with the help of more stalwart comrades."

Perhaps many of the veterans will resent the suggestion that the time is about at hand when they ought no longer to be asked to undertake long and weary parades, but it is true, nevertheless. The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak; and there is no need that they should march any longer.

In several communities automobiles were loaned for the occasion, and the veterans paraded that way. That is a good idea to be kept in mind for next Memorial day.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

TO AID HOMESTEADER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Enclosed you will find $1.00 which I wish to be sent to Mr. Fridblom, the homesteader, who was a victim of forest fires. I hope you will succeed in getting a good purse for him, for it will take a long time for him to get fixed comfortably again.

New Duluth, May 28.

THE PROPERTY OWNER AND HIS SIDEWALKS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Why don't the city officials of Duluth insist upon the sidewalk contractors fulfilling their contracts? At present they tear up several miles of walk at a time when the city charter does not allow them to pull up the walk more than forty-eight hours ahead of the time the walk is to be laid. The treatment accorded the public at the present time is a shame. The contractors tear up walks blocks at a time, and do not attempt to replace them for weeks. The only reason that I can see for their doing that is that they figure they will hold the work. The property holders will think that because the walk is torn up they cannot hire another contractor, whereas the contractor is not allowed to tear up the walk more than forty-eight hours ahead. If the citizens would bear this in mind and act upon it they would not be subjected to the frequent inconveniences they are now compelled to stand through ignorance. The sidewalk contractors have been doing this for more than one year and it is high time that something was done about it.

A VICTIM.

Duluth, May 31.

WHY NOT INCARCERATE THE SCORCHING AUTOMOBILES?

To the Editor of The Herald:

We poor devils who live upon suburban highways and suffer all kinds of outrages and are in danger of our very lives at the hands of automobile scorchers, cudgel our not always fertile brains to devise or suggest means for abating that nuisance. Did it ever occur to you that municipal legislation that would make the automobile itself the culprit would be mightily effective? The average owner is sportily inclined and the fine of $5 or $10 for speeding but gives zest to that pastime. Abolish the fine and incarcerate the automobile itself, sequester it, put it in hock for ten days, thirty days, six months, depending upon the offense, depriving Mr. Speeder absolutely of its use for that time, and, methinks, we would soon have a decent show at walking and driving upon our country byways and highways. If the thing hasn't occurred to you, give it an editorial boost. There is nothing like trying expedients. Very truly yours,

F. W. FITZPATRICK.

Dilemma of the Shades.

Quoth Shakespeare: "The language I used
With never a flaw nor a miss,
Full wide was the range of my lore,
But what is the meaning of this?"

On Doyle's bingle the outfielder beat it to the third station and tallied on Murray's sacrifice fly after Doyle was landed at second on a pretty throw by Unhappy Smith to Hummel.

Cried Milton: "I once juggled words
With highly successful effect,
But this I cannot understand;
I pray you explain and dissect."

Besides fanning Devore, Rucker whiffed Cy Seymour, Meyers, Wiltse and Fletcher.

Said Chaucer: "In past days I wrote,
My quaintness I do not disclaim;
But this I do not comprehend.
Will some one interpret the same?"

As was expected, Hal Chase picked out one that he disliked and smashed it on the nose, and in this condition the ball fled to McBride.

And Spenser and Dryden and Pope.
And Addison gathered around;
Good craftsmen of English quite stumped
By paragraphs strange they had found.

They said that too early they lived,
Too soon in the world used the tongue,
And weeping for all they had missed
Their harps on the swat willow hung.

Miss Von Ryder's School for Girls.

Life: Announcement—Believing that the utmost frankness is the best advertising, Miss Von Ryder desires to inform her many patrons what may be expected at her establishment.

Girls entering Miss Von Ryder's school will be taught snobbery in all of its branches. A constant competition as to who can spend the most money and dress the best will be one of the principal features.

Miss Von Ryder believes in all the outward forms of education. Girls will therefore be taught a smattering of elegant French, operatic music and church ritual.

Everything will be done to make the graduates of Miss Von Ryder's school ignorant of the actual condition of society as it exists today and familiar with all of the forms necessary to make what is termed a "lady."

The charges are moderate—$1,200 a year—with everything but food and sleeping extra.

Every entrant is urged to bring one maid, one motor car and $4,000 or $5,000 in cash for incidental expenses.

A florist is connected with the school.

The Wail of a Bachelor.

I am a most unlucky man
In matters of the heart.
From youth it's been my wish to play
A matrimonial part;
I must have popped a hundred times
But all in vain, a bachelor
I'll have to end my days.

My first love I remember well,
Miss Shipp, her I adored,
But when I asked to be her mate
She threw me overboard.
Miss Cone was sent, I told her that
For her I pined, but she
Said if a husband she desired
She'd never pitch on me.

I asked Miss Page to be my bride,
She turned me down, alas!
Miss Wicks made light of my request
Miss Hay said: "Go to grass!"
Miss Bird I begged to fly with me,
But she could give no hope;
Miss Mellen listened to my plea,
But said: "I cantelope."

Miss Soule refused her heart to give,
Miss King my queen to be.
In vain I begged Miss Frost to melt,
Miss Leach to stick to me.
Miss Pond threw water on my hopes,
Miss Foote refused her hand.
I tried to pop to fair Miss Ecach,
But did not have the sand.

Miss Pott I asked to cook my beans,
Miss Lodge with me to dwell.
I told Miss Ladd I'd be her man,
I tried to ring Miss Bell;
And thus from maid to maid I went Proposing, but in vain—
Alas! a lonely bachelor
I'm destined to remain.

An Empty Slogan.

Puck: "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party," continues to be a valuable phrase for the beginner upon the typewriter, but as a political slogan it has lost much of its force.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Socialists Are Just People.

North Branch Review: If the work of the new Socialist mayor of Milwaukee is a fair sample of Socialism in power, there appears to be very little to terrify one in the name Socialism. Mayor Seidel is accomplishing some much needed reforms and is an example of a studious, hard working public official.

Warning Not Necessary.

Middle River Pioneer: Some of our contemporaries are warning the promoters of the Crookston development convention against the danger of allowing the meeting to be used for the exploitation of aspiring politicians. We hardly think, however, that the warning is necessary. The men of Northern Minnesota who are pushing this matter are men of such earnestness of purpose and breadth of mind that they will summarily deal with any political schemers who attempt to use this convention solely in their own selfish interests.

The Source of all Wealth.

Ada Index: The increasing demand for land in this section is shown by the fact that twice as much land was sold at the state land sales this year than was sold last year. In a few decades the family owning a good sized piece of real estate will be on top.

A Bad Case.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: President Taft not only has a congress on his hands, and a squirmy one at that, but he has the Ballinger-Pinchot case on his neck.

Will He?

Perham Enterprise: Col. Roosevelt has certainly enhanced his popularity by his trip abroad. Will he retain this popularity on his return? Col. Bryan was probably the most popular man in America on his return from his tour around the world a few years ago, but the first speech he made on arriving at New York knocked his popularity into smithereens. Will Teddy do likewise?

A Packed Committee.

Fergus Falls Free Press: The Taft-Pinchot investigation is about over and the people are more firmly convinced than ever of the unfitness of R. A. Ballinger to hold his present position, and the fact that the committee is quite sure to whitewash him will not affect their opinion in the least, for it has become very plain that that committee was safely packed with Taft-Ballinger sympathizers.

Who, When, Where and Why?

Foley Independent: The game of politics as played in Washington is surely a most complex one. Several weeks ago Attorney General Wickersham was kept busy going about the country reading the insurgents, as represented by La Follette, Beveridge, Clapp and others, out of the party. Now these gentlemen are quite the regular thing and Aldrich, Cannon et al are the ones who are kicking over the traces. This leads us to wonder who is the guiding genius of the Republican party and who are really regulars?

Lay Off a While.

This is the weather to lay off a while;
This is the weather to bask in the smile
Of nature and beauty and rest 'neath a tree
With nothing to think of but fish in the sea.
This is the weather to tie up the mule
And get in the sunlight away from the cool,
On the warm, shiny side of the barn when it's noon
And y'u dabble your soul in the rose-dream of June:
Lay off a while,
Let's lay off a while,
And rest in the sunlight
And dream in its smile!

This is the weather to take up a rod
And go out somewhere where there's nothing but God,
And the grass and the clover, and over the glade
The roses go by in a rosey parade,
And the truck patches blossom, and every one seems
Just stretchin' their arms up to regions of dreams,
Or wanting to, mighty, with nothing to do
But play you were Croesus and Croesus were you:
Lay off a while,
Let's lay off a while,
The same as if business
Had gone out of style!

This is the weather the water gets warm,
The swimmin' comes back, and the bees are in swarm;
You make willow whistles, and yonder the men
That work in the fields hunt the spring in the glen,
And hug the warm sunshine clear up to their throats
The same as a wamus, or 'stead of their coats—
It gives 'em such goodness clean down to the heart
Where little songs bubble, and blossom, and start:
Lay off a while,
Let's lay off a while,
In the measureless freedom
Of mile after mile!

This is the weather just gets us a-goin'—
Sailin', or fishin', or swimmin', or rowin'!
Sun on the water, and sky overhead
As blue as if millions of violets were spread
From mountain to mountain, and under the roof
White clouds were the roses that brightened the woof
And made little islands of down like a nest
Where the larks on their way to the sunlight might rest:
Lay off a while,
Let's lay off a while,
Where the dewberries dream
And the buttercups smile!

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It's so natural to lie it's astonishing how few people do it well.

The more fun a man thinks he can have being out nights the more his wife knows she can't.

Insane asylums are all places where everybody outside is crazy.

The way for a man to make a girl stop running away from him is for him to stop chasing her.

When a man comes to you with an offer to make you rich you're lucky if he doesn't go away with a dollar he borrowed from you.

If All Who Hate Would Love Us.

If all who hate would love us,
And all our love were true,
The stars that swing above us
Would brighten in the blue;
If the cruel words were kisses,
And every scowl a smile,
A better world than this is
Would hardly be worth while;
If purses would not tighten
To meet a brother's need,
The load we bear would brighten
Above the grave of greed.

If those who whine would whistle,
And those who languish laugh,
The rose would rout the thistle,
The grain outrun the chaff;
If hearts were only jolly,
If grieving were forgot,
And tears of melancholy
Were things that now are not;
Then love would kneel to duty,
And all the world would seem
A bridal bower of beauty,
A dream within a dream.

If men would cease to worry,
And women cease to sigh,
And all be glad to bury Whatever has to die;
If neighbor spake to neighbor,
As love demands of all,
The rust would eat the saber,
The spear stay on the wall.
Then every day would glisten,
And every eye would shine
And God would pause to listen,
And life would be divine.

The floral decorations were very elaborate.

The informal reception of the West End Social club last evening was its last this season. H. P. Brown, vice president of the club, was presented with gold cuff buttons studded with diamonds, in appreciation of his valuable services. New officers were elected as follows: H. P. Dwight E. Woodbridge will build a handsome $6,000 double dwelling on Third street and Tenth avenue west, opposite the new central city park.

As if in honor of Memorial day, the sky cleared yesterday morning of the heavy banks of clouds which had so long obscured the sun, and Old Sol poured his welcome warmth from the azure blue. At 2 o'clock Superior street was crowded with people, and cheers rent the air as the G. A. R. parade came down the thoroughfare. The exercises took place at Temple Opera house, which was crowded. "Sheridan's Ride" was delivered in a manner as never before in this city, and Nat C. Goodwin, the speaker, received tumultuous applause. Miss Sloan gave a reading, and the Duluth Glee club sang. As a fitting finale to the day's ceremonies, Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, one of the most powerful speakers in the West, delivered a grand eulogy to the departed veterans, and advice and warning to the living.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Punch: Ethel (finding the sermon tedious, and thinking it high time for the collection)—Oh, mother, do pay the man and let's go home.

Washington Star: "There's no doubt about Charley's being a thorough optimist," said young Mrs. Torkins.

"How do you know?"

"I overheard him at a card party he gave to his friends. He said scarcely anything all evening except 'That's good.'"

Life: "Parker and his wife have separated."

"What are the terms?"

"They each get their cook for six months."

Pittsburg Post: "He has a theory that women are not to be trusted with money."

"Introduce me. It ought to be easy to stick him for the drinks."

Kansas City Journal: "Who was the fellow Pepys, and what is his claim to fame?"

"His claim to fame is well founded, my friend. He's the man who kept a diary for more than a year."

Boston Transcript: "I wonder what the ladies do at those afternoon teas?"

"Oh, they just sip and gos-sip."

Pointed Paragraphs.

The Democrats.

Mark Sullivan in Collier's: Every Democrat in the United States has a patriotic duty during the twenty-five weeks which end Nov. 8 next; it is to see that men of high quality get the Democratic nomination for congress in every district. It need occasion neither surprise nor resentment to say that the Democrats now in congress do not measure up, in character or ability, to the average of the party in power; it is always so; a party out of power and without responsibility for seventeen years cannot help but degenerate in personnel. It would be trite to point out the probability of change. The thought we have in mind is much better expressed by the Houston (Tex.) Post;

> "O Lord, now that everything is coming our way, purge every Democrat soul of hot air and vainglory and insert large instalments of common sense in every Democratic cranium; and oh remember, Lord, our proneness to make fools of ourselves just when we have the world by the tail and a downhill pull, and see that we don't get in bad this time."

And, above all, see that Democratic nomination in every district goes, not to the ubiquitous party hack, but to the best man in the community.

The Fable of the Celestial Bookkeeper.

June Lippincott's: One day, while walking to the place he worked, a Man who had a Kind Heart and Very Little Else was accosted by an Old Male Beggar with a Red Nose. The Man was plainly a Bum, but it was Equally Plain that he was Very Miserable and Probably Hungry. The Man Accosted shook his head impatiently and passed on—only to come to a halt a second later, retrace his steps, and drop a Coin in the Beggar's hand.

Oddly enough, this happened in front of a superb Mansion, in the library of which sat the Man Who Owned It. He was looking Pleased with himself and with all the world, for he had just finished looking over a Statement showing that his Total Wealth amounted to some Four Hundred Millions of Dollars. It was with an air of Extreme Benevolence that he took up a pen and signed a Check for a Hundred Thousand Dollars, which he was to bestow upon a well known University.

Then the Recording Angel, who had been an Impassive Witness of Both Transactions, reached for the scroll of Good Deeds and made a Mark opposite One Name.

The Modern Cook Book.

Ellis O. Jones in Success Magazine: "On account of the high price of foodstuffs, householders will be glad to know of the following substitutes:

PLANKED SHAD.

Send one of the children around to the new houses in the neighborhood to borrow a quantity of putty. Take the putty, knead it well and flavor so that it will taste as much like fish as possible. When about ready for the oven, quickly stir in a paper of pins.

If it is not cried to serve this as shad, leave out the pins and serve as cheese.

SPINACH.

Go to any storage house and procure a quantity of excelsior. On the way home stop at the drug store and buy a bottle of green dye. Take the excelsior and dye each strand separately in order to get it just the right shade. Now take it to the barber's and have it cut. If excelsior is not procurable use straw hats.

SALAD.

A good substitute for salad may be made by getting the lawn mower, running it over the lawn, gathering up the grass, putting the grass through the clothes wringer to flatten it and take out the kinks. Then lay on plates and cover with any good substitute for apples or celery. A white kid glove, if chopped fine, is just as good as chicken or veal. A good dressing for this salad may easily be made by allowing a few old mustard plasters to soak over night.

BREAKFAST FOOD.

Go to any department store and buy a few dolls. Take the thumb and first finger and grasp each doll firmly under the arms. With the other hand make an incision in the cadaver of the doll just above the waist line. Serve the contents in quantities to suit, and pour over it any good substitute for milk. A good substitute for milk may be procured from any milkman.

If impossible to obtain dolls, chop up hair brushes or clothes brushes.

TURTLE SOUP

For a small price one may purchase an old bait bucket from any fisherman. Put in a little seaweed, a few seashells, and, if possible, an old, well-seasoned fish net. Boil thoroughly until all the flavor is extracted. Then strain. Before serving drop in a few pieces of almost anything you can find to give it substance.

APPLE PIE.

Just before the cook goes out in the evening have her cut the fringe off the portiers. Set the fringe to soak in a kettle of concentrated lye until tender. In the morning add a little cider to flavor, and bake. If tar paper is used instead of crusts it will not be necessary to grease the pans.

A very good whipped cream dressing for this may be made by using absorbent cotton. Absorbent cotton also comes in quite handy in making Charlotte Russe.

Sonnet to an Onion.

Between the liver and the bacon fried,
A shallop floating on a gravied sea,
As graceful as the sea anemone,
And fragrant as the rose of summer-tide.
O succulent esculent, so true and tried,
Thy beauty takes my breath away; to me
Thou art a languorous odor-symphony,
With thee my tears fall—tears of joy and pride!

When the reft queen beside the Theban wave
Mourning her slain ones held thee in her hand,
Then flowed woe's saline tide unstemmed by years.
So weak, yet strong; so modest, yet so brave,
Niobe of the truck farm's sprouting band,
I press thee to my lips—and hence these tears.

ON THE IRON RANGES

PAY HONOR TO HEROES

Coleraine, Virginia, Eveleth and Other Range Towns Observe Day.

Laying Village Cornerstone at Coleraine Feature of the Day There.

Virginia, Minn, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 2,000 school children carrying flags, evergreens and banners were the conspicuous features of yesterday's parade here in honor of the soldier dead. The parade was one of the most notable spectacles ever seen in this section and auspiciously started the annual observance of the day dedicated to the heroes of the Civil war.

Miss Minnie Eaton, daughter of ex-Mayor Eaton and Miss Bertha Smith, daughter of B. F. Smith, the hotel man, both mounted, headed the procession, followed by Supt. Lafayette Bliss of the schools, who was marshal of the day. Then came the Virginia band, and Policeman Henry Adams at the head of 2,000 school children cadrying flags. One hundred boys from the head of 2,000 school children carrying wooden guns they had made was another parade feature. After the parade there were exercises at the Roosevelt school the program consisting of patriotic songs by the school children, and a stereopticon address by Supt. Lafayette Bliss. The principal address was by Rev. Father W. J. Powers, pastor of one of the Catholic churches. The address was a splendid one and added much patriotism to the affair.

There are only a few veterans of the Civil war here, and they did not join in the parade, but attended the exercises at the school auditortum.

COLERAINE VILLAGE HALL CORNER STONE IS LAID.

Coleraine, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Memorial day was celebrated here by laying the cornerstone of the new $40,000 village hall; by a baseball game with the neighboring village of Taconite, and by a banquet and ball in the evening in the Greenway high school. There is no cemetery here and consequently no graves of soldiers to decorate, but the heroes of the Civil war were not forgotten in the many patriotic addresses given.

In the afternoon the program was opened with an open air concert by the city band. Following this the citizens assembled at the corner of Roosevelt and Gayley avenues, where the village hall is being erected and there listened to addresses by Supt. A. J. McGuire and ex-Senator C. C. McCarthy of Grand Rapids. Mayor M. Curley presided. At the conclusion of the program the cornerstone was laid with due ceremony, and within it was placed historic documents relative to the organization of the village and the name of every man, woman and child residing here one year ago when the census was taken for ascertaining the population for the purpose of incorporating. Also copies of the last issue of the Coleraine Optic and The Duluth Herald.

From the place of laying the cornerstone the people adjourned to the baseball park, where they were entertained by a ball game between the rival nines of Coleraine and Taconite. The score was 11 to 1 in favor of the home team.

Banquet at High School.

At 6 o'clock the business men and mining officials, upon the invitation of the village council, partook of a bounteous banquet at the high school, prepared under the direction of Miss Evjen, head of the domestic science department of the high school. At the conclusion of the spread Mayor Curley introduced John C. Greenway as toastmaster, who in a most interesting way presented the many speakers of the evening. There was much pleasantry as well as earnest thought expressed regarding the past achievements of this new town, and optimistic hopes for the future. The best of feeling prevailed among the men representing the mining interests and the business men and the representatives from the nearby towns expressed themselves in the most friendly manner toward Coleraine, and congratulated her on her civic improvements.

Many young people of the Canesteo mining district assembled later in the evening to enjoy the pleasures of the grand ball given in honor of the laying of the cornerstone. The popular Corelaine irchestra furnished music for the banquet and ball.

Eveleth Observes Day.

Eveleth, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Memorial day was fittingly observed here. At the local schools appropriate exercises were held at all the buildings and various grades. Supt. B. O. Greening and Fergus R. Ellsworth, first lieutenant of the local militia, addressed the grade children and aroused much patriotic enthusiasm in the little ones. The schools and other local buildings were appropriately decorated, and many of the local business places remained closed the whole day, while others closed a noon. No parade or organized celebra ions were held, but the day was spent in recreation and much reverence.

Militia Fire Volleys.

Hibbing, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Forty members of Company M, N. G. M., accompanied by about the same number of the uniform rank of Modern Woodmen marched from the auditorium to the cemetery yesterday and at the graves of Mr. Casey, a Civil war veteran, and Jesse O'Neill, a member of the company fired volleys.

Attorney D. T. Collins delivered an impressive address at the cemetery, which was listened to by about 500 people.

The following Civil war veterans attended the exercises: Joseph Moran, Henry Selby, Comrade Mansfield, Comrade Shaw, John Dougherty, and John Hayes.

Two Harbors Exercises.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Memorial day was fittingly observed in this city yesterday. A firing squad and drum corps obtained from Duluth to assist in the program. A special program had been prepared and special music was given. The order of service was as follows: Voluntary, "Doxology;" invocation by Rev. J. F. McLeod; hymn; responsive reading, "Gloria." scripture lesson, solo, "God's Acre" by Mrs. N. W. Benning, prayer, sermon was a Memorial sermon and Rev. McLeod chose as his text, Matt. xi., 7. Following the sermon, Mrs. H. S. Bryan rendered a solo entitled, "Cover Them Over With Beautiful Flowers," in which she was assisted by a double quartet. The service was closed with the benediction.

At the First Methodist church on Sunday evening, Revv. T. S. Oadams spoke on "Our Flag." He gave a very interesting sermon, and he said in the course of his sermon, that religion was akin to patriotism, and the more patriotism, and the more patriotic a person became the more he turned toward religion.

LAURA MINE SHAFT INJURED BY FIRE

Several Men Hurt While Fighting Blaze By Fire and Cavein.

Hibbing, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire in the timbered shaft of the Laura mine, owned by the Inland Steel company, about three-quarters of a mile from here, that broke out yesterday about 4 p. m. and raged until about 5 this morning, did extensive damage to the property. During the heighth of the fire several men who were engaged in fighting the fire were badly burned and more or less hurt by a cave-in. A large amount of lagging and other timber near the mouth of the shaft caught fire and several thousand feet were destroyed.

Supt. William Wearne of the mine worked all night with a force of fire fighters and finally extinguished the flames. The shaft, which is about 100 feet deep, has caved in and and extensive repairs will be necessary.

TWO DROWNED IN LAKE POKEGAMA

Grand Rapids Business Man and School Teacher Lose Their Lives.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. A. Mulvihill, a young business man of this city, and Miss Ruth Bacus, a teacher in the local schools were drowned in Lake Pokegama late yesterday afternoon when the row boat in which they were sailing with Harley Cadwell and Miss Anna Becker sprang a leak about half a mile from shore and the occupants were thrown into the chilly water to cling to the submerged boat until help arrived or perish. All could swim except Miss Bacus who became excited and threw her arms about Mulvihill, who was helping her to stay on the submerged boat, and both sank to their death. Miss Becker and Mr. Cadwell were helpless to do anything for the drowning couple, as they did not show up after sinking the first time. Mr. Cadwell and Miss Becker were picked up a short time afterward by a steam boat which was passing.

Brave Girl Attempts Rescue.

The accident occurred in plain view of the hotel, and it is a peculiar thing that there was not a man about the place except Mr. Butler, the proprietor and it is said that he was unable to row a boat. Seeing this, Miss Hoelling, a young lady who teaches in the city schools, who was out to the lake to spend the day, volunteered to row out to rescue the drowning party, but the excitement and the strain of hard rowing was too much for her, and she was brought in by automobile about 8 o'clock prostrated from her efforts. Miss Becker, who was saved from drowning by her pluck in hanging on to the boat is recovering from the effects of her ordeal, and Mr. Cadwell is also recovering. Both are prostrated with grief over the sad accident.

Both Victims Popular.

Mr. Mulvihill, who was drowned was about 25 years of age, and was one of the popular young men of Grand Rapids. He was employed as bookkeeper in the ice cream factory of his uncle.

Miss Backus was about 22 years of age, and had been a teacher in the public schools here for the past three years. Miss Becker is also a teacher in the Grand Rapids schools, while Mr. Cadwell is a clerk in the hardware department of H. Hughes & Co.'s store here.

Searching parties are dragging the lake in the vicinity of the place where the bodies sank, but owing to the depth of the lake they may not be recovered for several days until they rise to the surface.

Then followed the class chant, class prophesy, planting of the class tree, and the history of the United States (us), all of which were well given eliciting applause fiom the audience. HAGUE COURT IS READY TO MEET

British-American Fisheries Treaty of 1818 to Be Interpreted.

The Hague, May 31.—The arbitration tribunal, before which will be tried the issue between the United States and Great Britain growin out of conflicting interpretations of the Newfoundland fisheries treaty of 1818 will hold its opening session at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The bone of contention now carried to The Hague is the intention of the provisions of Article 1 of the British-American treaty of 1818 defining the fishing rights of American and Canadians off the west coast of Newfoundland. Newfoundland holds that the right to fish in these waters was granted to the inhabitants of the United States only. The United States contends that its citizens may exercise this right by going there in their own vessels with crews of Swedes, Canadians or Newfoundlanders.

The treaty further confines the right of fishing "to the coast." The United States interprets these words as including the bars, and harbors, and creeks. Newfoundland maintains that Americans may fish only outside the coast line proper. There are further subsidiary points in dispute.

Senator Root, who arrived in London yesterday, is on his way to The Hague, where he goes as one of the American commission before the tribunal. He is accompanied by several lawyers of international experience.

MAN IN CROWD IS KILLED BY OFFICER

Philadelphia Police Officer, Knocked Down and Beaten, Uses Revolver.

Philadelphia, May 31.—James O'Neil, 27 years old, was shot and killed by John O'Rourke, a policeman, in the northeastern part of the city during an encounter today between the policeman and a boisterous crowd of young men. The policeman was attacked and severely beaten, and while lying on the sidewalk he drew his revolver and fired at his assailants.

The crowd dispersed and other policemen, attracted by the revolver shot, found O'Rourke and O'Neil on the sidewalk. Both were sent to a hospital, where it was found O'Neil was dead and the policeman in a serious condition.

BLEACHED FLOUR CASE IS ARGUED

Millers, Grain Men and Bakers Attend Court at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., May 31.—Millers, grain men and bakers from various parts of the country were in the federal court here today when the case of the government against certain millers charged with adulteration in bleaching flour and with misbranding flour in violation of the food and drug act of 1906, was called before Judge Smith McPherson of Red Oak, Iowa.

The case is based upon the government's seizure of 625 sacks of flour in a grocery store at Castle, Mo., April 11, 1910. The flour had been shipped by the Lexington Mill & Elevator company of Lexington, Neb.

Attorneys representing the Lexington Mill & Elevator company last week filed a motion in the federal court here asking that the portion of the government's petition charging misbranding be stricken out. The argument on this motion first occupied the time of the court today.

Pierce Butler Taker Part.

Pierce Butler, special United States attorney of St. Paul, represented the government. Edward P. Smith of Omaha, Judge A. E. Helm of Wichita and Bruce S. Elliott of St. Louis were counsel for the millers.

Among the expert witnesses subpoenaed are Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, of the department of agriculture, and Dr. Walter S. Haines of Chicago.

BIG SUMS OFFERED FOR CURES OF ECZEMA

Thousand Dollar Bonuses Found Unnecessary.

Several cases have become known of persons in different parts of the country who have made standing offers of a thousand dollars each for some course of treatment which would permanently cure them of eczema. The offers were withdrawn when, at a comparatively trifling expense these persons experienced complete cures through the use of poslam, the new skin remedy, which is sold for 50 cents by all good druggists, particularly the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett in Duluth, and the A. E. Holmberg Drug Co., Superior.

Poslam is daily giving evidence of its remarkable healing properties in curing the worst cases of eczema and eradicating facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. All itching is stopped with first application. In minor affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, barber's and other forms of itch, red noses, inflamed skin, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required.

No one is asked to purchase poslam without first obtaining one of the free trial packages, which will be sent by mail to any one who will write direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

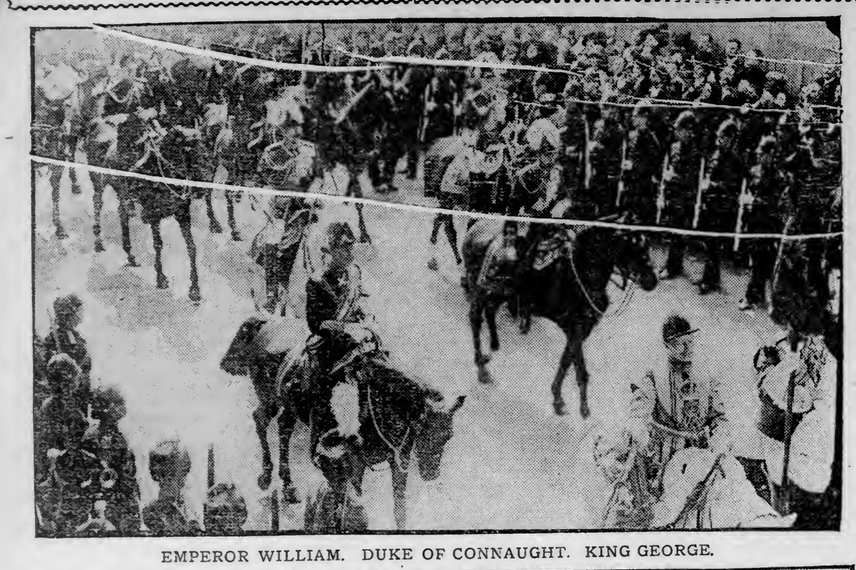
SCENES AT THE FUNERAL OF KING EDWARD



EMPEROR WILLIAM. DUKE OF CONNAUGHT. KING GEORGE.

ENVOYS FROM REPUBLICS DURING THE MARCH.

(Special Correspondence of The Duluth Herald. By George Grantham Bain.)

London, May 20.—The funeral of King Edward was much more like a pageant and much less like a funeral than I had expected. The really impressional public ceremony in connection with the last rites was when the late king's body was conveyed from Buckingham palace to Westminster, and next to that in point of interest and solemnity was the passing of miles of people to do reverence to the dead monarch as his remains lay in state for three days in Westminster hall.

Tuesday was not a public holiday. The crowd which witnessed the first public ceremony therefore was smaller and, as the line of march was short, it was soon over. Through the courtesy of the commissioner of police of the metropolis, I was provided with a press pass, a black bordered card admitting me to the line of the procession. This I found of little value at first. Constables turned me back from the line; sergeants and superintendents of police would not listen to argument.

Finally I made my way through back streets and along the embankment directly to Westminster hall, through the courtesy of a sergeant in charge. I was admitted to a little forbidden triangle of space at the very gate through which the cortege was to pass.

Armed Men Along Route.

Here as elsewher the line of march was guarded by two lines of uniformed men—they were the naval reserve at Westminster—and by one line of police. But two constables made room for me between them and so I got a parectically unobstructed view of the procession.

But it was not the procession which was most impressive. It was the reverential spirit of the great crowd which witnessed the ceremony. Before Westminster hall is a great space, almost triangular, on one side of which is Westminster cathedral. The roof of the cathedral was covered with spectators; they filled the windows and roof spaces of the other buildings within view. And on the streets behind the military and police lines were massed as many people as could crowd the space between the curbing and the buildings.

In the little park opposite Westminster were hundreds who could not hope to get within view of anything but the heads of the cavalrymen. But they, too, breathed the atmosphere of gentle reverence which surrounded that great assemblage, and through all the preparations for the coming of the procession there was a hushed, almost awed tone which suggested the cathedral aisle rather than the open street. Police orders were given quietly and obeyed in silence.

A Wonderful Hush.

And when the music of the band at the head of the procession was heard in the near distance a wonderful hush fell over that great crowd. A cough would have disturbed it. Hats were doffed and guns reversed, heads were bowed and only the strains of Chopin's funeral march, the beat of muffled drums or the booming note of the bell of Old Tom on the tower of the parliament building penetrated the silence, as the gun carriage with the coffin passed on its slow way to the court of Westminster and was carried thence into the hall.

King George, dressed in the uniform of an admiral, followed the gun carriage on foot. He is not an emotional man, the new "Sailor King," and his face as he marched behind his father's coffin was as firm as though he were on parade. Several of the visiting monarchs who are related to the royal family followed him. Then came the carriage of the queen mother. Alexandra was looking from the window as it passed. Her eyes were tearless, but her white face was very sad.

Then came the new queen and her children and other members of the royal family, all in the gilded carriages which are used only on state occasions. These carriages were driven by coachmen in gorgeous scarlet uniforms, much braided, with cocked hats on their heads and violet pink stockings below their knee breeches. They wore wigs of white hair twisted into close curls. On the footboard of each carriage were from two to four footmen in like liveries. They were like a glimpse of the pomp of past centuries, these trappings—quite in harmony with the somber background of old Westminster cathedral and curiously contrasting with the masses of spectators in twentieth century dress standing bareheaded behind the lines of scarlet coats and blue.

Heralds in Cloth of Gold.

Heralds there were, too, in cloth of gold, figures which had just stepped out of an old painting. The memory of it the next night when I went to see Irving in "Louis XI" made the stage picture seem almost part of present-day reality.

While the ceremony in Westminster hall was being held, the crowd stood always silent and reverential, for the most part bareheaded, until the royal carriage reappeared and the royal family passed through the lines again on its way to Marlborough house and Buckingham palace.

Then the ceremony of "lying in state" began, and for three days it continued. Supplied with a special card of admittance by the office of works, in company of Charles Rattell Loomis, the well-known American writer, I witnessed this ceremony between 7 and 8 o'clock of the second evening. It came next in solemnity and interest to the ceremony of Tuesday.

London papers are no more accurate in their estimates than our own journals. I saw Wednesday afternoon on the Strand simultaneously displayed the posters of three different newspapers announcing respectively "four miles of queue" "five miles of queue" and "seven miles of queue." Perhaps one could average these estimates and arrive at an approximation of the truth. But whatever the length of the line which waited so patiently for entrance to Westminster hall, it is true that many men and women began their vigil long before daybreak and one reporter, who joined the line for experience found that it took him four hours to get into Westminster hall. Three minutes there and he was out in the open air again.

In the Long Vigil.

Through this long vigil passed women with babies in their arms, men leading little children by the hand, old women, gray haired and with faltering step, roughly dressed costers and well dressed merchants and men from distant places who had come many miles to pay this last tribute of respect and affection to their dead king.

Westminster hall is a quadrangle, long, high-vaulted and bare. At one end is long flight of steps and at this end was the entrance. As one stood within the reserved space at one side of the hall, he saw at the entrance a great mass of faces, dimly lighted by the narrow windows high up in the walls. This restless sea, moving constantly, flowed slowly toward the middle of the hall. There it divided into two streams which flowed past the two sides of the platform on which rested the king's bier.

Archaic in its aspect was this tableau of the lying in state. At each of the four corners of the platform stood one of those picturesquely garbed guardians of the Tower of London whose style of dress is centuries old. At the feet of the bier stood a native officer of the army of India, with sword reversed halberds, standing like statues, with eyes fixed ahead. A prie dieu of purple velvet stood facing the head of the bier. Before it was a great cross of orchids. Green wreaths were hung at the sides of the bier of gold, richly jewelled.

Double Stream of Men and Women.

Past this tableau flowed the double stream of men and women and children, ceaselessly. There was no sound but the shuffling of feet and the undertoned "Pass on, please" of the policemen. They stood at intervals of a few feet these white gloved policemen, and their hands moved almost automatically in the direction of the exit as they murmured monotonously "Pass on." Sometimes a mother stopped to lift her child so that it might get a better view of the coffin, and the white gloved hand touched her arm gently to keep her moving.

Almost all of these many thousands who passed through Westminster hall were garbed in black. Most of them wore black gloves. All—I saw no exception in the twenty minutes I was there—looked on the king's coffin with reverence and respect.

They were not mere sightseers. They had come to do honor to their sovereign rather than to look on a spectacle, and their attitude was as touching as was the gentle homage paid to King Edward by the great throng of Tuesday which saw his remains begin the journey from Buckingham palace to their last resting place at Windsor.

Crowds on Day of Funeral.

Today (Friday) was a holiday and I have just returned from the line of the funeral procession, sore from the buffetings of a disorderly crowd which taxed the strength of 10,000 policemen and as many soldiers to keep it within bounds. I think I have never seen a great public ceremony worse handled. There were three miles of streets through which the procession was to pass. Stands had been erected at every available place and exorbitant prices were demanded for seats. Rooms from which the procession could be viewed were rented for as much as $500 to $800. Good seats in the stands were sold at $25 and seats in windows for even higher prices.

The London papers have contained for a week columns of announcements of places to be sold. Placards advertising them have met the eye at every turn. The spirit of commercialism has governed the whole affair in a way which brings a smile to the lips of one who remembers how contemptuously some Englishmen refer to our country as "the land of the dollar."

It was hardly to be expected, then, that the crowd which witnessed the procession would regard it as other than a spectacle. When you pay $25 for a seat, it is not supposedly for the purpose of honoring the illustrious dead, but more likely for the purpose of seeing at close range the illustrious living. I am afraid the living monarchs of Europe who were scheduled to ride behind the coffin of King Edward were a greater attraction today than the dead king whose coffin had been viewed with such reverence by tens of thousands during the three days before.

Certain Streets Closed.

All the arrangements for the procession had been made several days ago and the police had placarded London with big, black-bordered posters telling the hours when streets would be closed and warning ticket holders to reach their places before a certain time.

Then, for some unaccountable reason, the arrangements were altered and the time for starting the procession was set ahead twenty minutes. Other black-bordered posters were rushed out yesterday afternoon telling of the change. But many of those who had read the first posters did not read the second and the result was the wildest confusion.

Crowds began to gather along the line of march as early as 3 o'clock in the morning. At 7:30 orders were given to clear the line and admit no more ticket holders. But men and women with passes continued to arrive. They found thickly packed crowds struggling with the line of police. One had to battle his way through these crowds as best he could. The only effective way was to watch for the passing of a column of cavalry to its place along the route and take chances with the horses' hoofs. The unticketed, seeing those with passes making their way through the line in this fashion, followed them.

Crush Was Terrific.

The crush was terrific. Screaming women were pulled out of the thick of the crowd by strong-armed policemen and held weeping and wringing their hands until they got their nerves under control. Fainting women were lifted out of the thick struggling mass and carried to open spaces where the hospital corps worked to bring them to consciousness. Men fainted, too—even red-coated soldiers were carried away on the crossed hands of their comrades. The surging crowd pressed the line of cavalrymen and the restive horses kicked at them while women screamed and men swore and tried to press back into the surging mass behind—ever pressing forward. One woman, white faced, was carried away on a stretcher, her arms wounded by a horse's kick.

Constantly the crowd broke through the line of police. In Piccadilly it was close—packed from the head of St. James street to Piccadilly Circus and its pressure at times was irresistible. But as fast as it broke through, women with dishevelled hair and men with torn coats were hurried along down the open space to some point below, where the police, holding an exit open, pushed them beyond a possible point of view. So that those who held front places for hours found themselves expelled—glad in most cases to be rescued at any sacrifice from the suffocating crush.

Women's Hats Torn Off.

Many women came into the crowd with veils over their heads. They were wise. The police had issued a request that women leave big hats at home. Those who did not had their hats plucked from their heads and tossed about by the crowd until they were trampled under foot.

Through all this confusion—almost riotous at times—the police kept cool and the individual policeman upheld the splendid reputation of the London force. It was not the policemen but those in charge of the arrangements who were responsible for the crush.

It was natural that a crowd which had been buffeted and kicked by cavalry horses and driven from points of vantage held through hours of weary waiting should be in any but a reverent or respectful spirit when, at about 10 o'clock the procession began to move. It was about twenty minutes passing. First came a column of naval men—then colonial troops with arms reversed. Then came the ataches of ambassies in the brilliant uniforms of every civilized country. Then the gun carriage with the coffin draped with flags, surmounted by the crown, orb and sceptre. Then the king's charger and directly behind it the new king with his great-uncle, the kaiser, on his right and the duke of Connaught on his left. The king rode well, but the kaiser was the more splendid figure on horseback.

Then came the king of Spain, the king of Greece, the king of Belgium, the czar, king of Bulgaria, the king of Norway and the king of Denmark, all in uniform and riding good horses—and riding very well.

Roosevelt in Carriage.

Our own horseman was not in this cavalcade. Theodore Roosevelt was obscured in the corner of a closed state carriage behind the carriages of the royal family. He sat well back where he could hardly be recognized. France's special ambassador had the same inconspicuous position.

Mr. Roosevelt's carriage was the eighth and he rode with the special envoys of France and Persia. It was an odd and rather interesting fact that the Chinese special embassy preceded that of the United States. But China's special ambassador was a prince, and the rules of precedence were followed strictly.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, has not lacked official notice since he has been here. He sat down to dinner the other night with King George and all the visiting sovereigns.

Following the gilded state carriages of the queen mother, the queen, the royal family and the special ambassadors came squads of police and firemen—men who had received the king's medal. Then the double line of scarlet-coated soldiers held the streets along the line for an hour until the police had dispersed the crowd. It was a "record crowd," even for London, one constable told me. I am sure for one I don't want to see the record broken.

(This is the twelfth of a series of letters Mr. Bain is writing for The Herald while accompanying Col. Roosevelt on his European tour. The next will appear at an early date.)

A happy and most successful baseball day rounded out yesterday, the Sox shoving the lowly Indians into last place and getting a good start on the upward climb to pennant fame, by twice trouncing the hired men who play under the general and sometimes erratic direction of Mique Malloy.

Both of the games yesterday were those merry and dangerous old free-hitting games, in which some husky young batter is liable to break up the contest with a long drive. Both games were the variety anxious; the kind that keep the interest of the fan keyed up until the last man is retired in the ninth.

We squeezed out rather narrowly in the a. m. gambel, but in the afternoon, in a regular revival of the dear old art of batting, we won by the nice margin of four runs, and pulled up under the wire in a canter.

GEORGE DAUSS,
Who Cinched His Game in the Afternoon With a Long Home Run.

It looks as if Al Cummings will be better than ever the present season, which thing is a very joyous one for the fan and even staid business gent. The fact that smiling Al could pitch his first game of the season as he pitched the morning game, was a fact spliced with strands of pure white joy.

Seven hits were gathered off the delivery of George Washington Dauss. George did not have the usual stuff on the ball. However, he had enough to win, and winning games generally satisfy the fans.

Indians Start Strong.

Red Wing gathered three runs in the very first inning of the afternoon game, causing two too tender fans to weep in the grandstand.

Malloy hit and promptly stole second. Keily struck out. Black hit and speedy Mique came all the way on the bingle. Demmet was retired at first and things looked brighter. Here Old Man Gregory snuffed out the burning candle of hope by hitting the ball over the left field paling. It was sad, and strong men swore. Swanson ended the inning by striking out.

Michael Dennis Sweeney struck out in our half with the bases packed with frothing ball players. Anderson was hit and Neelon sacrificed him to second. Zachary Taylor drew a free walk, but O'Brien splashed mud on the bright white laprobe by striking out. Altermott singled and the bases were full.

Michael Dennis sure had the chance to wring fame from mother fate's tenacious grasp—but he struck out—groans and harsh whispers.

The Indians went out in order in the next round and we gathered three, thereby causing much glee and refreshing of spirits.

Woods hit safely and Gillis was hit. Dauss got on when Gritz fuzzled his ground hit. Anderson hit safely, sending Woods across the counter. "Error-less Mike" Malloy allowed Anderson's offering to go between his shapely limbs and Dauss and Gillis were across the plate and Anderson on third before the ball was retrieved from the fence. Anderson was later caught off third.

Red Wing could do nothing in the third, while we added three more. Altermott struck out and Sweeney hit safely. Leskey had replaced Woods behind the bat when the latter stopped a foul tip with his index finger, and drew a base on balls. Here George Washington Dauss did the very proper thing in a very workmanlike manner, slamming the pellet far over the left field fence.

Gillis had previously flown out and Anderson ending the inning by grounding out.

The Indians gathered their fourth in the fifth. Malloy forced Boyle out, but stole second and scored on Kelly's hit. Black and Demmet were retired, leaving Kelly a dismal base cadaver.

We bagged nothing in the fifth, a brilliant double play retiring the side. After Sweeney was down Leskey hit safely. Gillis lined sharply to Black, the little fellow spearing the ball far on his left side with his glove hand and getting Leskey off first.

The Indians went down nicely in the sixth. We gathered one more. Dauss struck out by Anderson got his second hit. He was advanced on Neelon's out at first and scored on Taylor's hit. O'Brien ended the inning by flying out.

The Indians added two to their under score in the seventh. Thomas went out from Altermott to Gillis and Boyle hit safely. Malloy pulled one among the automobiles and Shorty Anderson set hot foot after it. He jumped over a boy who was in his path and caught the flying spheroid. It was a sensational catch and brought a great hand from the large crowd which filled stands and bleachers.

Kelly hit for three bases, scoring Boyle, and came home when his hit was handled very slovenly by the garden. Black ended the rally by whiffing gracefully.

We went out in order in the seventh and the enemy did nothing in the eighth. In our charming part of the eighth three runs were garnered. Gillis hit safely, Dauss flew out and Anderson got his third hit of the afternoon. Neelon struck out, but Tom Taylor came nobly to the barrier of expectancy by hitting one to right for two, sending Gillis and Anderson over. O'Brien imitated the ardor and enthusiasm of Thomas by hitting a two-beser into the opposite field, scoring thin Mister Taylor. Altermott struck out, leaving the orator at second.

The Indians could do nothing in their forlorn hope half, and the game went the way of the last four.

SURGEONS SPLIT EVEN

Rochester and Superior Divide Memorial Day Series, Each Getting One.

Superior split even in the double-header with Rochester yesterday. The Grumblers grabbed the morning game, the score being 3 to 2 in favor of the Red Legs. In the afternoon contest Rochester secured sweet revenge, getting five runs in the fifth inning, driving Currie from the mound and compelling Baertschi to go an awful pitching pace to stop the carnage.

Baertschi did very well until the ninth frame, when two more runs were secured by the hungry physicians.

OUTCASTS AND PIRATES DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER.

La Crosse, Wis., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—La Crosse defeated Winona by the score of 6 to 5 in the morning game yesterday, the Pirates taking the second game by the large score of 11 to 2.

Winona led off in the morning game, but Koepping's error gave the locals a life in the third, after two were gone, and three runs resulted. Two more runs came in the fourth on a hit and two bases on balls. Curtiss got three doubles for Winona.

Both Young and Whittaker were wild in the afternoon and both were hit hard by the Pirates. Wagner held the Outcasts safe at all stages. Scores:

WAUSAU WINS FROM SCHOONHOVEN'S GERMANS.

Wausau, Wis., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Lumberjacks defeated the Eau Claire Angels here yesterday by the score of 4 to 3.

Dunbar was found for more hits than Worman, but the Eau Claire hurler issued eight passes and was unsteady at critical times. The game was fast throughout, fast fielding cutting off prospective scores. Cahill's long throw to the plate, cutting off a run, was one of the features of the game.

Cold weather necessitated the calling off of the morning game. Score:

BROOKLYN WINS TWO GAMES FROM DOVES.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 31.—Brooklyn won two games with Boston yesterday, 2 to 0 and 1 to 0, sensational fielding behind Rucker, in which Hummel was the star, characterizing the second game. Hummel figured in two fast double plays at critical times, a one-handed catch of a low liner in the sixth spoiling a rally by the visitors. His batting, too, was timely, his pair of hits sending across two of the three runs. Curtis pitched strongly after the third, but was taken out in the eighth to let Graham bat for him. Intermittent showers fell during the entire game, but it was not interrupted at any stage. Bell gave Boston only one hit in the morning game. Scores:

GIANTS ARE VICTORS IN TWO CLOSE GAMES.

Philadelphia, May 31.—The Giants won two games from Philadelphia yesterday. New York took the morning game 2 to 1 in a great pitchers' battle which went ten innings between Foxen and Drucke. The latter, who struck out eleven of his opponents, won his own game by driving in both of New York's runs with a single. Both teams played a great fielding game.

New York won again in the afternoon game, it requiring sixteen innings to decide the issue of 4 to 3. The contest was a battle between Ewing and Ames, with the former doing the better work. Scores:

SAINTS DROP TWO AND LOSE LEAD.

St. Paul, Minn., May 31.—In a hard-fought pitchers' battle lasting eighteen innings Minneapolis won the third game of the series by defeating St. Paul, 3 to 2, yesterday morning. Starting with a run each in the first inning Minneapolis got another in the third, when it looked like defeat for St. Paul, until McCormick made the only home run of the game in the eighth, and tied the score.

Gehring was hit quite freely until the last half of the game, when he tightened up.

BREWERS DROP SLOW GAME TO THE BLUES.

Kansas City, Mo., May 31.—In a slow and featureless game here yesterday Kansas City defeated Milwaukee by a score of 3 to 2. A double-header had been scheduled but owing to rain, the first game was called at the end of the second inning. A muddy field made play slow throughout and, while Espelt pitched an ordinarily good game, sick pitched an ordinarily good game, the visitors showed poor work in their pitching department. The most spectacular play of the afternoon was a one-handed catch by Moran who picked a fly off the right field fence. Score:

WINONA HERE FOR SERIES

Scrappy Joe Killian, a fighter on the ball field, but a royal good fellow off the strenuous green, will start his Pirates in the series that begins this afternoon. Winona and La Crosse are not going as well as the Sox at the present time, and Kuehnow and O'Brien hopes that Duluth will pass the Outcasts on the present stay at home.

While there are possibly several changes that may be made in the team before Mr. Kuehnow is satisfied with the boys, the Sox are traveling much faster and are hitting the ball better than during those dull days of the first trip.

Sweeney has not been playing a likely game at third base. He started well this season, but of late has slumped. An infielder by the name of Edward Day will be tried out in practice this morning and may be given a chance in the game this afternoon. The player comes from the Wisconsin-Illinois league.

If Marion's arm comes around before the team leaves for the next trip Darby will have without doubt the best hurling staff in the league. Cummings is right at the present time, and if Thorsen will seize his opportunity Duluth will have five flingers who will shade any other staff in the league.

The team has picked up in the hitting. The throwing of the catchers has been a trifle off color, but in general all-round play the work of the team has improved greatly. The management has fulfilled its promise to strengthen every place possible, and is still on the lookout for good players.

Yesterday's crowd was one of the best that ever filled the stands at Athletic park. The enthusiasm in baseball is increasing, it would seem, that the indications are that a good crowd will watch Winona and Duluth battle for honors.

Thorsen will probably work this afternoon.

SANDSTONE IS VICTOR.

Wins From Duluth in First Game of Association Football.

Sandstone, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first match game of association football ever witnessed here was played on the baseball grounds yesterday afternoon. The local team easily defeated the Duluth team by a score of 3 to 0. The game was interesting from start to finish, and created considerable interest among lovers of outdoor sports. Arrangements are under way to play a game with a Minneapolis soccer team. This is the second defeat of the Duluthians by the Quarry City men.

Ketchel's Car Burns.

New York, May 31.—Stanley Ketchel, the pugilist, narrowly escaped injury today when his big touring car caught fire and was completely destroyed on the road to Ketchel's headquarters at Woodlawn.

SPORTS AT Y. M. C. A. SWIMMING POOL.

An attractive sport program has been arranged for the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool this evening. The public is cordially invited to be present at the events, which will begin at 8 o'clock.

There will be a 20-yard, 120-yard swim, swimming under water, plunge for distance, fancy diving, walking under water, floating, swimming under water for distance, water polo and speed swimming with various strokes.

E. R. Anderson, sometimes known as the "human fish," will make his appearance this evening. Others on the program will be McCabe, Johnson, Brown, Green Bailey, Wisted, Egder and others.

JOHNSON ACTS AS PEACEMAKER

Separates Little and Hart---Negro May Challenge Corbett.

San Francisco, Cal., May 31.—Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion, played the role of peacemaker in a "scrap" yesterday that threatened to break up his afternoon's baseball game. Johnson's manager, George Little, and Sig Hart, who is assisting the negro in his training, were the belligerents.

The cause of the clash is unknown, but it is ascribed to a petty camp squabble. Little was covering first base when Hart ran up to him and Little was heard to say: "You would punch me in the eye, would you?" Forthwith he hit Sig on the jaw and as Hart dropped he tossed a small boulder in his direction but missed.

Johnson, arriving on a run, leaped upon his manager and overpowered him. Hart returned to camp and Johnson directed at Little some condemnatory remarks anent fighting that is not sanctioned by the Marquis of Queensbury's rules.

A report emanated from Johnson's quarters last night to the effect that, peeved at James J. Corbetts remarks concerning his courage, the negro champion would challenge Corbett to meet him in a boxing match at any time prior to the date of the big fight, the proceeds of the exhibition to be devoted to charity.

Jeffries Is Pleased.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 31.—When Jim Jeffries returned to camp last evening from his fishing jaunt and learned of Corbett's visit and the remarkable form that latter had shown in his impromptu work he appeared pleased. Corbett left for Santa Cruz shortly before Jeffries came in, but he is expected to return here today and there will probably be a conference over training plans for Jeffries. Corbett will begin boxing with Jeffries in a day or two. The camp men say there is no longer any friction between Corbett and Joe Choynski.

THREE WORLD'S RECORDS BROKEN

New York, May 31.—Three world's records were broken in the annual outdoor games of the Irish-American Athletic club, at Celtic park yesterday. Melvin Sheppard ran 660 yards in 1 minute 21 2-5 seconds and 700 yards in 1 minute 26 4-5 seconds. He ran only one race—700 yards—but was timed at two points.

Sheppard's new figures for the 660-yard run surpassed Lou Myers' record, made in 1882, by 3-5 of a second, while his time for the 700 yards was a similar margin faster than the mark made by Emillo Lunghi last year. Sheppard defeated such fast men as Abel Kiviat, R. J. Egan and W. C. Robbins.

"Tex" Ramsdell, the new intercollegiate 100-yard champion, equaled the record for the 125-yard dash by covering the distance in 12 2-5 seconds, breaking the tape two feet in front of "Bobbie" Cloughan.

The other record breaker was "Dan" Ahearn, whose efforts of 49 feet 7 3-8 inches in the running hop-skip-and-jump added 1 foot 1 3-8 inches to the old mark.

Matt McGrath of the Irish-American Athletic club in throwing the 56-pound weight for height reached 16 feet 1 inch, which exceeds the world's record by 1-8 of an inch. The mark will stand only as an exhibition record, as it was not made in competition.

BROOKLYN HANDICAP IS ON AT GRAVESEND.

New York, May 31.—For the twenty-fourth time the Brooklyn handicap, one of the turf classics of the East, will be run at Gravesend today. The field has narrowed down to eight starters of which Sam Hildreth's Fitzsherbert and Firestone will be favorites. Fashion Plate comes next in public regard. There was considerable rain yesterday, however, and if there is further precipitation all calculations will be upset in which event it is not improbable that the Hildredth entries will be withdrawn.

LJUNGSTROM WINS RACE AT WHEELING.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 31.—Gustav Ljungstrom, the Swedish runner won a 15-mile running race at the fair grounds track yesterday in 1:23:41, which is 2 minutes 21 seconds behind his own record. Johansen (Sweden), was second by one-eighth of a mile and St. Yves (France) third.

GEORGETOWN WILL NOT ROW AT POUGHKEEPSIE.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—Georgetown's varsity eight will not row in the Poughkeepsie regatta June 25. The authorities have withdrawn the entry since three members of the crew are unable to participate because of parental objections and physicians' orders. Their places could not be filled as the second crew had given up training.

JACK DILLON HAS BETTER OF MORROW.

Anderson, Ind., May 31.—Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis welterweight had the better of Howard Morrow of Benton Harbor, Mich., in an eight-round bout here last night. Three times Dillon staggered his opponent, but the Michigan boy came back rapidly. There was no decision.

KICK MADE BY SHIPPERS

Interests Along the Western Traffic Lines Talk to Wickersham.

Vigorous Protests Against Coming Increases in Freight Rates Made.

Washington, May 31.—Vigorous representations were made to Attorney General Wickersham yesterday by interests representing Western traffic line territory asking that the government enjoin the putting into effect of a proposed general increase in freight rates on June 1, notice of which was given by the railroads a month ago.

It was argued that the proposed increases were unjust, and the results of a combination or agreement among the railroads, in contravention of law.

A delegation of forty persons, which included shippers, consumers and producers, called on the attorney general to protest against the advance. The committee was accompanied by senators and members of congress from the territory effected. They were Senators Clapp of Minnesota, Cullom of Illinois and Warner of Missouri and Representatives Nye of Minnesota, Hitchcock and Norris of Nebraska, Hubbard of Iowa, Madden of Illinois and Stafford of Wisconsin.

Want an Injunction.

The protests were first presented by William D. Haynie, counsel for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, who presented a memorial asking that an injunction suit be brought to prevent the increased rates becoming operative until such time as the courts could determine whether an illegal combination existed.

The memorialists took the ground that the action of the railroads seeking to put into effect an increase of rates at this time was for the purpose of forestalling legislation by congress, giving the interstate commerce commission authority to set aside proposed rates in advance on complaint of a shipper—it being admitted in response to a suggestion of the attorney general that it would be easier to drop from a higher than to increase a lower rate.

After Mr. Haynie had presented the memorial most of the callers withdrew, but at the suggestion of Mr. Wickersham, half a dozen representatives of commercial clubs and of traffic bureaus familiar with the technical features of the rate situation remained for further consultation. They included H. G. Wilson and O. V. Wilson of Kansas City, F. J. McVann of Omaha, H. G. Krake, of St. Joseph, F. S. Pole of Minneapolis and W. J. Evans of Chicago. With them Mr. Wickersham went over the questions involved at great detail.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and a stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the effected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

SCREWS CLAMPED ON FASHIONABLES

At New York Customs House to Collect Rightful Duties.

New York, May 31.—When Col. H. C. Stuart of Virginia arrived home with his handsome young wife on the Mauretania, the customs officers made a partial examination of their trunks, and then suggested that they be sent to the public stores, and that the pair come down to the customs house in the afternoon.

There was some argument on the pier when the couple were asked to amend their declaration, and when they refused. From all appearances their trunks were filled, not only with finery, but jewels, and none of this had been declared.

The colonel and wife appeared there before Acting Surveyor Smith. They had a long talk, and the law was explained to them. It was pointed out that Col. Stuart still retained his residence in this country.

As a result of the conferences Mrs. Stuart went up to the appraiser's stores and assisted the officials in valuing the contents of her twenty-five pieces of baggage.

Among the fashionables who arrived on the Mauretania was Mrs. Henry Clay Frick, the wife of the Pittsburg millionaire, who had a large number of trunks and other baggage, and who had a clash with the customs authorities. It took considerable persuasion on the part of the deputy surveyor to make her admit that she had $2,000 worth of dutiable goods.

PETRIFIED BODIES.

Found in Cemetery—Caused By Chemical Elements in Earth.

Baltimore, Md., May 31.—While exhuming bodies in St. Charles cemetery at Pikesville, grave diggers encountered a remarkable case of petrification, one body being found that had become as hard as rock and as heavy, and was preserved to the veriest detail of feature.

When the men sought to lift the coffin in which was the body of Mrs. Eliza Doyle, they found they were unable to raise it from the grave.

Mrs. Doyle died fifteen years ago. The petrifaction is attributed to the chemical action of elements in the ground at the point at which the bodies were interred.

ALL MEN IN THE FRENCH SUBMARINE ARE LOST.

Calais, France, May 31.—Inspection by divers of the sunken French submarine Pluviose, which was in a collision with the cross-channel steamer Pas de Calais last Thursday, shows conclusively that the hull of the submarine was crushed and that all of the members of her crew, which totalled twenty-seven men, were drowned.

The heavy undertown and the great depth at which the wreck lies are retarding the operations of the divers, who are only able to work two hours each tide. It has been found impossible to raise the sunken craft to the surface, so the submarine will be attached by chains to pontoons, after which, at each tide, she will be towed in near shore till shallow water is reached. The work of getting her inshore probably will take ten days.

FISHERMEN HAVE BUT LITTLE LUCK

Memorial Day Parties Had Good Time But Caught No Fish.

There were many fishing parties yesterday, but very few fish rewarded the efforts of the fishermen, according to those who have returned to the city. The trains Saturday, Sunday and yesterday were loaded down with tired fishermen who consoled one another with the thought that they had had a good time anyway.

A great number of them went to the Gooseberry, Beaver creek and Split Rock. Both the Gooseberry and Beaver creek are all to the bad when it comes to fish, claim the returning ones. Both streams are said to be entirely fished out. There has been but little luck on either stream this year, claim the sportsmen, and an effort will be made to have both restocked.

There were some fair catches made at Split Rock, but the fishing at this point is said to be nothing to rave about.

Lately all the parties have gone one way. The Blackhoof and other old time favorite spots seem to be forgotten and the greater number travel the other way. This probably accounts for the lack of fish.

BALL PARKS TO BE HIPPODROMES

Mammoth Amusement Enterprise Is Launched at Pittsburg Meeting.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 31.—National and American league baseball parks are to be turned into money-makers when the national game is not played on them. At a meeting here yesterday of men who are well known in amusement enterprises, an organization was formed with a capitlization of $100,000,000 which is the culmination of a project that was started more than a year ago.

Garry Herrmann of Cincinnati, Max. C. Anderson and Henry Siegler of New York and Harry Davis and Joan C. Harris of Pittsburg are the active heads of the enterprise and already the hippodrome has been put into operation.

Last night hippodromes were opened. The following week the St. Louis and the American league grounds will be turned into circus grounds after the games, and at the same time the Boston National league grounds will be turned into a hippodrome.

Davis and Harris, who tried the scheme here a year ago, have interested others in the idea with the result that all the baseball parks have been engaged and will be opened according to the statement given out as fast as men can be interested with the idea of the originators.

HUNDREDS VISIT THE ART EXHIBIT.

Hundreds of people visited the exhibit of the Duluth Art association in the courthouse yesterday. In the afternoon and evening the galleries were crowded with people eager to view the canvases.

Many people who had been unable to visit the exhibit before on account of work seemed to take great delight in listening to the talks of those who could explain the significance of the best canvases, the painters, their periods and their inspirations.

The exhibit will be open to the public all this week, which will be the last. It is free.

GAYNOR PRAISES THE SWEDISH-AMERICANS.

New York, May 31.—Mayor Gaynor and Herman de Lagercrantz, the Swedish minister, were the guests of honor at the banquet tendered last night by the Swedish singing societies of New York to the American Union of Swedish singers, who have been holding a song festival here. The mayor, in his address, said:

"You have come here and presented a chorus of over 600 voices, the like of which he have never heard before. It has given us great pleasure, and even the German newspapers have advised their readers to hear you and learn singing in chorus."

He praised the political independence of Swedish-Americans and concluded by saying:

"You come of a great race and have mingled with many races, and the result is evident."

PULLS HATCHET OUT OF HER HEAD AND BEATS MAN.

Chicago, May 31.—Armed with a hatchet, Max Kiarfine, a real estate dealer, went to one of his houses here yesterday to eject Flora Smith, a colored tenant. Flora refused to move. Kiarfine, it is charged, struck her on the head with the hatchet. The hatchet stuck quivering in Flora's head.

Flora blinked a moment, then kicked Kiarfine down a flight of stairs to the street. She followed, and before he could rise, seated herself on his body and drew the hatchet from her head as thought it was a hair pin. She was beating Kiarfine with the weapon when the police rescued him.

The fight caused so much excitement that a riot call was sent in. Kiarfine was arrested charged with attempt to commit murder and the woman was taken to a hospital, where her condition is reported to be serious.

WANT THE VOTERS TO DENOUNCE SOLONS.

Effingham, Ill., May 31.—A call was issued last evening signed by the chairman of the Republican and Democratic central committees for a mass meeting of voters of Effingham county, to be held here next Saturday for the purpose of passing resolutions denouncing the present members of the legislature from this, the Forty-second district. D. W. Holstlaw is the senator and J. H. C. Brockemeyer, M. C. McMakin and Harvey McCullom the representatives. Those who are planning the meeting express the hope that Marion, Clinton and Clay counties, also in the Forty-second district, will take similar action.

Girl Drowns Attempting Rescue.

Ashland, Wis., May 31.—In a vain effort to save the life of William Jackson, Miss Clara Simpson was drowned yesterday. Plunging into the stream, she swam to where he had fallen in and seizing his body, she attempted to get him to the shore. When they neared the bank, the young heroine became exhausted and both she and Jackson went down to their death.

CHURCHES GROWING FASTER THAN CITIES.

Washington, May 31.—Church growth in the United States has been greater than the increase in population between the years 1900 and 1906, according to the special census report on the census of religious bodies for 1906, now in press.

Out of every 1,000 people in 160 cities of the country, that is, those which had a population of more than 25,000, there were 469 church members, while for the area outside these cities there were 363, and for the entire country there were 319. As compared with 1890, the report shows a gain of ninety communicants in each 1,000 of population for the principal cities and a gain of fifty-one outside of them.

Female members in 1906 outnumbered the male members by 32 per cent in continental United States, while in the principal cities the excess of female members was proportionately less, being 960,526 or 23.5 per cent.

CHAMP CLARK HOPES TO BE NEXT SPEAKER.

Washington, May 31.—"I would rather be speaker for two years than United States senator for eighteen years," said Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, the Democratic leader of the house. "Of course, there is nothing certain but death and taxes, but the Democrats will control the next house, as sure as you are living, and I think I have a good show for the speakership."

In this way Mr. Clark disposed of the report that he would be a candidate for the senate, to succeed Senator Warner, Republican.

The mythological comedy, "Pygmalion and Galatea" was presented last evening by the graduating class of the normal school before the students and teachers and their friends. The amusing and interesting little play was well given by nine of the class members under the direction of Miss Long of the English department. The class members were received with pleasure in their efforts. The play will be repeated this evening before an audience of invited guests.

The class day exercises and closing chapel exercises will be held Thursday morning of this week at 9:30 o'clock. The address will be given by President L. D. Harvey of Menomonie, Wis., and the presentation of deplomas by Hon. S. H. Somsen of Winona, Minn.

"WOMEN'S PARADISE."

Is the Present Day for Her In America.

The time of George Sand was not a golden age for women as is the present according to M. Benedict Papot who presented the fifth in a series of six lectures on French Civilization. Saturday evening at the high school. The present age is a paradise for women in contrast, said the speaker. George Sand effectively resented being considered an inferior to man and she went about it to secure her rights. Her writings set France on fire, said the lecturer. The literature of the era of Napoleon was beautiful and not at all like life. And Balzac's power was felt because he was true to people and he made real life the inspiration for his writings. He gives in his works a clear history of the development of the French people and his works will probably remain the greatest monument to French literature, was the opinion of M. Papot.

"Paris from 1850 to 1870 seems to be the only side of French life you Americans know," continued the speaker, "and yet it was a very unimportant part. In the first place it was a very small part; in the second place it was a very fictitious part, and in the third place it was disavowed by the rest of France. The city was being rebuilt then and it became the center of gayety for Europe and for vice in its most alluring and prettiest form. Vice is hard enough to resist anyway, but when it is put in such entrancing and charming ways it is doubly so."

The last lecture of the series will be given Saturday evening of next week.

TO HEAR CELESTA.

Unusual Instrument at Orchestra Concerts.

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra carries a rarely heard instrument, the celesta, which is used to obtain certain effects in some of the compositions of the orchestra's repertoire. The instrument was procured in Europe by Mr. Oberhoffer last summer, and occasioned much favorable comment during the season just passed, when it was used on a number of occasions. The instrument is shaped something like a small organ and has a keyboard similar to one, but its tone is different from anything else and has a celestial beauty which has given it its name. Tschaikowsky and some other modern composers have used it with striking effect in some of their compositions. The celesta will be used at the children's matinee on Friday next.

The table decorations were in white and gold, daisies and yellow tulle ribbons being the decorations. Covers were laid for twelve. After the luncheon the little guests were entertained at the Hobbs home at 1421 East Superior street, and a prize was given for the one who dressed a little bisque the first. The dolls were gowned in yellow, to further carry out the pretty color scheme.

DONT'S FOR TRAVELERS

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

Don't travel unless you can afford it.

Don't ask questions except of officials on the road, or the ship, or of policemen on the street.

Don't carry a chip on your shoulder. Most of the people you meet are well-disposed and kind.

Don't permit your children, if you have any with you, to annoy people by ill-bred behavior.

Don't exchange visiting cards with strangers, unless this is justified by exceptional circumstances.

Don't refuse courtesies when offered by strangers if exceptional circumstances occasion them.

Don't return civility with its opposite.

Don't forget that you owe a duty to every human being, the duty of looking pleasant and being gracious.

Don't fail to assist any infirm, crippled or aged traveler who may need a helping hand.

Don't, by a single thought or action, add to the burden of sorrow pressing so heavily upon many fellow pilgrims.

Don't forget that most of the evil passions are traceable to two roots—anger and worry. These are the thieves that steal precious time and energy from life.

Anger is a highway robber, and worry is a sneak thief.

HOW TO GUIDE A HUSBAND

By AMANDA MOORE.

A great many people say that which is not readily given is not worth asking for; but in the case of a husband's conscience I venture to assert that such a theory is unsafe and unsound.

Man is, as a rule, "a very good fellow," but the best of good fellows are apt to unconsciously take advantage of whatever latitude and license may be granted to them; therefore the husband who feels that his wife makes no demand upon his confidence is very likely to get into the bad habit of keeping things to himself that would be just as well and much better told to his wife.

It isn't that he is secretive or deceitful, but it is just the inherent instinct of a great many masculine natures, which causes them to find a certain hollow pleasure in "keeping their own affairs to themselves."

And a married man (that is, if he is a happy married man) shouldn't have any affairs which he wants to keep to himself, and he wouldn't have any if only the wife gently exercised her right to be his chum and confidant on all subjects.

But, oh, how tactfully a wife must go to work if she finds her husband inclined to withhold his confidence.

There must be no nagging, no worrying, no complaining—only just a gentle attitude of taking it for granted that of course he will tell her all there is to be told.

Sometimes, however, this placid attitude is not strong enough to work desired results, and then a wife must put all her pride in her pocket and assert her right to be the sharer of her husband's confidence as well as his home.

Too much pride is a dangerous thing in married life, and particularly dangerous when the wife is proud to the extent of overdone self-effacement.

Man is so largely a creature of habits and so ready to take ells when given inches that woman is bound to gently and insidiously guide him all the way.

THE "SPOILS SYSTEM"

By CARA REESE.

Well, well, part of the "spoils system" right in your own kitchen and recklessly carried on throughout your domestic leasehold?

The "spoils system" right under your own nose and in hearing, seeing and tasting distance? The "spoils system," what do you think of that after all the pledging and promising to do your part as club sister to bring about reform? To be sure it is another sort of "spoils system," but it is equally aggravating with the one the essays treat of. The "spoils" are a different brand from the "spoils" which belong to the victorious, and different again from the pernicious "spoils" known mainly to politicians. The domestic "spoils" are the burned cookery, the scorched linen, the chipped and broken dishes. These household "spoils" are the lost, strayed and stolen commodities, the wasted edibles, the overflowing garbage receptacles. These "spoils" are the wreckage and ruin following in the wake of carelessness, inefficiency and stupidity. "Spoils" and "spoils," scratched furniture, torn hangings, ill-treated books, defaced pictures, smashed bric-a-brac. "Spoils" and "spoils," dangling doorknobs, broken latches, lost keys, legs, arms and backs off or loosened. "Spoils" and "spoils," the grease spots, the ink blotches, the chewed, ripped and falling to pieces.

There is no end to the household "spoils" should a category be called for. It is said by students of political doctrine that the doctrine of the real "Spoils System" is the perverting of the national conscience; that public dishonesty is accepted as a matter of course and that the people have ceased to be shocked at it; moreover, that the infection has been carried into the world of business. Sometimes it seems as though another conscience were likewise perverted, namely the conscience of those who are charged with the care of the household. The "spoils system" is likely to govern if left to itself unhindered. It were better to renonstrate.

And there are domestic "spoils systems" in the rearing of children, in the indulgence of selfish personal desires, in sedentary living or the wastefulness of time and money. In a certain sense any "spoils" which mean not living up to the standard of carefulness is a sort of dishonesty and some day a reckoning may be unexpectedly called. The very term "spoils" suggests the plural of "spoil," which means the practice of plundering, robbery and waste.

Any "spoils system," whichever way the phrase is applicable, any "spoils system" that destroys the sense of obligation to the home or the wider sphere; any "spoils system" that cares not in the exercise of extravagance or indulgence in luxury how much it defrauds someone else of a hire or leisure or full recompense; any "spoils system" which perverts the conscience and dulls the sense of justice is a poor system to work with or under. In the end the establishment will be nothing more than a junk shop with a heap of decaying or broken odds and ends. Corruption is useless as an asset. Mismanagement is likewise useless as an asset. There is nothing exemplary or edifying or satisfactory in a "spoils system" in the kitchen or in public affairs, but rather debasing.

THE BOUDOIR

By MILDRED WYCKOFF

The Habit of Blushing.

Many young women suffer from the habit, or it may possibly be an infirmity, of blushing. Certain it is that it is nervous in origin. Those who blush and flush easily become self-conscious, and this increases the trouble.

There are tiny nerves which go to the coats of all the blood vessels, and keep the rubber-like tubes which form the arteries and veins in which the blood is disturbed to the different parts of the body just the right size, so that the blood flows evenly on its course to the finest blood vessels of all, the capillaries, which are so called because they are as fine as hairs.

These nerves, which keep up the tensions, may, through some thought, some shock or other cause, fall in their duty, and then one becomes pale, or the opposite happens, and flushing or blushing occurs. When the skin is thin and delicate the capillaries are near the surface and the changes in the circulation of the blood show more readily.

There are several ways to remedy such conditions, depending on the causes which occasion the redness.

If it is due to sensitive nervous organization, measures should be taken to strengthen the nervous system by means of baths, salt rubs and the like.

Plenty of exercise in the open air is desirable. Tea, coffee and all stimulants should be avoided.

Above all, use every endeavor to gain self-control. Why should the fact of blushing or having a red face destroy the pleasure of a whole evening? Such foolishness should be resolutely put aside, and when this is done it will be found that the circulation in the face will behave itself.

The flushing of the face in a hot room is due to the fact that the nerves of the blood vessels are affected by the temperature. To toughen them, the face should be bathed first in very hot water and then very cold, so that the changes of temperature will be felt less quickly.

HELPING LAME DOGS

By VIRGINIA HARLAN.

"Do the thing that's nearest,
Though 'tis dull at whiles,
Helping, when you meet them,
Lame dogs over tiles."

This verse has been quoted innumerable times, and I feel I ought to apologize for quoting it again; but my excuse is that we all need to remind ourselves of it so often that it will bear repeating.

One can't hammer in too much, in fact, that it is in just small, everyday, trifling ways that we can all help to increase the happiness of the world. We have not the excuse that it is beyond our power; but often because the thing is near, is dull and insignificant we like to pretend we don't see it.

It was a character in a book who said laughingly one day that helping lame dogs over stiles was all she was good for. She was not clever or important enough to start large philanthropic schemes, she was not rich enough to give generous sums in charity, but she was always ready to stretch out a hand where aid was wanted, and everyone loved her, although she had no great deeds to point to.

Every day we get a chance of being kind to some one. We have only to take the things that's nearest and not mind about its being dull.

Some people are so much engrossed with outside charities that they have only their overtired, irritable selves to give at home. They are so busy looking after institutions that they have no thought to spare for their own people.

Many of us who would be first and foremost in amusing the children at school treat wont' bestir ourselves an inch when we are in general society.

We are apt, in short, to imagine that all "lame dogs" are some little distance off. If they happen to be directly in our path we step over them.

Shy people come quite under the heading of "lame dogs." How grateful a young, bashful man often is to some one who will take the trouble to talk to him and save him from the consciousness of standing alone and unwanted, feeling all legs and arms, in the midst of gay, chattering assemblages.

He is probably very dull, poor man, and it is a real act of self-denial to spend a little time with him instead of amusing oneself on more congenial ground.

The girl, too, who is shyly aware that she is gauche and awkward, how truly she will appreciate the kindness which causes some more experienced acquaintance to smooth the way for her, and set her at her ease. True, good breeding never allows people to be made uncomfortable.

A great German poet has said: "There is a courtesy of the heart allied to love; out of it there springs the most obliging courtesy of external behavior."

Be thoughtful for elderly folk, too. Sometimes they, like the very young, have cause to feel neglected. Perhaps they are a little deaf and not able to join readily in general conversation; they will appreciate the attention of being especially talked to.

Try every day to do a little kindness somewhere. Shy people, dull people, elderly people, uninteresting people, people for some reason or other are not greatly popular, and yet cannot be classed under any distinct heading, who are not in the least like official "lame dogs"—hold out a helping hand to them when you come their way even if they wear the broadest of silver collars.

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE.

Her Lover Is Neglectful.

"I have had a lover for nearly eighteen months past," Mary N. writes. "I love him, and he says the same, but just lately he has been going out with his men friends constantly, and I don't think this right, as I can't see him at all. I think I come before friends, don't you?"

Certainly—if he really cares for you. The man who lets the girl he loves stay in the background, just to be cared about when he hasn't anything better to do, isn't likely to make a very satisfactory husband. You should think well about this before you accept him It would be too late after you are married.

Do Without Him and Forget Him.

"The man who used to care for me," complains Lillie S., "pays much attention now to another girl, and doesn't seem to take much notice of me. What shall I do? Do you think it advisable for me to tell him? I think he is a turncoat, and shall I take any more notice of him? I can't think what I ought to do."

Probably your noticing or not noticing won't make any difference. He seems to have left you for altogether and it doesn't seem as if he has any intention of coming back. You must just make up your mind to do without him and forget him. There really isn't anything else to be done, you know my dear girl. It is certainly hard.

The Girl Had Wise Parents.

"I dearly love a girl," says B. W., but she is young. She told me she loved me, but her people told her she was not to think of such a thing till she was older. I said I would wait any time. Lately she has changed, and goes about with other men, and I don't know what to do, as I promised to be true to her."

The fact is, she was too young to know her own mind and now that she does she doesn't care for you. Give it up and try to find some other girl who will be more constant. Be her friend, as you promised. She doesn't want you to be anything else. She cannot really be blamed, as there was nothing at all between you.

He Was Cruel but Honest.

"I had a lover, and I didn't care much for him at first," Sadie H. writes. "Then I loved him with all my heart. All at once he told me he didn't love me. I let him go, but I care still, and I can't forget him. Could I write to him? It is now two years ago. I know he wouldn't write first to me, in any case, however he felt."

You have no right to suppose he regrets it or wants you back. He behaved ill to you, but he was honest. There is no more left in the whole thing but that you should try to forget him, and put him entirely out of your mind. To write would only be to put yourself in a most mortifying position. Don't you see that?

THE DOCTOR

Acidity of the Stomach.

Acidity of the stomach is a frequent smyptom of indigestion, and is due to the food which has been taken being speedily decomposed and converted thereby into an organic acid.

The first thing to be done is to decide what articles of food produce the acidity in your own particular case, and then avoiding them. Sugar, butter, or starchy foods will give rise to acidity, though all persons may not feel discomfort from the same things.

Then some corrective medicine must be taken, and one of the best is arbicarbonate of potash, which may be taken with a little tonic mixture, such as tincture of orange peel, three times a day in doses of 10 to 15 grains.

Soda mint tablets will often relieve a mild attack, but in more serious ones, the following mixture should be taken three times a day, half an hour before meals. Subnitrate of bismuth, 10 grains; tincture of rhubarb, 1 dram; syrup of orange, 1 dram; infusion of gentian to 1 oz.

Anyone prone to acidity should avoid as far as possible tea, cakes, pastry and alcohol; the bowels should be kept open, and outdoor exercise regularly taken.

About Gargling the Throat.

Gargles are generally of little use applied to the inside of the throat, and as it is impossible to keep any application in the throat for more than a second the only way is to take a sip of the lotion, hold back the head, and expel the breath steadily for as long as may be, then throw out the used lotion, and if necessary repeat the process several times.

A stringent gargles combined with some antiseptic are always useful in the early stages of inflammatory affections of the throat.

When there is much accumulation of mucus, a gargle of hot water in which is dissolved a small quantity of bicarbonate of soda is very soothing.

Another useful gargle is chlorate of potash dissolved in water, and where there is ulceration a little borax may be added to this.

When an astringent gargle is required the best is made from a small quantity of glycerine of tannin mixed with water.

Absolute Quiet for Sick People.

Avoid all talking outside or near a sick person's room, whether the door be open or shut, for when lying in bed the hearing is often doubly acute.

Do It Now.

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You can do so by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Nine cases out of ten are simply muscular rheumatism due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, and yield to the vigorous application of this liniment. Try it. You are certain to be delighted with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all druggist.

COURSE TO BE ADOPTED

Board of Education Will Consider Studies in Central High School.

Rewiring of High School Will Probably Be Ordered Friday Night.

The course of study to be followed in the Central high school in the future will very likely be definitely fixed by the board of education at its regular monthly meeting next Friday night.

A rough draft of the proposed revised course of study was submitted to the members of the board at the last meeting by Supt. Denfeld. Since that time, the board members have been considering the subject and the members of the committee on schools, to whom the subject was referred, have held a meeting for its consideration. The committee will report Friday night and the board will fix the course.

The commercial course has received the greatest attention. The members of the board are very anxious to arrange a commercial course that may be completed in two years and that will give those who take it a good business training so that on its completion they will be ready to go into an office and make themselves useful. The draft of the commercial course had that end in view and it will probably be adopted with a few minor changes.

The subject of rewiring the Central high school will also come up for consideration Friday night, and the work probably be ordered. Since the last meeting, when the city electrician's condemnation of the wiring in the high school was received, some changes have been made so that the building is comparatively safe now. The building will be entirely rewired, however, and the members of the board have been inspecting recently completed wiring contracts during the past month in order to secure a knowledge of methods.

A petition requesting the board to abolish dancing in the schools was presented at the last meeting of the board and the subject will probably come up again Friday evening.

THE BROOKLYN HANDICAP DAY

Fitz Herbert Is Strong Favorite in Classic Turf Event.

New York, May 31.—This is Brooklyn Handicap day and thousands of turf lovers made their way, at an early hour, toward the old Gravesend race course. Eight of the best horses now in training were carded to face the starter's flag for the handicap event of one mile and a quarter for three year olds and upwards. The purse has a guaranteed value of $6,000.

Mild summer showers early today, only served to lay the dust on the racing lane and there was every indication of a fast track. Fitz Herbert, owned by Sam Hildreth, with Jockey Dugan up, was the strong favorite in the betting. Fitz Herbert was coupled in the betting with Firestone. Fitz Herbert was the champion horse of last year and Hildreth purchased him for $35,000.

The other strong contenders for the event, which has been run annually since 1887, are Fashion Plate, Prince Imperial, Dinna Ken and Olambala. The entries, with their weights, probable jockeys, owners and odds, follow:

STOREY WON AMATEUR PRIZE

Broke 136 Out of a Possible 150 Clay Targets.

T. J. Storey of this city won the high standing jump among the amateurs at the successful tournament of the Northwestern Gun club held yesterday at the Rice Lake road grounds. The Duluth man hit 136 out of a possible 150 targets. His nearest competitor for the highest amateur standing was McQuade of St. Paul, who hit 133 out of a possible 150.

All of the events were very successfully conducted, the shoot of the professionals bringing out some very good work. Barber of Minneapilis secured the first prize in this class, hitting 138 in the ten frames out of a possible 150 birds.

George Trent won second place in the professional class, with H. J. Stair and W. M. Ferguson tied for third place.

The tournament was the most successful ever held at the Head of the Lakes, and has done much to increase the prestige of the club among the shooters of the Northwest.

A. W. Kuehnow announced at the baseball office today that Peterson, a new catcher, will arrive here in a few days and will be given a trial. The new man has been recommended to the officials of the Duluth team and if he comes up to the reports that have been made of his ability with the padded mitt, the Sox will have one of the best receivers in the league.

A youngster 20 years of age and weighing 195 pounds, who is said to be a pitching phenomenon, has been recommended to the manager of the club. The boy has been notified that he will be given a trial and may accept the terms of the club for the try-out.

Petijohn is also expected here at the close of the university term, it was announced today.

GOVERNMENT TO ASK INJUNCTION AGAINST FREIGHT RATE RAISE

protested vigorously against the proposed increase.

A few moments after his first resolution Mr. La Follette sought to present a joint resolution requiring the action of both houses. Mr. Elkins met the move with a request that the railroad bill be taken up. Mr. La Follette retaliated by suggesting the absence of a quorum, but a quorum being shown by a roll call, Mr. Elkins moved the consideration of the railroad bill.

Mr. La Follette wanted to debate that motion, but when informed that under the rules it could not be discussed, he took his seat, declaring that he would be heard later.

Had Joint Resolution.

The joint resolution which Mr. La Follette tried to introduce would direct that until Oct. 31, 1910, unless the interstate commerce commission otherwise ordered, it shall be unlawful for any interstate railroad to collect a greater compensation than the charge fixed in the lowest published schedule of May 1, 1910. This would prevent the increase of which the railroads recently gave notice.

The resolution also would direct that hereafter applications to advance rates shall be made to the interstate commerce commission. It would provide for investigations, and would authorize the commission to grant applications if it was found that the proposed rate was "reasonable and just and fair."

Senator La Follette said he had introduced his rate resolution because the increases to be made by the railroads, ranging, according to his estimates, from 5 to 60 per cent, would impose intolerable burdens upon the people.

Wages "Mere Pretense."

He declared the excuse given that the increases were made because of advanced wages amounted to "mere pretense," and that the higher rates would result in annual profits to the railroads of from $400,000,000 to $800,000,000. He believed the notice that the rates would go into effect tomorrow was for the purpose of "heating out" the railroad bill with its probable prohibition against rates being advanced without the approval of the interstate commerce commission.

President Taft regards this situation as renewed evidence of the importance of the provision in the administration railroad bill now pending in congress, which, if enacted, will give the interstate commerce commission the right to suspend for sixty days any proposed increase in railroad rates. In this period the committee, it is proposed, shall institute an investigation as to whether the increase is justified.

It is understood that the bill of injunction has been prepared for several days and that the text of it has been telegraphed to St. Louis to be filed in the United States court there.

FRESH AT NIGHT

If One Uses the Right Kind of Food

If by proper selection of food one can feel strong and fresh at the end of a day's work, it is worth while to knew the kind of food that will produce this result.

A school teacher out in Kans., says in this connection:

"I commenced the use of Grape-Nuts food five months ago. At that time my health was so poor that I thought I would have to give up my work altogether. I was rapidly losing in weight, had little appetite, was nervous and sleepless, and experienced almost constantly, a feeling of exhaustion.

"I tried various remedies without good results; then I determined to give particular attention to my food, and have learned something of the properties of Grape-Nuts for rebuilding the brain and nerves.

"I commenced using Grape-Nuts and have since made a constant and rapid improvement in health, in spite of the fact that all this time I have been engaged in the most strenuous and exacting work.

"I have gained twelve pounds in weight and have a good appetite, my nerves are steady and I sleep sound. I have such strength and reserve force that I feel almost as strong and fresh at the close of a day's work as at the beginning.

"Before using Grape-Nuts I was troubled much with weak eyes but as my vitality increased the eyes became stronger.

"I never heard of food as nutritious and economical as Grape-Nuts."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interst.

CLASS HAS BANQUET.

Eighth Grade Graduates of Lincoln School Hold Yearly Event.

The graduating class of the Lincoln school last evening held its eleventh annual banquet at the school building. The spread was furnished by the class of sixty members, while members of the Seventh grade had charge of the serving.

A program followed the dinner. Miss Viola Sinclair was toastmaster. Miss Florence Palin responded to a toast on "The Lincoln School." Her talk was one of the features of the evening. Ruth Larson toasted "The Boys" and Vincent Stockland, "The Girls." Those who gave the class prophecy were Edna Gorman, Angela Feyling, Carl Olson and George Sullivan. The class legacy was the work of Percy Stevens and Ernest Johnson.

The school house was tastily decorated in green and red, the class colors. Music was furnished by a five-piece orchestra. Covers were laid for about 100. Besides members of the class, the faculty and others were guests.

WOODMEN WILL HAVE CARNIVAL

Traveling Attraction Will Be Brought Here for Week of June 20.

The degree team No. 2,341, Modern Woodmen of America will in order to raise funds for their trip to Buffalo in 1911, bring to Duluth a carnival for the week of June 20.

The carnival will consist of thirty-three shows, some 220 people and a band numbering some thirty-five pieces. The shows will be located at Thirty-second avenue west.

Duluth has not had a carnival in some years. The last one held in this city was about five years ago and the shows were held near Twelfth avenue east and London road.

A carnival is a great deal on the circus order except that the shows are smaller and there are many more of them.

BOEGGILD IS COMING HERE

Noted Danish Authority on Dairies Will Speak in Duluth.

Prof. Bernard Boeggild, who will be one of the principal speakers at the Crookston meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association, and who is one of the world's foremost dairy experts, will be in Duluth for two days some time this month, probably June 12 and 13. Just what kind of meetings will be arranged for this time has not been definitely determined, but it is probable that as many Northeastern Minnesotans as are interested in dairy development will have opportunities to hear him speak.

Prof. Boeggild, who is connected with the Royal Danish Agricultural Society of Denmark at Copenhagen, has been an effective agent for the organization of cooperative creameries, having personally assisted in the establishment of 164 of them in the period from 1886 to 1890.

The Danish authority is making a tour of the country, delivering addresses, and wherever he has gone the dairymen have shown the liveliest interest in his message, which is declared to be not only timely but valuable beyond calculation.

Dr. A. F. Woods, dean of the agricultural college, and Prof. T. L. Haicher are expected to visit Duluth at the same time, and there should be a notable gathering of dairy experts in this city.

MISSOURI LAW FOUND INVALID

Foreign Corporations Cannot Be Confined to State Courts.

Washington, May 31.—The statute of Missouri, passed March 13, 1907, prohibiting foreign corporations from doing business within the state, if they seek litigation in the United States courts, was today declared unconstitutional by the United States supreme court.

Wreck on the Union Pacific.

Denver, Colo., May 31.—Three passengers were injured, none fatally, today when westbound passenger train No. 109 on the Union Pacific struck a broken rail near Agallah, Kan.. The engine, tender, baggage car and day coach left the track, the coach being thrown over on its side, and the baggage car being hurled fifteen feet clear of the rails.

QUACKS ARE INTERFERING

Tuberculosis Workers Find Many Fake Remedies Being Sold.

Patient Took Twenty-Eight Drops of Poison Three Times Daily.

Quacks coming into the city are seriously interfering with the work of the tuberculosis committee in Duluth, according to Mrs. Florence Lee, who is in charge of the work in this city.

It is alleged that they are claiming "positive cures for tuberculosis," and "I never lost a case of tuberculosis."

Those who are versed in the subject state that these fakers are destroying the biggest chance that the individual has of recovery. They declare that they give them "dope" which may not do them any harm but which will not do them any good. It is claimed that these people are so anxious to be rid of the disease that they will part with their last cent for an alleged cure, regardless of its merits.

Mrs. Lee, who has charge of the work in the city, states that it is not the poorer or most ignorant classes that are caught in these traps, but men and women above the average intelligence. She asserts that she cannot understand how they can cast aside the benefits, learned by years of study, for some proposition which has not even the recommendation of a proper trial by a competent physician.

Mrs. Lee tells of one woman who was taking twenty-eight drops of nitric acid three times a day in the effort to recover from the dreaded disease. Had she continued it is claimed that she could have lived but a short time.

Another feature which is meeting with much objection is the advertising of cures by mail. It is stated that these cures are not worth the paper they are written upon and devised only to get money from patients who are so anxious to be cured that they will part with their last worldly possession.

None of these cures give the patient a fair chance for life, it is alleged. In order to be rid of tuberculosis they must take the fresh air treatment and receive the attention of a regular physician or nurse. A sanitarium is also badly needed. Patients now have to be sent long distances by rail. In advanced cases a trip of four or five hours is harmful and sometimes fatal. An institution should be established in this vicinity and equipped with all the latest appliances.

YOU NEED NOT BE BALD

How to Stop Dandruff and Give New Life to Your Hair.

Of all nourishing tonics that give life and vitality to the follicles and roots of the hair none is more widely used than the beta quinol tonic—perhaps because it can be made at home at small cost.

There is no excuse for dandruff—no excuse for dull colored and dry hair—no excuse for falling hair—no excuse for at least half the bald heads you see. A good hair tonic used once or twice a week will prevent dandruff, invigorate the hair follicles and keep the hair beautiful, abundant and glossy.

Just get from your druggist one ounce of beta quinol and one-half pint of alcohol; mix with one-half pint of warm water. Or put the ounce of beta quinol in a pint of bay rum. Either method of mixing will please you, for it is the beta quinol that keeps the scalp healthy and puts new life into the hair.

Woman, Don't Let Husband Know All

By MADAME VERON.

(From Chicago Inter Ocean.)

"Don't disillusion your husband altogether. Don't let him know every secret of your toilette. Conceal from him the processes by which you retain your beauty. Nothing is so disenchanting to a man as to see his wife's face nightly smeared with cold cream. It is disgusting—and unnecessary.

"Any woman ought to keep her husband guessing all the time. He ought to have to say to his friends, 'Well, my wife is the most amazing problem I know about. She always looks about 16, and she neither paints nor powders.'

"You can do this if you will dissolve a small original package of mayatone in a half-pint of which hazel and massage the face, neck and arms with this solution three or four times a week. You will shortly find you have a lovely, soft complexion, fair and dainty, without spot or blemish—and then the best of it all is that mayatone prevents the growth of hair and is absolutely harmless to the most delicate skin. Make the solution yourself.

"Be beautiful, and don't let him know how you do it."

D. E. H., May 31, 1910.

TWO STEAMERS STUCK IN DRAW

Large Freighters Wedged in Chicago River---Tugs Release Them.

Chicago, May 31.—Two large grain steamers, the Chicago of Buffalo, and the Selwyn Eddy of Duluth, were tightly wedged in the single draw of a bridge here last night and all efforts to extricate them were unsuccessful until this morning. The boats were wedged through a misunderstanding of signals last night. Several tugs were at work trying to break the jam, and the boats were extricated after several hours' work today.

SPAR IN LAKE CAUSES QUERIES

Boat Is Thought to Have Foundered in Lake Erie.

Officials of the different branch hydrographic offices throughout the Great Lakes district are wondering if a ship has gone down without a report being made of the fact that a boat is missing.

This rather gruesome line of speculation is called forth by the reporting of the Buffalo hydrographic office of the discovery by Capt. F. D. Osborne of the steamer Buffalo of a spar which was protruding out of the water at least five feet.

The Buffalo passed the spar May 26, about thirty miles N. S. W. of Long Port, Lake Erie.

The report made to the Buffalo office has been sent to all of the branch offices of the Great Lakes district. Investigation here has failed to bring out any suggestion as to any steamer that might have been lost.

It is possible that some vessel has gone down, but the possibility in the case is given little credence here. Still the request of the officials at Buffalo is that every effort be made to ascertain if any vessel has been reported missing.

TUGS STILL WORKING ON STRANDED BOATS.

No definite news has been received here today on the condition of the stranded steamer City of Berlin and the barge Aurora. The last reports from the scene of the stranded vessel, a spot near Split Rock on the north shore above Two Harbors, stated the Berlin was in bad shape, unless the help sent from here succeeded in lightering the vessel immediately.

The tug America is there at the present time, as is a tug of the Barnett & Record company. It is not believed here that the vessel will sustain any very serious damage, however.

STEAMERS RUN AGROUND AT SOO

Attempts to Make Passage Without Tugs Meet With Mishaps.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer E. F. Holmes struck at Encampment last night but released herself and proceeded to the Soo. Divers are making an examination today. Two other boats attempted to make the passage without tugs and struck. They signaled for assistance. The government boat went down this morning to enforce the rules of making the passage only with tugs. A severe gale is blowing on Lake Superior. Steamers are unable to make a docking at Bay Mills in White Fish bay to take loads.

POWER OFF FOR SEVEN MINUTES

Mistake of Operator Tied Up Street Railway Service Temporarily.

A short interruption took place in the service of the Geart Northern Power company at 8:34 a. m. today. This deprived the street railway, lighting companies and other power users of current for a period of seven minutes.

The cause of the interruption was a mistake made by one of the operators at the power station during the exchange of load between two of the generating units.

The new unit had been placed in service with the other two, which had previously been carrying the load, and the unit which it was desired to shut down had been disconnected from the circuit electrically, but through a mistake in instructions one of the operators opened a switch on the new unit, thus throwing all of the load on the one remaining machine, which was not powerful enough to carry it, and accordingly reduced its speed to such a point as to make it necessary to open some of the circuits in the Duluth substation until the load had reached a point which one machine could carry.

The replacing of the machine on which the mistake had been made was a matter of a few minutes only and service was immediately resumed to all users of power.

The occurrence was one to which any organization is subject and does not indicate a fault with any of the machinery or apparatus, but was purely a personal matter with the operator at fault.

THE MAY DEAL IS CLOSED

Deliveries on Wheat and Flax Options Are Made Quietly.

Funeral Ceremonies Over Expiring Option Are Quiet and Uneventful.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 31.—The May deliveries in flax and wheat were buried quietly today. The ceremonies were simple and no undue excitement attended the exercises. While May flax advanced fractionally from the opening the close was under Saturday's close by ⅜c and the option expired peacably. July closed 4c up. Early in the day May flax gained 3½c from the opening on short covering. Trading was extremely light. At the close the delivery was offered down 5c in less than 10 seconds but there were no buyers.

The high price for the May option was $1.15⅞ made early in the year and the low price was 96½c, a sale at that quotation being recorded Aug. 30 of The May delivery was the most sensational in the history of the flax trade. The entire trade, with practically few exceptions, was bearish at the outstart, but when it was learned that the plant ran to straw the tide turned and the option shot upward. It continued to advance and this spring repeatedly broke its own high records. May flax sold this year at $2.49 and the Chicago Board of Trade refused to post the quotation claiming that it was fictitious. The low price, $1.30, was made in the last week in August.

Wheat today opened exceedingly weak, but firmed on short covering and closed higher than at the opening, although lower than Saturday's close. May opened at $1.02 bid, sold at $1.02½, $1.02⅜, $1.02¾, and closed at $1.02⅝ bid. July opened at $1.01¾ asked, sold at $1.01, $1.00⅝, $1.02⅜, $1.01¾, $1.02 and closed with offers at $1.02. September opened with offers at 92¼c and sold at 91⅞c, 92¾c, 93c, 92½c, 92⅝c, 93⅛c, 92½c and closed at 92½c bid.

May flax opened at $2.26½ and sold at $2.28, $2.30, $2.25 and closed at $2.25 asked. July was $2.06 bid at the opening and sold at $2.17, $2.20 and closed with offers at $2.10. September sold at $1.67¾, $1.67½, $1.68½, $1.67½, $1.68, $1.67¾, and closed at $1.67½ bid. October opened at $1.58¾, sold at $1.58, $1.58½, $1.58¼ and closed at 1.58 bid.

Cash wheat was ½@1½c over. Oats closed ⅛c up, rye 1c off. Barley and durum were unchanged.

Values in wheat opened weak on lower cables and the depressed foreign situation which caused a rush to sell. The European visible showed an increase of 944,000 bushels compared with an increase of 88,000 bushels last week. The visible supply amounts to 87,564,000 bushels about 23,000,000 bushels greater than this time last year. The foreign markets were weak and declining with the exception of Paris which was mixed. The continent was in the market for Australian cargoes and this caused a firmer tone temporarily which gave way to the prevailing depression later in the session.

Chicago reported sales of nearly 2,000,000 bushels of cash wheat to interior millers and for shipment to Buffalo since Friday. Sales of 100,000 bushels of No. 1 northern for shipment to Buffalo were reported this morning. This cash movement is one of the largest in the history of the trade and practically clears up the deals in cash wheat of Waterman, the Albany miller. The transactions were regarded as an indication of millers' confidence in prices and it appeared as if they were eager to secure supplies in round lots.

Following a sensational decline in the market the heavy sales of cash wheat to millers form one of the most notable transactions in the market in several months. Waterman not only made a short profit on his private settlement but he is considerably ahead of the game on his short July which he hedged against a part of his May holdings in anticipation of the decline.

The cash situation here was dull today. Millers paid 1½c over the July option and elevators offered ½c over. The stuff was on track, but it was impossible to deliver it today before the close of the May delivery. There were no sales to Eastern millers, as Waterman wheat is being offered in the East at from 2@2½c under this market.

With the May delivery out of the way, the market hinges more than in some time on tangible conditions. Theory will have less influence on values and muscle will be less potent. There has been general liquidation in all grains, and while rallies may be expected from time to time, there is every indication to believe that values will be readjusted to enable this country to dispose of its surplus.

The attitude of the farmer again becomes an important factor in the situation. People who have recently been through the Northwest estimate the reserves on the farm at 5 per cent. Whether this is correct will be determined as the stuff comes in. In the expiring month the country was scoured for wheat, and high prices were offered to draw out supplies, without decided effect. Whether the farmer will join the liquidating procession that has stalked through all industries, steel and iron and the stock and grain markets, is a question of interest. Most people believe that the farmer will let go of his holdings, although some think higher prices will be necessary to draw out his supplies, and others do not believe that the farmer will be prepared for liquidation until after the harvest. Prices in the near future will depend to a large extent on the manner in which the crops work out, the legitimate demand and the quantity of the movement to primary points, which is expected to increase.

It is difficult to see how the farmer can hold out for higher prices, in the face of recent events. The big bulls could not buck the economic and physical conditions of world-wide importance and they acknowledged defeat. The American Society of Equity is urging its members to stand firm but their ability to do so, if they are held together, is not conceded, except by a few who think higher prices must be paid to force the available stuff to primary points.

Despite the prevailing cool weather, the wheat plant in the Northwest is growing in good form, and is making an excellent stand. In the Southwest reports are more favorable, and it appears that the crop will be at least normal. The firm tone in corn today had a healthy influence on wheat. The Iowa weather report said the cold weather was hurting corn, and other pessimistic reports caused shorts to cover.

Flour stocks are decreasing, and mills are reporting better business. There is plenty of wheat in sight, and the situation is one that is not encouraging to those who believe in the bull side. People who held aloof from the market when it was at its highest point are selling futures short in the face of the large short interest that has been created against future deliveries.

Clement-Curtis: "Our reports for the month of May show a condition in winter wheat 81.8 compared with 82.1 last month and 80.7 last year, as reported by the government. With the present acreage it indicates a crop of about the same extent as last year. Illinois, Missouri and Oklahoma decreased largely in the month, but this was overcome by the increased condition in Kansas and Nebraska. Our reports show an increase of 6 per cent in spring wheat acreage, making a total of 18,487,000 acres. Condition is 91.2 as compared with 95.2 last year. This is a crop promise of 313,000,000, comparing with a crop promise of 311,000,000 last year. The plant is generally two weeks late on account of cool weather. Our returns on oats give an increase of 5 per cent, making the acreage 35,860,000. The condition is 90.8, as against 88.7 last year, giving a crop promise of 1,234,000,000, as against 1,084,000,000 a year.

"The present situation in winter wheat is the most doubtful we have had in years," said Logan-Bryan. "Wheat is now headed or heading, with about 50 per cent coming into bloom. Much wheat that is headed is still being plowed up. The Texas crop, which showed so much promise early, is coming along in poor shape, especially in the panhandle. Oklahoma conditions not so favorable as early promise indicated, and in many counties crop has deteriorated. In the central, northeastern, south and southeastern counties of Kansas the crop is the nearest a total failure the section has ever experienced. On the other hand, the western half of the state has best promise it ever had. Missouri is more spotted than any other state, the best sections many fields showing light yield. Central and Northern Illinois counties are poor, while extreme south is better than a year ago. Area abandoned in all states will be large. There is an unhealthy condition of the plant in many sections which may show more definitely during the filling period."

Broomhall cabled: Wheat opened 3d to 3¼d lower from Saturday and later further declined this morning ⅜ to ⅞d with the undertone very weak. Pressure was in the way of general realizing due to the great pressure of off coast cargoes which in some cases are offered at a shilling decline and demand poor. World's shipments were heavy and of the amount 11,720,000 bu the United Kingdom received 6,160,000 bu. During the morning there was a rally from the extreme low on heavy covering by shorts and the fact that France bought South Australia cargoes arrived and bidding for more. Antwerp is also bidding. At midday the market was irregular with prices up 1⅜ to 1½d from the low of the morning an 2⅜ to 3⅞d lower than Saturday. Corn at the opening was 1¼d lower and further declined ½d for September. Weakness was due to the heavy pressure of La Plata parcels and a very poor spot demand. European visible supply this week: Wheat, 87,564,000 bu against 86,620,000 bu last week showing increase of 944,000 bu: Last week there was an increase of 88,000. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

General Rush to Sell Is Feature in Wheat Pit.

Chicago, May 31.—With Liverpool prices the lowest in several years and the European visible supply showing an increase for the week, there was a general rush here to sell wheat today. Notwithstanding the cool weather in this country, moreover, the outlook for the growing crops was said to be generally favorable. The talk of readjustment to an international basis of prices started afresh. Attention was so concentrated on this and kindred phases, the bulls got small comfort from the fact that sales of cash wheat to millers in Chicago and the East on Friday and Saturday were found to reach 1,850,000 bu, a total seldom paralleled and regarded as practically cleaning up the May deal in favor of the Eastern speculator who was the chief holder.

The market here opened ⅝ to 2¼c lower, the latter in the December option, which started at 89 to 90c. May was off 1 to 1¾c, but was given relatively little notice although this was the last day for settlement. September started ⅞@1 to 1½@1⅝c down at 90 to 90⅝c and rallied to 90⅞c. Other options also showed some reaction from the early low level.

Large purchases by a firm recently bearish in the May deal brought the market up to Saturday's final figures for the new crop months. Fear of damage by rain and hail in Kansas was a factor. Later, because of lack of support the market sagged. The close was steady with September at 91¼c, a net loss of ⅜@½c.

In corn the big stocks in cribs and the wheat weakness offset for a time the effect of cold weather. September opened ¼@⅝c lower at 57⅛c to 57½c, but later advanced to 58¼c.

Official forecast of continued cold ahead helped prices materially, but on account of weakness in wheat all the gain was not held. The close was firm with September at 58¼c, a net gain of ½c.

General commission selling caused a lower opening for oats. The market afterward, however, rose in sympathy with corn. September started ⅛@¼c to ⅜@½c down at 34⅞c to 35⅛c and advanced to 35⅞c.

Despite a fairly steady start, provisions succumbed to the influence of weakness in wheat. Initial prices were 5c lower to 2½c higher with the September delivery at $22.05 to $22.10 for pork; $12.32½ to $12.35 for lard, and $12.30 for ribs.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

May Wheat Closes Out Slightly Easier Than Saturday's Prices.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 31.—May wheat expired today without any fireworks, closing slightly easier than Saturday. July opened 1¼@1⅜c lower on account of the weakness abroad and early sold down to $1.00½. From this the early low point it advanced 2½c and closed ½@⅝c lower than Saturday. September closed ⅝c lower. Local elevator stocks decreased 125,000 bu for three days. Frost was predicted in North Dakota tonight. Minneapolis today received 447 cars of wheat against 244 cars a year ago; Duluth 15 cars against 2 and Winnipeg 194 cars against 63. May opened $1.01½; high, $1.01½; low, $1.01½; closed, $1.01½. Cash wheat was easier on account of the liberal receipts. However, the milling demand was strong, especially for choice grades: No. 1 northern sold for 1c to 3c above the July contract. Cotton Market.

New York, May 31.—The cotton market opened easy to a decline of 5 to 19 points under general selling and soon increased its loss to a matter of from 19 to 29 points on the active months. Easier cables than expected, good weather over the holidays, more optimistic condition figures than expected and suppressions of further Chicago liquidation following Saturday's break in wheat, were the bearish factors. The National Ginners' association makes the condition 82 per cent and reports an increase of 1.10 per cent in acreage.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Prices Crumble Under Injunction Suit Against Western Rate Increases.

Stocks Come Out in Large Volume and Close Very Weak.

New York, May 31.—The resumption of business in the stock market today after a three days' recess disclosed little interest in the dealings. Outside a few specialties prices changed were narrow and irregular. American Hide and Leather preferred and International Harvester rose 2, Consolidated Gas 1 and Chesapeake & Ohio and Utah Copper large fractions.

Realizing sales in the strong specialties and selling of Reading and Union Pacific soon drove the whole market below Friday's closing figures. Reading lost a point and Union Pacific nearly as much. Mackay companies were pushed up 1⅝, Chicago Union Traction preferred stamped 1½ and Toledo, St. Louis and Western and Western Union, 1.

The pronounced dullness of the market was attributed to expectation of a supreme court decision on the corporation tax price. Prices were about at a standstill in the second hour. Kansas City Southern rose 1½. Bonds were heavy.

Widespread weakness developed during the noon hour when the trading livened up under heavy selling of the standard stocks. Reading, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were the principal features but the whole market declined materially. Reading sagged 3 and Union Pacific and Southern Pacific 2 points.

The news from Washington of the decision to apply for an injunction against the rate increase by Western railroads had a demoralizing effect on stock values, and prices crumbled away rapidly.

The market closed very weak and active. Stocks continued to come out in large volume. The supreme court decision against the Missouri river rates to Northwestern points supplemented the effect of the hopeless opposition against Western rate increases. Losses ran variously to 2½ points for all active stocks. Reading dropped 5½, Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis, 5; Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and New York, Chicago & St. Louis, 4 to 4½; and Northern Pacific, New York Central, Delaware & Hudson, Atchison, Ontario and Western, Louisville and Nashville, United States Steel, American Smelting and American Hide and Leather preferred, 3 or more.

PANAMA LIBEL SUIT ADVANCED

Hearing Is Set for First Tuesday of Next October.

Washington, May 31.—The supreme court of the United States today advanced the so-called government Panama libel suit against the Press Publishing Company of New York for hearing on the first Tuesday of next October.

FUN IN ENGLISH SOCIETY.

The Gentlewoman: Now for the game the most popular at country houses this autumn. You may call it a variation on the old game of consequences. Each guest has a strip of paper and pencil. Each writes:

"Why is——" (choosing the name of some well known person, or of a friend or acquaintance known to the general company), and then turns down his strip of paper and passes it on to the next guest.

Now each writes: "Like a ——" (choosing what simile he will.) Again the strips are passed on. The third time each guest writes the answer: "Because he or she ——." Thus: "Why is Winston Churchill like a piano organ? Because he lies from pillar to post."

Said default consists in the nonpayment of Four Hundred Dollars ($400.00), the principal sum named in the note referred to in said mortgage and secured thereby, together with Seventy Dollars and seventy-five cents ($70.75) interest thereon computed to the day of this notice, and in the non-payment of the taxes on the premises described in said mortgage, before the same became delinquent, amounting to the sum of Fourteen Dollars and ninety-five cents ($14.95), which sum has been paid by said mortgagees and in the failure to keep the buildings on said premises insured according to the terms of said mortgage, which has been done by said mortgagees, for the sum of Twelve Dollars and ninety cents ($12.90) which sums have become a lien on said premises and a part of the debt secured by said mortgage by the terms thereof.
